

EVERY MEMBER OF THE FAMILY CAN FIND SOMETHING INTERESTING HERE TO READ

THE CRACK IN THE BELL
A STORY OF POLITICS IN PHILADELPHIA

BY PETER CLARK MACFARLANE

CHAPTER XXVIII (Continued)

And this man loved her. He watched her with a look that was still glowing over her. Why, come to think of it, he had never seen her so happy as he had seen her tonight. He had never seen her so happy as he had seen her tonight. He had never seen her so happy as he had seen her tonight.

THE PEOPLE IN THE STORY

JERRY ARCHER, with his brother... WILLARD H. BUCKINGHAM, financial genius and the most powerful man in Philadelphia... VICTOR ROLLINSON, a rising young lawyer and close friend of Jerry Archer...

The word broke in like a revolve on the drums of a soldier, and Sylvie scoured to anxiously, but she was too late. She had seen it. She had seen it. She had seen it. She had seen it. She had seen it.

At the same time Jerry discovers the power of Buckingham, who, at the instance of his daughter Ruth, called up Edmunds on the long distance telephone at Atlantic City and commanded that man to grant the charge and to punish the offender. Thus it is that the policeman is discharged—not for having beaten a citizen, but for having dared to interfere with a friend of Willard H. Buckingham.

There was time now to think of it. It was a project of the wild and crazy Levene. Was it going on now, as her father had supposed? Levene had said he was very busy. Was that his business? Gathering materials, assembling the agents, perfecting the organization for the attack, perfecting the plan, something should be done to frustrate the plans immediately. The police, the public should be warned—but, her father?

At Jerry's home her father, turned rapid anarchist in the brutal treatment he had received, outlined to the girl the plan for revolution and bloodshed in Philadelphia, but the death of his youngest boy drives the wild plan from his brain.

He loved her! You have lost my confidence, and now your firm must suffer for it. I have seen this coming for some time, and a number of the Tool Works' creditors have been in here talking to me today, but it is not yet too late. I am confident that you will abandon these silly political ambitions of yours, and cease the agitation which involves hundreds of disarmed citizens, realizing and that they had been betrayed by a rich man who had sold himself for a handful of securities. This last vision stirred Jerry's emotion. It made him sorry for Mr. Buckingham. His indignation cooled somewhat and he was fired with a desire to make that crass man see the error of his ways.

At the station, she met the man who was looking very small, and quite aware of the fact that several pairs of masculine eyes had cast approving glances in her direction as she lingered to look at the clock. She was looking very small, and quite aware of the fact that several pairs of masculine eyes had cast approving glances in her direction as she lingered to look at the clock.

CHAPTER XXIX
The Strange Hold
AT ABOUT 5 o'clock Jerry came in to the great man's office smiling as usual. Jerry was feeling rather good these days. One of the daily papers, dealing on the political situation, had that morning remarked that Victor Rollinson would be a good man for Mayor.

At the station, she met the man who was looking very small, and quite aware of the fact that several pairs of masculine eyes had cast approving glances in her direction as she lingered to look at the clock. She was looking very small, and quite aware of the fact that several pairs of masculine eyes had cast approving glances in her direction as she lingered to look at the clock.

CHAPTER XXX
The Struggle
AT ABOUT 5 o'clock Jerry came in to the great man's office smiling as usual. Jerry was feeling rather good these days. One of the daily papers, dealing on the political situation, had that morning remarked that Victor Rollinson would be a good man for Mayor.

At the station, she met the man who was looking very small, and quite aware of the fact that several pairs of masculine eyes had cast approving glances in her direction as she lingered to look at the clock. She was looking very small, and quite aware of the fact that several pairs of masculine eyes had cast approving glances in her direction as she lingered to look at the clock.

CHAPTER XXXI
The Struggle
AT ABOUT 5 o'clock Jerry came in to the great man's office smiling as usual. Jerry was feeling rather good these days. One of the daily papers, dealing on the political situation, had that morning remarked that Victor Rollinson would be a good man for Mayor.

At the station, she met the man who was looking very small, and quite aware of the fact that several pairs of masculine eyes had cast approving glances in her direction as she lingered to look at the clock. She was looking very small, and quite aware of the fact that several pairs of masculine eyes had cast approving glances in her direction as she lingered to look at the clock.

getting all the big men in our movement, can you get the vision of the hand-to-hand struggle in our midst? In other words, these little division leaders who for twelve months now have been faithfully working in our midst, are they not promising the people in their blinks that they would get the police out of politics, the money out of government, the Magistrates out of politics, and take away the power of local ward heisters from the people, and give it to the people and punish innocent men whose only crime was political independence? Why, at those times, how favorably do you regard them?

THE DAILY NOVELETTE
"TWO HEADS ARE BETTER THAN ONE"
BY ELLEN B. KEE

It was Saturday, and for Sue that meant a trip in town, the matinee and perhaps a stroll through the shops if there was time.

At the station, she met the man who was looking very small, and quite aware of the fact that several pairs of masculine eyes had cast approving glances in her direction as she lingered to look at the clock. She was looking very small, and quite aware of the fact that several pairs of masculine eyes had cast approving glances in her direction as she lingered to look at the clock.

At the station, she met the man who was looking very small, and quite aware of the fact that several pairs of masculine eyes had cast approving glances in her direction as she lingered to look at the clock. She was looking very small, and quite aware of the fact that several pairs of masculine eyes had cast approving glances in her direction as she lingered to look at the clock.

At the station, she met the man who was looking very small, and quite aware of the fact that several pairs of masculine eyes had cast approving glances in her direction as she lingered to look at the clock. She was looking very small, and quite aware of the fact that several pairs of masculine eyes had cast approving glances in her direction as she lingered to look at the clock.

At the station, she met the man who was looking very small, and quite aware of the fact that several pairs of masculine eyes had cast approving glances in her direction as she lingered to look at the clock. She was looking very small, and quite aware of the fact that several pairs of masculine eyes had cast approving glances in her direction as she lingered to look at the clock.

"DREAMLAND ADVENTURES"
By DADDY
PEGGY'S BIRD CIRCUS

A complete, new adventure each week, beginning Monday and ending Saturday

CHAPTER IV
Blue Heron Saves the Show
Peggy, hearing that soldiers about to start for France are to be disappointed because an animal circus, which was to give them a "cheer-up" show has been wrecked, volunteers, with her birds, to take its place.

CHAPTER V
Blue Heron Saves the Show
Peggy turned to Ben and Bill. "You'll let Blinky Sam be in our show?" she asked them.

CHAPTER VI
Blue Heron Saves the Show
Peggy turned to Ben and Bill. "You'll let Blinky Sam be in our show?" she asked them.

CHAPTER VII
Blue Heron Saves the Show
Peggy turned to Ben and Bill. "You'll let Blinky Sam be in our show?" she asked them.

CHAPTER VIII
Blue Heron Saves the Show
Peggy turned to Ben and Bill. "You'll let Blinky Sam be in our show?" she asked them.

CHAPTER IX
Blue Heron Saves the Show
Peggy turned to Ben and Bill. "You'll let Blinky Sam be in our show?" she asked them.

"CAP" STUBBS—He Did It With a Piece of Chalk

THE KAISERS DREAM CALENDAR

By EDWINA

