O A LITTLE BOY SCOUT WHO DIED FOR HIS FRANCE

Flashed a Proud Smile to the Germans as They Shot Him. A Deed That Ought to Be Enshrined in the Heart of Every Lad

OMEWHERE over there is a grave! We do not know where you are

"A German column was passing a wooded defile and the boy was caught and asked whether the French were about. He refused to give information. Fifty wards further on fire was opened from the cover of the wood.

"The prisoner was asked in French if he had known that the enemy was in the forest and he did not deny it. He went with firm step to a telegraph post and stood up against it, with a green vineyard behind him, and received the volley of the firing party with a proud smile on his face.

It flashed over me that Mr. Manley bad a false idea of me, so I promptly set him right. "Oh, I don't like studyset him right. "Oh, I don't like studyset, if that's what you mean. I like to read, when I can pick out the books and don't have to give a synopsis at the send. But I hate arithmetic—and physics—and learning dates in history.

"And yet want to go to school?" persisted Mr. Manley.

"Well, it appears that unless I graduate from somewhere." I gave a deep sigh, "I can't ever get a job. At the Y. W. C. A. they keep telling me that I must be better educated if I expect a position that pays much. And my teacher in Letbury said that if I went to high school here one year, she knew I could staduate."

"That would be finishing pretty young." commented Mr. Manley. "You talk sensibly enough, but you look like a mere child."

"It's only because I haven't got my growth." I asserted with some warmth.

"It's only because I haven't got my growth," I asserted with some warmth. "I'll be sixteen at the end of January." "Even so," the man replied. Soldier Has No Relatives

Soldier Has No Relatives

Dear Cynthia—In addressing this letter to you I desire to beg a small favor of you through the medium of your valuable column. I am a young fellow of twenty sears and have no relations at all and what few friends I have are all in England, so that I want to ask you if you could find a respectable person to correspond with me or casionally? It makes a man feel kind of lonesome when he sees the rest of the box setting letters and packages and yet there are none for him. In return I will always answer the letters, both here and 'overthere,' where I expect to be shortly. A. C.

I appreciate your loneliness, soldier man, and happen to know a very nice and respectable person and have turned your letter over to him. So you will not be without letters after this.
