

JUST GOSSIP ABOUT PEOPLE

Nancy Wynne Tells of Doings of Younger Set—Several Girls Cut Off Their Hair—She Wonders Why—Other Matters

ALL the kiddies out on the Main Line are going to the Cassatt's dance to-night, and the McKeanes, Mills and various others are giving dinners before the dance.

Mr. and Mrs. John Scott have been going nearly every evening. Don't you think Mrs. Scott is pretty? Her lovely fair complexion and bright color and young face, under that crown of lovely white hair!

WHAT with fetes at the Colket Wilsons in Paoli and at Mrs. Charles Downings in Wallingford today there'll be quite some busy people in the country, and, too, there'll be quite some amount raised for war relief, for both affairs are given for that purpose.

The Wallingford fete starts at 3 and lasts till 11, and the Paoli one starts at 2 and has supper served on the porch and I suppose other doings afterward till about 11.

WHAT on earth do you think is the latest wrinkle among the girls? They are cutting their hair short and wearing it brushed back tight off their foreheads.

Now, this is not a joke or just a tale. They are really doing it. I can't just get the idea, but they are doing it, idea or not.

I've seen three of them already, and they tell me that a whole bunch of others have given done it or are about to do it at a given moment.

Now, I ask you, is it that the little war workers have so much work to do they haven't time to fix their hair? What is it all for you suppose?

Lieutenant of the E. A. A. is one of the pioneers, and a very recent bride has sacrificed her curly yellow locks to stiff, much-brushed, short hair.

Now, I ask you, is it that the little war workers have so much work to do they haven't time to fix their hair? What is it all for you suppose?

I've seen three of them already, and they tell me that a whole bunch of others have given done it or are about to do it at a given moment.

luncheon at Kugler's today in honor of Miss Marion Griffin and Miss Grace B. Wingate, whose engagements were announced recently.

A farewell party will be given for Mr. Herman Ritz tonight at his home, 43 North Edgemoor street, by his friends. Mr. Ritz recently enlisted in the naval reserves and has received his call. He will leave for Cape May on Monday. He was presented with a gold wrist watch by his friends.

Miss Ethel R. Harrison, of Beechwood Park, and Mrs. T. Mitchell, of Cincinnati, O., have gone to Columbia, S. C., to visit Mrs. Mitchell's son, Lieutenant R. B. Mitchell, stationed at Camp Jackson.

Mrs. Charles J. De V. Keefe, of Bala, will leave on Monday for the front. Mrs. Keefe is spending the summer at Camp Jackson, where she is the guest of her aunt, Mrs. Horace R. Kelly, of New York. Ensign Joseph De V. Keefe, U. S. N., who has been spending the last weeks with his parents in Bala, after finishing his course at Annapolis, has reported back for duty.

A pretty marriage was performed yesterday afternoon at St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church, on Fourth and Spruce, when Miss Adeline M. Bell became the bride of Mr. Henry D. Berardino. Mr. Edward J. Bell and Miss Katharine M. Bell, brother and sister of the bride, were the best man and maid of honor. Mrs. D. Berardino is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Bell, of 405 Locust street. After an extensive tour of New England, the bride and groom will spend the summer in Atlantic City.

The wedding of Miss Rose Gutman, daughter of Mr. E. B. Gorman, 4214 Carpenter street, to Mr. David S. Blum took place on Sunday, June 16, at Mayer's Drawing Rooms, 1620 North Broad street. The bride was attended by Miss Esther Blum, as maid of honor. Mr. Harry Gutman acted as best man.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Louis Feinberg, D. D., after which the couple left for an extended tour of the Canadian and the Great Lakes, and upon their return will live in West Philadelphia.

What Women Are Doing in Washington

FOR the girls who do war work in Washington at least as much as they get from the packers in the Chicago stockyards, the following is a list of the women in the Government Bureau of Printing and Engraving.

The message was sent from the National Women's Trade Union League by Miss Agnes Nestor, its legislative chairman. It was Miss Nestor's first official act since her return to the country after her recent tour of inspection from a six weeks' conference with the representatives of labor and trades unions in England, Ireland and France.

MISS NESTOR is vice president of the International Gloveknives' Union and member of the committee on women in industry of the Council of National Defense. She was chosen by Mr. Gompers, along with Mrs. Melinda Scott, of the New York Women's Union League, to represent organized women in America on this delegation sent by the American Federation of Labor.

They were treated in England with all the honors due an officially accredited mission from the United States. Receptions were arranged for them by David Lloyd George and other British leaders. They were accompanied by Arthur Henderson, leader of the British Labor party, traveled with them; George Bernard Shaw, Mrs. Humphry Ward and other English and French women of note.

They were only a week in France, said Miss Nestor on her return to Washington, where she and her fellow voyagers were received by the President and reported to him of their trip. "During that time I personally visited the front lines and saw the men in three days in the war zone traveling through towns and villages now under fire. The men of the party went to a munitions plant one after another to see the work of the women in the factory."

INTERNATIONALISM, a sense of its strength and validity, is the outstanding impression which remains from my trip," said Miss Nestor, her mild gray eyes kindling with occasional enthusiasm. "I never believed I would sense the solidarity of what we are all fighting for so deeply."

Miss Gertrude Bonham and Miss Mary Northrup are the only women in England whose names carry across the Atlantic. Miss MacArthur is head of the National Federation of Women Workers, a woman of the labor class who, nevertheless, been able to identify herself thoroughly with the working-class movement. Miss Bonham is expected to come to the United States for the annual conference of the American Federation of Labor in Minneapolis this month, where we of the American labor mission will make our final report on our visit.

OTHER women in Washington made their arrangements to be present at the A. F. of L. convention in Minneapolis. Miss Agnes Nestor, who is a socialist, is interested in such matters. "I intend to fit in the convention along with a speaking tour which will include Cincinnati and Minneapolis. I will include Cincinnati and Minneapolis. I will include Cincinnati and Minneapolis."

MARY HEATON YORSE (Mrs. Joseph M. O'Brien) is another novelist who has been working for the committee on public information in Washington. Mrs. O'Brien has been here more or less all winter at work on pamphlets for public speakers and work on pamphlets for public speakers and work on pamphlets for public speakers.

Price McQuillen Married. News was received yesterday of the marriage of Miss Esthler Crawford Medford and Mr. Price McQuillen, of this city, on June 11, in Norristown, Pa. Mr. McQuillen, a lawyer, is the son of a prominent family in Philadelphia, having had to have one leg and two fingers amputated after a severe accident when moving wounded soldiers from the battlefield to the hospital.

He is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Daniel McQuillen and a brother of the late Daniel McQuillen, who was killed on the New Haven road together with Walter Fox at Annapolis five years ago. His father is a prominent dentist.

Mr. McQuillen met Miss Medford at the Penn-Michigan football game last November. She is the daughter of Mrs. Malbon B. Fillman, of 268 South Frazier street, West Philadelphia. On June 11, Mr. McQuillen and his bride went to Norristown and were married by the Rev. William Yeager, a Methodist clergyman there. The marriage was only generally known yesterday when Mrs. Fillman made the announcement.

Mr. and Mrs. McQuillen are living with Mrs. Fillman at her home in South Frazier street.

Miss Gertrude C. McEvoy and Miss Helen McElroy entertained this afternoon in honor of Miss Helen V. Skahan. Their guests were Miss Beatrice L. Thomas, Miss Laura S. Schmitt, Miss Nora T. Shaw, Miss Elizabeth MacDonald, Miss Helen Alter, Miss Mary P. A. Shea, Miss Catharine Craze, Miss Margaret Skahan, Miss Margaret V. Brown, Miss Isabe Reynolds, Miss Mary Skahan, Miss Agnes V. Mohan, Miss Agnes B. Comber and Mrs. Harry F. Skahan. Miss Skahan's marriage to Mr. Joseph McEvoy will take place on Wednesday, June 24, at 9 o'clock, in the Church of Our Lady of the Rosary.

Mrs. F. S. Thomas and her daughters, Miss Virginia Kendrick Thomas and Miss Beatrice Louise Thomas, of the Baltimore, Md., have taken an apartment in Chelsea, where they will spend the summer.

Miss Felix E. Spelling, of the University of Pennsylvania, is spending the summer at North, N. H.

SOLDIERS' DEPENDENTS TO BE GIVEN VACATIONS

Home Service Section of Red Cross Arranges for Recreation and Rest Periods

Through the activity of the home-service section of the Red Cross, families of soldiers who would otherwise be forced to remain at home this summer will be given a vacation or outing at a country place.

Mr. Henry Boyer, chairman of the home-service committee of the Red Cross, announced at the regular meeting of the organization this week that in response to letters written to country week associations, the fullest co-operation had been promised in every instance.

At certain country places families will be taken on a week's outing at others for two weeks. An all-day picnic outing has been arranged at several pleasant spots, and some places have agreed to take twenty-five persons every other day.

The terms under which families will be taken are dependent on the work done by the several institutions that have promised to cooperate with the home-service department, some to give the service outright, others for a minimum amount of expense money furnished by the Red Cross.

It was announced that a medical advisory committee is being formed by the Red Cross so that the best medical attention and advice may be furnished to families of soldiers. A group of leading physicians and specialists will be pressed into service. The welfare of the soldiers' dependents also is having the consideration of local lawyers, a committee of whom are on duty every day at 487 Walnut street to interview the large number of persons who are having more or less trouble about receiving their allotments from the Government.

In many other instances an error due to some slight misunderstanding or carelessness has caused the trouble, but the lawyers are there to remedy it and to give advice about rectifying it. While awaiting the matter of being straightened out, the Red Cross has ministered to many a soldier's family in the most vital things.

In many other instances a review of work at the meeting showed the scope of work done by this department of the Red Cross. That three new rooms have been obtained in the building they now occupy is a fortunate circumstance, as the work has so greatly developed as to require more space.

ASK COMFORT KITS FOR DRAFTED MEN

Service Star Committee Receives Applications for 2124 Outfits From Local Boards

During the last week applications have been received by the service star committee of the American overseas of the Emergency Aid from thirty-two local boards for a total of 2124 comfort kits for the men who will go away with the next contingent.

In the opinion of the committee, this number will reach 3000 by the time the remainder of the local boards have been heard from.

The committee, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Louis R. Page, has a large number of kits ready, but is in need of funds to complete the work. To help raise the necessary money a jumble sale of used hats, shoes and bags of all kinds will be opened Monday at the committee's storehouse, 1332 Walnut street, and continue as long as the donations of materials to sell will permit.

The sale is in charge of Mrs. J. Shipley Dixon and Mrs. Stanley Smith. Every kind of hat and shoe is represented and, unlike most such sales, the bargains are not all for the fair sex. Men will have a chance for there are men's hats, from costly panamas to humble soft hats and caps, to be had at low prices.

All of the proceeds of the sale will go for the purchase of materials for comfort bags. No other work is to be done during the sale, so welcomed and appreciated as these comfort kits, with their lingering touch of the home fire's burning. The committee has distributed 15,000 of them already, thanks to generous public support.

The headquarters of the service star committee is at 1332 Walnut street and is a routine industry these days. The active work is in charge of Mrs. Louis R. Page, chairman; Mrs. Percy M. Chandler, vice chairman; Mrs. Murdoch Kendrick, secretary; Mrs. E. W. Beach, bag supply; Mrs. Howard Hancock, shoe supply; Mrs. Richard M. Elliot, wool supply; Mrs. John H. Mason, secretary, and Mrs. E. W. Beach, treasurer.

Among the enthusiastic volunteer workers who come in every day to help in sewing, stringing, filling and tagging bags are Mrs. B. Campbell Madeira, Mrs. John Doran, Mrs. C. Howard Collett, Mrs. Harry Blinn, Mrs. Harold Voorhes, Mrs. Françoise de St. Phalle, Miss Elizabeth Wallace, Mrs. H. A. Davis, Mrs. Samuel D. Lit and many others.

WOMEN LIKE WORK AT DU PONT PLANT

Powder Company Sees Duties Are Light and Their Surroundings Pleasant

Eight hundred and fifty women at the Du Pont company's plant at Carnegy Point work and play and rest amid conditions that show a great organization may map out the work shifts around the clock of its people so that happiness and efficiency will each strengthen the other.

Though the women who work at Carnegy Point are working short, with slightly varying points, the characteristics in all other Du Pont plants.

During the importance of pleasant surroundings, because of feminine being healthy, she may be lady in her hours of ease or the woman of business, the assistance of social welfare workers who have made a comprehensive study of such matters, and domestic science specialists were called into service and are important factors in the foundation work of the plant beyond Wilmington.

While many workers live in the villas adjacent to the plant, the majority of the women employees reside in the dormitories, each of which houses ninety-four. Three more dormitories are nearing completion and will be ready to accommodate the same capacity; they will also be presided over like the five others by two matrons each.

Mrs. Meta M. Kellogg, supervisor of women's employment; Miss Edna D. Thompson, supervisor of dormitories, and Miss Thompson's assistant, Miss Cassidy, are types of the women in positions of management at the plant. Cheerful, young enough to have the viewpoint of their associates, most of whom are young women; tactful and sympathetic, each is a pleasant and responsive companion for the women over whom she has supervision.

Before a woman can be accepted for employment at the powder plant, she must submit to a physical examination. In one of the numerous buildings that dot the area covered with gray houses is a room set apart for this purpose. A woman physician is in charge. Her examinations determine not only the physical soundness of the applicant, but also her grade of work.

In the A grade are placed girls especially strong and robust. B grade girls are not stationed in rooms where the odor of ether is strong, because of their oversensitive quality. No great amount of muscular strength is needed in the work of the women. Girls working on the presses in one stage of the powder-making process carry a load of about a short distance, but these are not heavy. The work here, as in other departments, is steady but not arduous.

A fresh-looking girl looked up from her work as a woman in the Evergreen Lingerie passed near her yesterday and smiled brightly.

"This is not work," she said, "it is really nothing but play; just have it." Above the girl in the house where the machinery was operated more swiftly than in the rest, another girl was singing as she worked. It is rare that two workers are seen chatting in the work area, and occasionally, but that is all. Yet there is apparently no restraint. The work is as engaging as hemstitching or drawn work, and not of the knitting type, to be done without attention.

Danger is virtually nil. In fact, few accidents occur nowadays in the powder plants. Yet in the Evergreen Lingerie accident of any moment happened at this place. In the houses where the women are at work on smokeless powder there is said to be no more danger than if a lighted match was dropped among newspapers. There would be a greater flare, but not an explosion.

Carefulness and attention to detail are feminine characteristics. The women in the clothing industry, of knit, with their plain habits to match their work, are as careful as handling their tasks so that even a flimsy pin would ensue.

The buildings are small and separated so that in the event of a conflagration they could be stopped before it made much headway. Not more than six women are employed in any of the houses.

Work is arranged in eight-hour shifts; a special train carries the workers at
