

Evening Public Ledger

Philadelphia, Saturday, June 29, 1918

WHAT THE WOMEN ARE DOING TO ENLIVEN THE DAY'S NEWS—SINGING MARINES ON BROAD STREET

IT LOOKS AS THOUGH the days of novel-reading messenger boys are numbered, now that the courteous "messenger girl" in natty khaki uniform has made her appearance at the nation's capital. At least the boys will no longer have the field to themselves.
International Film Service

A LION FOR A PET is just what one would expect of the wife of an army officer, so here is Mrs. H. E. Cole holding "Tawney Pershing."
International Film Service

ITALY IS VERY MUCH in the news these days with her victory over the Austrians, not to mention the Italian Festival for the Relief Fund for Blind Soldiers being held on the esplanade of the Public Library in New York.
Underwood & Underwood

THE FERVOR FOR SHIPBUILDING has permeated the ranks of our infant population, so responsive to the leanings of us adults. A miniature ship is a toy well worth constructing, even if all the laws of ballast are not obeyed.
Western Newspaper Union

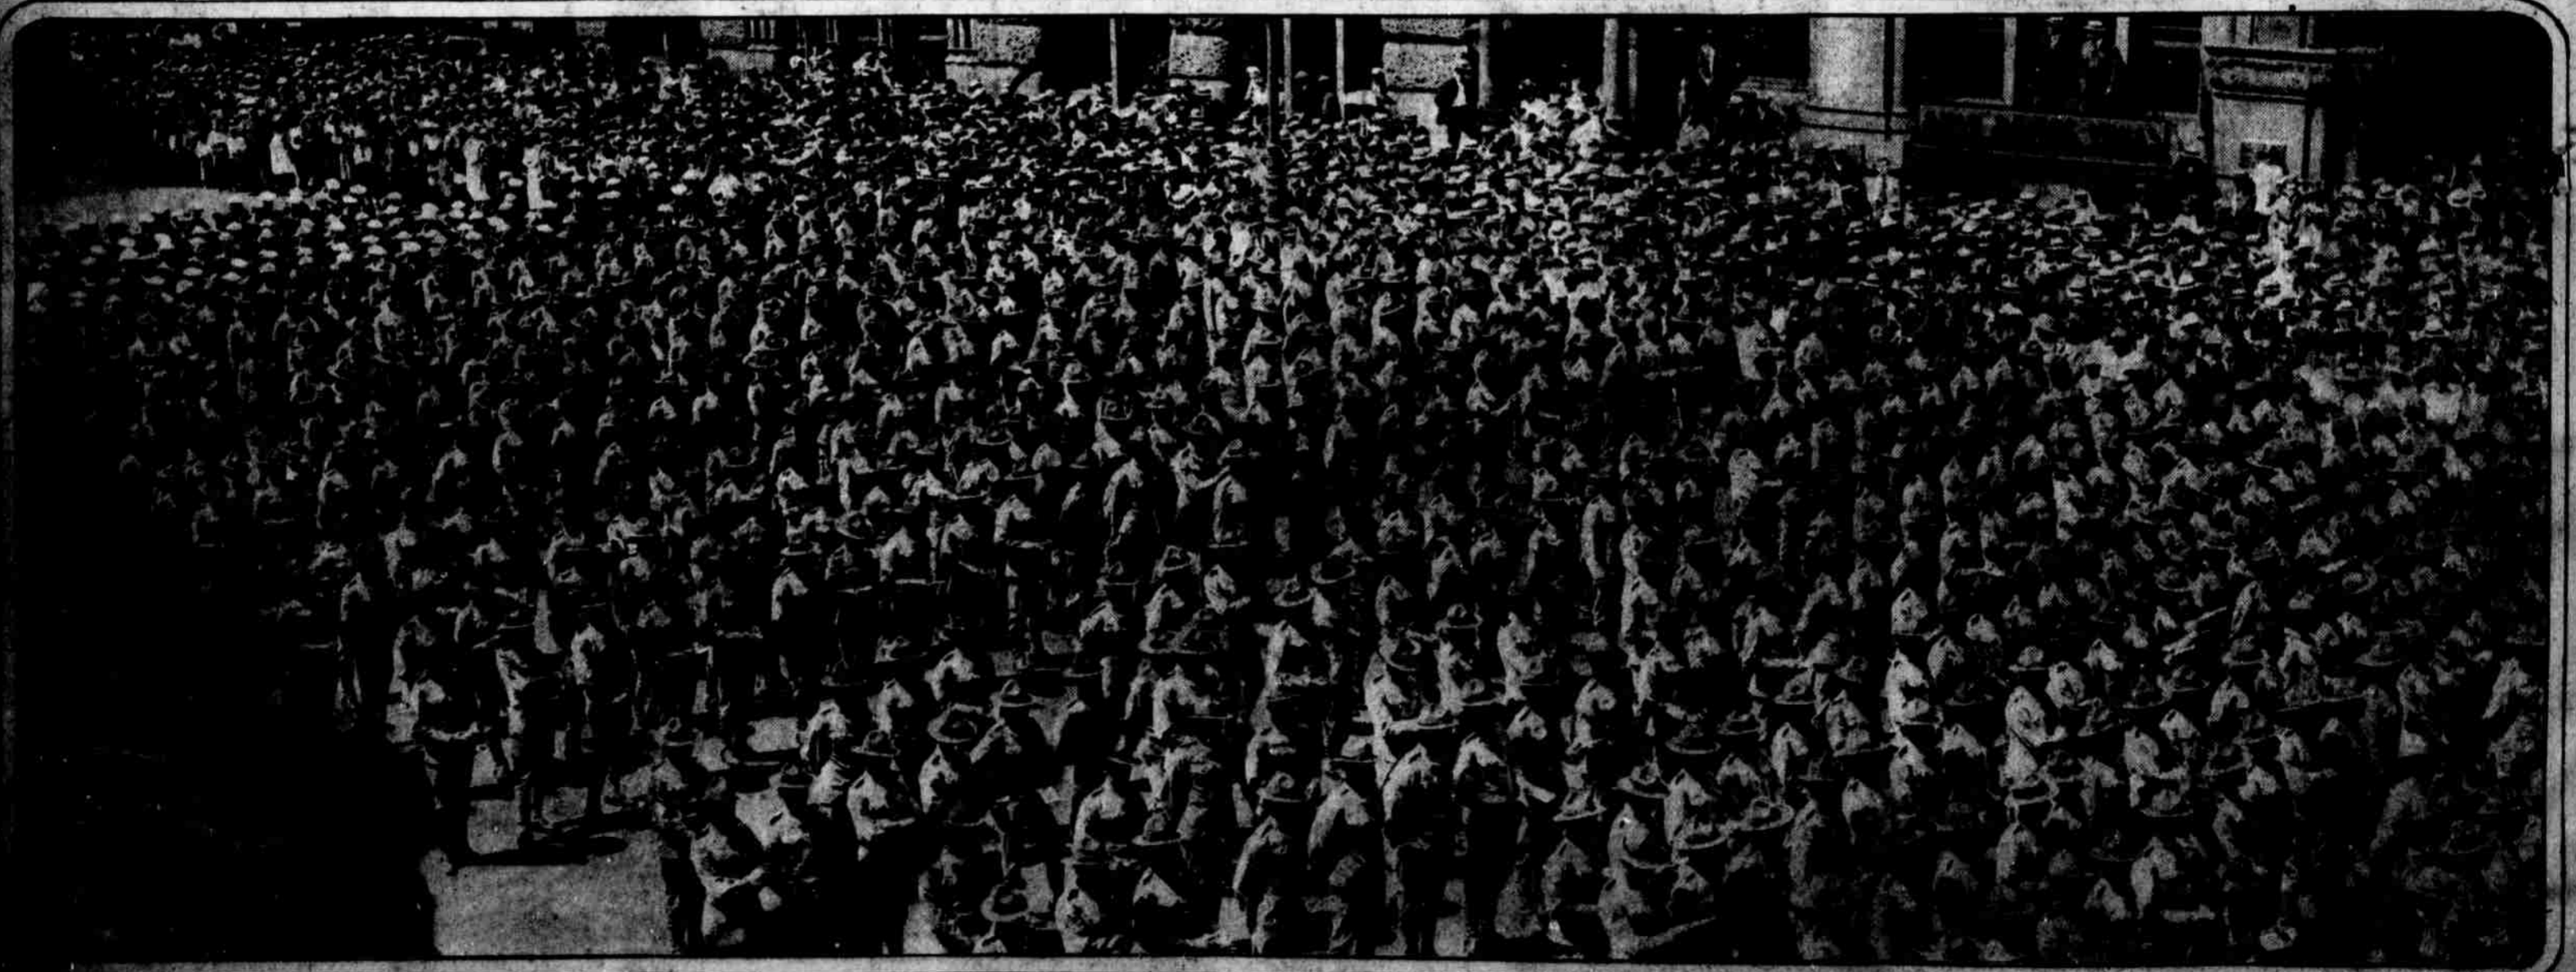

HERE IS A SCENE many times re-enacted in Philadelphia these days, in which women of the Red Cross Canteen Service hand out good things to eat to the lads "passing through" on their way "over there."
International Film Service

JUST AT NOON, when the chimes of Holy Trinity ring out, many Philadelphians, young and old, pause for the nonce and offer a prayer for the safety of the boys "over there."
International Film Service

AMERICAN WOMEN have undertaken perilous tasks. Here is an American woman who is driving an ambulance along shell-torn roads in France.
French Pictorial Service

THE STRAINS OF "AMERICA" never resounded more impressively in Broad street than yesterday when a full thousand of marines from the Philadelphia Navy Yard gave vent to their patriotic feelings in the shadow of Liberty Statue.