Phils Rise Above Knocks Into Third Place

pause for a moment and consider the Phils hat much-maligned aggregation of ball tossers, which has been panned d by all of the leading experts this year and handed the unanito finish anywhere from eighth to fifteenth in the National kicked over the catefully prepared done and now roosts in third place in the senior circuit. No doubt the Phils have wise ones in proving themselves better than five other clubs Only Chicago and New York stand between them and first but that argument can be used in regard to New York and Frisco miles separate those two cities. However, the Phils are going have won eight of the last eleven games and perhaps will throw a into the leaders before the western trip is over

e again we must hang the crown on Pat Moran's alabaster brow. has worked hard with the material on hand, welded it into a thinking and hard-working ball club and is accomplishing more than her manager under the big top. Moran is a wizard in baseball affairs construct a team out of almost nothing, and if you don't believe i r the line-ups of the last three years. Moran knows how to juggle ing staff and has a faculty of getting the best work out of his With material like that in Cincinnati, Moran would win the a walk

Last spring Pat was up against it for infielders. Niehoff was a holdd the hole at second base looked big enough to drive an army truck He labored long and patiently with McGaffigan and had Snooks a good game when he was called to the army. Harry Pearce took an taught Pearce everything he knows. He showed him how to his body in front of ground balls and introduced him to many little of the trade. Harry is developing into a star and will be a great the club in a few more weeks. The Phils rested in Philadelphia d left last night for Cincinnati, where they open today.

Cobb is a wonderful batsman and seems to improve with age. He is unch of a slugger like Babe Ruth, but uses science while at the plate nakes the twirlers pitch to him and seldom strikes at a ball unless it er. He is just as daring as ever on the base lines and keeps the onteam on edge until he scores or is thrown out. While running the he reminds one of a reckless aviator looping the loop or flying on side. No one knows what he will do next-not even Tyrus himself.

A few weeks ago Ty was suffering from a strained arm and could not is position in center field. He should have been on the sidelines. ere was a vacancy at first base and he went in to fill it. Now Ty is mood first-sacker and no one knows it better than he. But he played rames, made some errors and the fans began to "ride" him. He d into the grand stand one day to take a punch at one noisy person couldn't realize that Cobb was helping out the team and doing the best Tyrus the Great is with us today and will appear at Shibe Park with in the opening conflict of a four-game series. It always is an inng sight to see Cobb when he is after base hits. He beats out era to the infield and takes advantage of every sliphip. He is a shole show in himself and is worth the price of admission. In Chicago day he made five hits in one game and in a double-header in St totaled nine hits. Pretty good for one day's work.

Eight-Ounce Gloves Do Not Worry Boxers Over in Jersey

ten the New Jersey Boxing Commission ruled that only eight-ounce rioves would be used in the bouts in that State it was believed that sting battles would result. It was figured that the heavy "pillows" re too big to inflict much damage and knockouts would be very rare.

However, such was not the case. In Wildwood on Thursday Benny rd gave Jack Brazzo such a beating that Pap O'Brien stopped the near the end of the eighth round to save Jack from taking the high Previous to that he had been floored by Leonard and barely was to stagger to his feet. The eight-ounce gloves can dent the map of boxer if the blows land fairly and there is enough steam behind the They offer more protection than the five-ounce ones, but there be just as many K. O. battles as in Philadelphia.

Stinger, an exceedingly tough local boy, was rocked to sleep by Reese in the same show, and Freddy wore the "pillows." Tonight tic City Lew Tendler and Frankie Callahan will settle a longargument and we will have another opportunity to witness the of heavy gloves on somebody's map.
