Wartime Calls for Spats All Year A Daily Fushion Talk by Florence Rose

To look at these smart shoes you would never think them controlled by wartime regulations. They are, however. The reason for the majority rule of the exfords and pomps is that Uncle Sam orders his nieces to wear low shoes and spats whenever possible

We are also asked to wear the low shoes—either the oxfords or the pump—to replace the high shoe whenever possible. Certainly this is little for any of us to do when we know that the leather is needed for "Our Boys." And who wouldn't be perfectly willing to wear the pump and the spat all winter long?

You will remember that we were clamoring for spats three winters ago because they were a fad, and now women all over the country have an opportunity to make the styles themselves, without having any fashion decree handed down to them that "spats are is vogue," and now is the time to

Awards Contracts

Contracts for the construction of twenty-three coal barges of 2500 tons each have been awarded by the Emergency Fleet Corporation to ship-yards along the Atlantic and Gulf coasts.

Terms of the contracts bring-the total figure to $190,000. This sum provides for the construction of huils and the installation of equipment, although not for the cost of the latter.

The barges probably will be used to haul coal from Virginia to New England, which has a deficit to make up since England requisitioned all the coal from Nova Scotia, from which New England once obtained much of its supply.

For the Meatless Days

You wouldn't think you could do much with some left over vegetables: potatoes, beets, carrots, corn, beans or onions. But here's what I did with them the other Tuesday when Mr. Hoover said "no Tuesday when Mr. Hoover said "no meat." I made vegetable croquettes, and Jim said he was going-to be a vegetarian for life. I chopped the vegetables into small cubes, seasoned with sage, sait and pepper, and made a glorious thick cream sauce, to which I added two tablespoonfuls of Al Sauce. I poured this over the vegetables, molded them into croquettes, and fried them in very hot butter substitute. Oh, that Al Sauce! Its oliquant flavor, so different from anything else, pulled those cronuettes up into the class where the French chefs live!—Adv.

Platinum Models—Cross Keys

If we measure applause as eyidence of approval, then the Exposition Four are the hit of the bill at the Cross Keys. This is one of the very best quartets in vaudeville. The singers have a selection of songs and comedy which was greatly enjoyed by the audience.

The Platinum Models, the headline feature, is highly artistic. Pisano and Bingham won laughs with their true-to-life portrayals. Janet Louden and company, in an excellent comedy sketch, and Carrol and Winkle, in a decidedly novel musical act, rounded out a bill which is one of the very best seen at the Cross Keys this season.

"The Manxman" Revived and Fairbanks Is Seen in Three Theatres

The chief honors of this production belong to Joseph Kilgour, and his name should be the featured one. In his actions of the Goldwyn play are comedy this latest product of the Goldwyn studios goes off into a melodrama which does not hold the interest. The motivation concerns the efforts of Miss Marsh to rid a hotel she inherited of the barroom attached to it. This she does along the lines of the late Carrie Nation, and it is after this episode that the lawyer-hero tells her she is "all woman." The melodramatic interest comes in from this point when an unscrupulous politician is point when an unscrupulous politician is killed. Everything is righted and the couples walk.

struggle the politician is killed. Every-thing is righted and the couples walk toward the setting sun of happiness. Mae Marsh is a much better actress when appearing opposite some of the supporting plants. upporting players than when she attempts to express herself by quaint, squinting mannerisms. Jere Austin, Arthur Housman John Sainpolis, Jack Dillion, Jules Cowles and Hazel Allen were in the support.

Roycoe ("Fatty") Arbuckle has not provided a better vehicle for the display of his comicalities than is to be found in his latest comedy. "Good Night, Nurse," an added attraction. It is clean, wholesome fun throughout.

Shart, Story by C. Gardner Sullivar and directed by Mr. Hart, Arteraft play The big fight scene in "The Spoilers" was the forerunner of heroes exhibiting heir fistic ability in many weak stories. hut in "Shark Monroe" William S. Hart not only displays his usual "bad-man" acting, but gives the final feet of film a thrill that will long be remembered. He strikes the villain a blow that sends him across the room to his death. An-other factor which lends interest to this play is seeing the western hero in the character of a sea captain, while the humorous titles keep the story from beming too dramatic.

The reformation of the heroine's weakling brother and the rescue of the girl from a fake wedding ceremony with the villain form the basis of the swift-moving story. The director-star has kept the action at a point which holds the interest throughout its unfolding. Katherine MacDonald is his leading lady, and she plays her part with charming case. George McDaniel is the weakling brother, a part he accomplishes with telling effect, while to Joe Singleton is given the role of the villain saloonkeeper. Bertholde Sprotte is the friend of hero "Shark" Monroe, played by Mr. Hart.

The Palace has "The Manxman," the screen version of Sir Hall Caine's novel, which has been reviewed in these col-umns before. Eliabeth Risdon, Henry Ainley and Fred Groves have the prin-cipal roles.
