

Evening Public Ledger

and
THE EVENING TELEGRAPH

Philadelphia, Monday, July 22, 1918

WITH THE YANKEE TROOPS WHO ARE MAKING THEIR PRESENCE FELT ON THE WESTERN FRONT

AS AN ATTACK OR SO comes all in the day's work for the marines who are helping make life miserable for the Germans opposing them. The lads are prepared for a German attempt to "strafe" them.
Committee on Public Information

A SOLDIER is never particular where he makes his bed—that is, so long as he is certain he will not be disturbed. Dog-tired after several days at grips with the enemy near Belleau, the marines in the above photograph have fallen asleep with bags of supplies for a mattress.
Committee on Public Information

Committee on Public Information

ALL THE TRICKS of the war trade are being mastered by the Yankees "over there," and that includes camouflaging their narrow-gauge supply railroads, as shown in the photograph to the left.
Committee on Public Information

Committee on Public Information

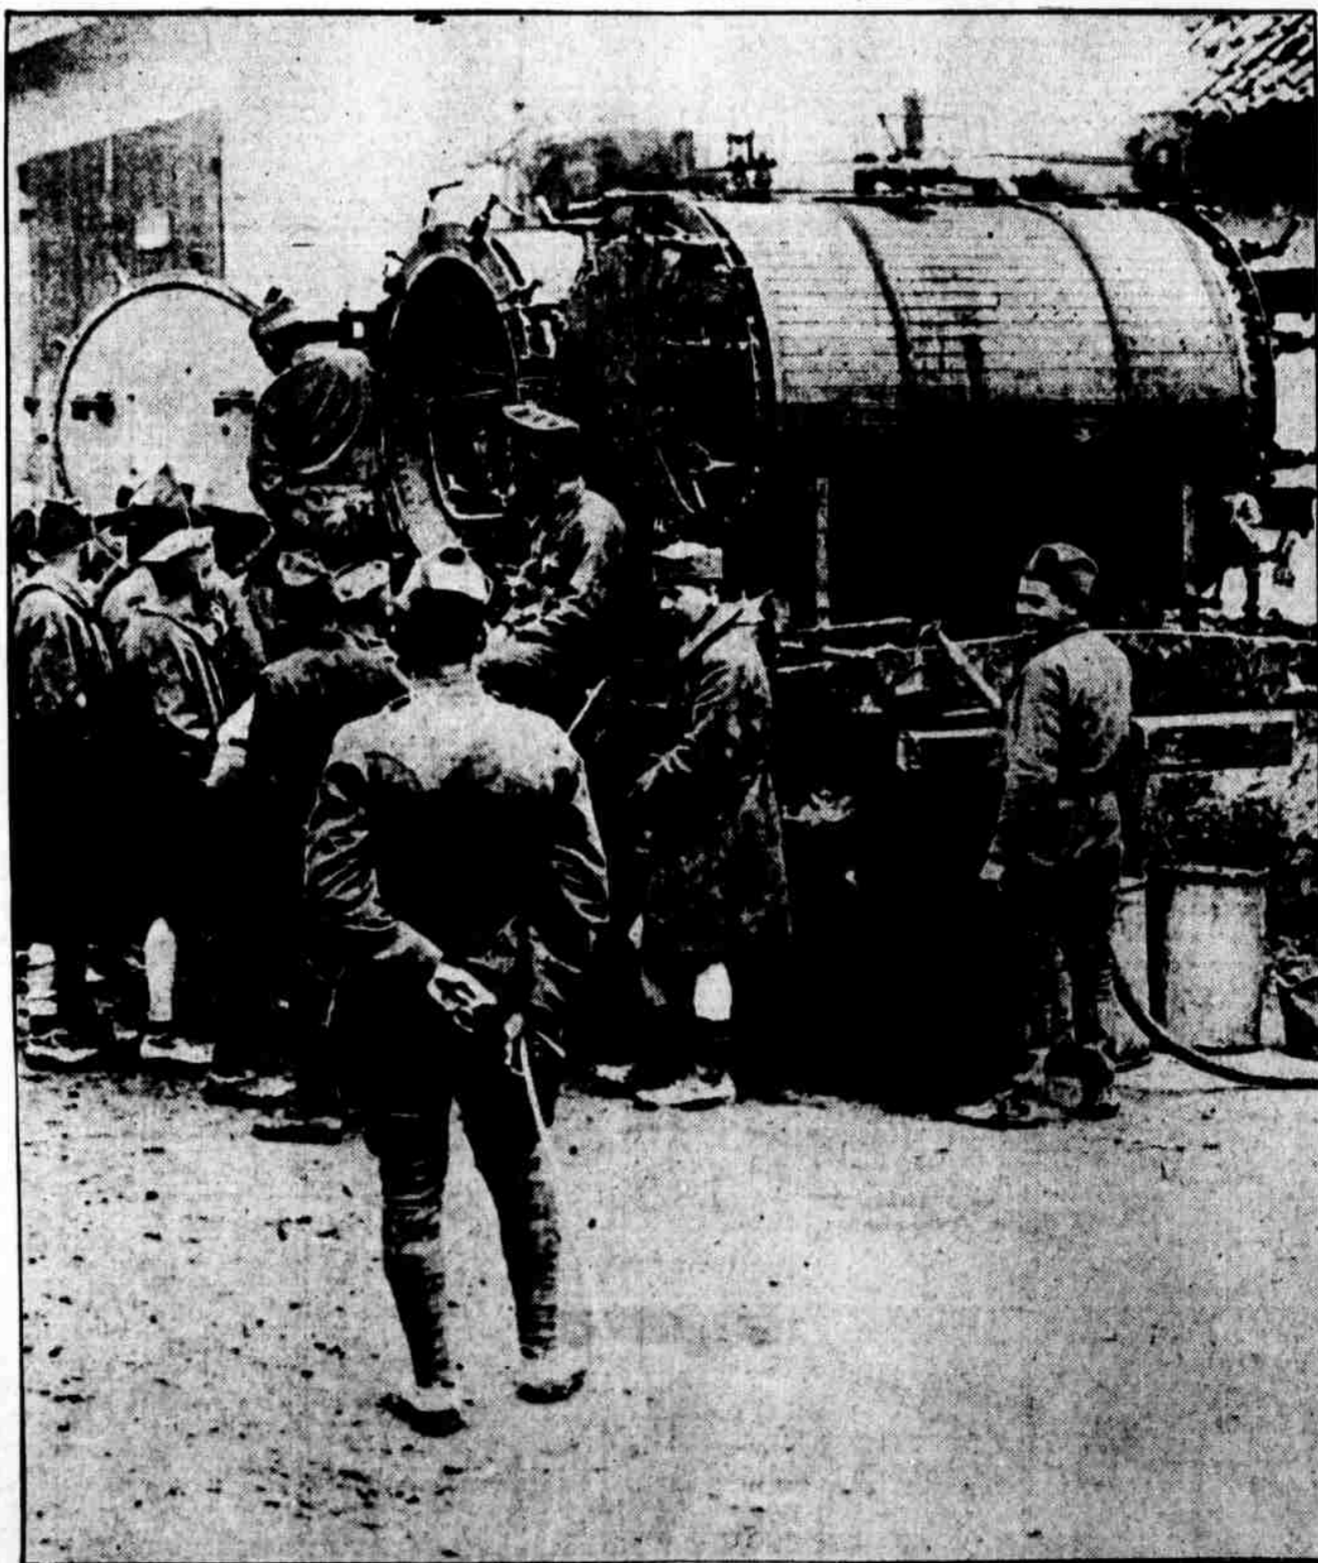

UNCLE SAM HAS ENLISTED many carrier pigeons in his overseas army, and to say that the birds make good messengers is to put things mildly. Above—Americans in a front-line trench releasing a pigeon with a code message for headquarters.
Committee on Public Information

Committee on Public Information

EXPLICIT DIRECTIONS are given to a marine by his poilu comrade.
Committee on Public Information

Committee on Public Information

DOUGHBOYS BRING their clothing to a sterilizer, which promptly eliminates the "cooties."
Committee on Public Information

Committee on Public Information

AMERICAN AND FRENCH colonels studying a war map.
Kadel & Herbert

Kadel & Herbert