General Crowder was told by the one ball representatives if the regula-lons were enforced now less than sixty players would remain in the two major agues and that there would be no time in which to recruit new players to en-able the clubs to complete the present playing schedules. The draft of the brief handed to Gen-

Baker, Philadelphia; Charles Weeghman, Chicago; Barney Dreyfuss, Pittsburgh; Percy D. Haugh-ton, Boston; Harry Hempstead, New York; Harry Frazee, Boston, and Ben-jamin Minor, Washington. Relied on Themselves

In announcing late yesterday he would review the case "on basis of facts to be submitted by representatives of the industry." Secretary Baker indicated General Crowder, provost marshal, and himself had been forced to rely almost ball conditions in preparing the ruling. "I stated in my ruling the number of men affected by the regulations would not disorganize the industry," said Sec-retary Baker. "Now I am informed the virtually will ruin the business. se and other facts, which were not mitted to me before, are to be given to General Crowder tomorrow by repre-sentatives of the leading clubs. I will confer with General Crowder and, after reviewing the facts set forth in the brief these men are to file, I will see what is

The first, he said, that the "work-or-fight" order auto-matically should require all players to seek other employment or enter the army, but that the changes in classifi-cation should be left to the local draft boards to be reached in the regular appeal for a suspension of the order until the close of the current major league playing season. It developed General Crowder was entirely willing to hear the case of the baseball managers before Secretary Baker's ruling was prepared, but there was a very noticeable lack of informa-tion forthcoming from the men whose interests were involved. It was stated here yesterday General Crowder expected Ban Johnson, president of the Amer-toan League, would seek an interview, and he was prepared to grant it when ohnson was in Washington last week. lastead, no effort was made to explain the real facts to General Crowder. Managers Were Too Sure

The argument was made baseball leaders did not wish to appear in the light of presenting any "slacker appeal" and would abide by the decision of the Secretary of War. But it was the generally accepted view the baseball inerests were entirely too cocksure about the safety of the game, at least during the present season, to trouble to take the proper steps to protect their interests. Every other industry which has felt curtailment of its business was being considered by the War Industries been represented in Washington when been accorded courteous hearings and usually have been able to reach satis-factory agreements, when the needs of the Government and their own financial eltuation have been understood ade-
