TEAM OF FLIERS GETS FIFTH FOE

Philadelphian and Son of Old Tennessee Down Boche Airman

COMBINATION OF ACES

Lieutenants McLanahan and Buford in Thrilling Aerial Combat

The McLanahan-Buford "team" of aerial performers got in action again on the Marne front yesterday, and brought down another German plane after a thrilling battle.

Two months ago this same combination accounted for a boche flier, and have been credited with three more victories in between their initial conquest and yesterday's triumph.

Lieutenant Alexander Hawley McLanahan, senior of the team, is a Philadelphian, the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Hawley McLanahan, Wellington Apartments, Nineteenth and Walnut streets.

Lieutenant Edward Buford, of Nashville, Tenn., is the junior member. Both enlisted in the aviation corps as soon as the United States entered the war, but Lieutenant McLanahan received his commission a week or so before Lieutenant Buford. The latter is a son of one of the oldest families in Tennessee and was an all-round athlete.

It has become the practice in the Allied air corps to have the men work in teams. Better results are achieved that way than by sending them out alone. Sometimes they travel in fours and eights, these larger units being known as "flying circuits," for some reason that has not been made clear by dispatches from the front. It was while working with a "circuit" that Lieutenant McLanahan and Lieutenant Buford made their first "killing" back in May.

Lieutenant McLanahan is twenty-two years old, more than six feet tall, and was a star baseball, football and basketball player in his school and college days, as well as first-class track man. He was a junior at Yale when this country declared war.

He took the ground school flying course at Cornell University, and learned to fly at the big field at Mt. Clemens, Mich., where so many Philadelphiaans were turned into aviators. Among the men in his section were Kemble Yarrow and "Buck" Dougherty, both well known in golf and hunting circles, who are also driving airplanes on the Marne front.

Born at St. David's, on the "Main Line," Lieutenant McLanahan received his early education at the De Lancey School, where he participated in every form of sport. Later he was sent abroad to study in Belgium and France, and on returning to the States he prepared for Yale at a military school in Asheville, N. C.

CLASH OVER REGISTRARS

Hearings Started by Board of Commissioners

Hearings on the appointment of division registrars was started today before the board of registration commissioners. The contest between the rival Republican factions over the appointment of registrars in eight wards, where the Republican City Committee recognizes contests, is anticipated.

Eight Pennrose ward leaders have been denied seats in the committee until the contests are settled. A letter from Joseph M. Smith, representing the Pennrose forces, asking for an early meeting of the contest committee of the city committee to settle the contests, was ignored by Superintendent C. R. Ranney, chairman of the city committee.

Pennrose men charge the Vire forces seek to gain control of the registrars in the wards where the alleged contests exist and threaten to appeal to the State Committee. The contested wards are the Third, Fifth, Ninth, Tenth, Twenty-third, Twenty-fourth, Twenty-fifth and Thirty-eighth.

25,956 PENNSYLVANIA MEN ALIGNED IN MONTH

Sent to Training Camps and Colleges Under Selective Service Law

By the Associated Press
Harrisburg, July 29.—Estimates made at the State draft headquarters are that between July 15 and August 15 Pennsylvania will have sent to cantonments, special instruction camps or colleges for technical training 25,956 men under the operations of the selective service law. This number includes only men covered by the various calls on file, and it is expected in view of telegrams received from the provost marshal general that there will be other calls at an early date.

Between today and August 15 it is expected that Pennsylvania will entrain 14,256 alone. This week men drafted or voluntarily inducted in Pennsylvania will go to widely separated places. Men qualified for working in lumbering will go to Vancouver; 1200 will go to Syracuse recruit camp to be trained to act as policemen and firemen at embarkation points; these men to be those qualified for limited and not general service, while others taken from the "want columns" will go to Camp Sherman, Chillicothe, Ohio, and on August 1 forty-three will be sent to Kelly Field, San Antonio, Texas, while draft boards will prepare 5000 white qualified for general military service to go to Camp Wadsworth, Spartanburg, S. C. Special induction calls are being filled up for 784 men to go to the University of Pittsburgh to be trained for motor vehicle work by August 15.

"When I was compelled to let some of my servants go, I found one sure way to cut down on the work at our house," said a nervous little woman the other day, who looked to be pretty much of a thinker. JUSTICIA TARGET OF 7 SUBMARINES

Passengers of British Liner Say Torpedo Barely Missed Their Ship

TELL OF SEA BATTLE

Later Fired at American Undersea Craft Before It Showed Its Colors

An Atlantic Port, July 29.—At least seven submarines were in the flotilla which attacked and destroyed the huge White Star Liner Justicia, according to passengers of a British liner arriving in port today. This ship was in the company of which the Justicia was a part, and her officers said she was the original target for the torpedoes which first hit the Justicia, missing the other vessel by only a few yards.

The liner's guns were turned on a United States submarine off Sandy Hook and three shots were fired before the submarine's nationality was known. It was reported by the ship's gun crew. In the list of the liner's forty-three cabin passengers were Edward H. Butt, brother of Major Archie Butt, lost on the Titanic, and his wife, who have been residents of a London twenty yards. Mr. Butt is a cotton broker, with offices in Liverpool.

Were After American Torpedo. Naturally, none of the officers or crew would talk for publication, but they communicated to passengers the impression that they believed the squadron of attacking submarines had orders to get the American transport Levathan, and that they mistook the Justicia for the greater ship, which she resembles.

The sea was smooth and the air clear. None of the passengers, who put on lifebelts and hurried to their boat stations, saw a submarine. Mrs. Butt says they heard an explosion, until last Friday night a torpedo had been seen glimmering astern, only a few yards away. It just missed the next ship and hit the Justicia, not more than 300 yards from the arriving liner, entering her engine room.

Battled as Passengers Watched. The liner speeded through a placid summer sea without seeing anything portentous, not even a sportive whale that often has thrown a scare into wartime sea travelers, until last Friday afternoon, when she was within two days of her American destination.

A call to quarters came at 12:45 in the afternoon, and while all hands were adjusting to the ship's gunners began firing at an object about seven miles off. The object was recognized later as a supersubmarine, which also indulged in some vain practice at the liner.

Shells from the Germans burst half a mile astern of the unflinching passengers. The guns of the liner blazed away more than half an hour in an unsuccessful effort to reach the submarine, whose commander apparently did not care to take the risk of drawing nearer to the merchantmen so he might launch a torpedo.

Shot at Yankee U-Boats. About 5:45 on Saturday afternoon, a big submarine was noted breaking water not more than three miles astern. The guns of the liner began barking the instant the submarine emerged.

One of the three shots sent in her direction fell within a few yards of herself and the liner's skipper began to suspect that she was an American, although she displayed no flag to prove it. The British skipper signaled, "Who are you?" and must have received a satisfactory answer, as he ordered the gun crews to cease firing.

WAR WORK OF NEGRO WOMEN COMMENDED

Red Cross Auxiliary No. 6 Cheers Black Troops on Way to Front

Competent work of the canteen department of American Red Cross Auxiliary No. 6, composed entirely of negro women of this city, is attracting marked attention throughout the eastern section of the country and has received the highest commendation from the officers commanding the negro troops and from the men themselves who have passed through Philadelphia on their way to Atlantic seaports en route for France.

Mrs. George W. Childs, who has charge of the canteen department, in describing the successful efforts of this group of workers, has made public a letter on the negro troops and from her son from Mrs. F. T. Leaf, leader of the negro auxiliary here, who is now studying conditions in New England. In the letter Mrs. Leaf said:

Doing Work Competently. "The canteen department of Auxiliary No. 6 is doing a very interesting piece of work in a very competent way. Mrs. Austin Thompson, of Germantown, chairman of this group, has nearly 300 women under her who are keenly enthusiastic about the work of serving the negro troops on their way through this city.

"They have at all times met these troops, with only two exceptions, and these were when the headquarters had not been notified of the arrival of the 'troop trains' in time to call out the women. But on these two occasions the other workers of the auxiliary on duty took care of the men.

"The negro troops have expressed the greatest appreciation of having the workers meet and serve them. Having been informed that the negro women of Philadelphia were meeting all negro 'troop trains, the soldiers were always on the lookout for the blue veils of the workers, and they have never been disappointed."

Serve Light Refreshments. When the commanding officers of the troops request sandwiches and coffee for the men during their short stop-over here, these are prepared and served by the negro women themselves, but when such requests are not made, light refreshments only are given, the same as are distributed among all troops passing through the city.
