SAVE COAL NOW, AID WINTER PILE

Every Pound Conserved Worth Two When Cold Weather Comes

FUEL SECRETARY SPEAKS

E. L. Cole Says Grumblers at Limited Service Are Not Patriotic

Persons who grumble at the limited elevator service and the shutting off of lights in office buildings and on the skip-stop trolley service and other have been collecting funds for the last few weeks, ostensibly for aiding distinction from a narrow and selfish angle, not from a broad and patriotic the Federal fuel administration for the State of Pennsylvania.

"Every pound of coal saved now will be equivalent to two pounds when the cold weather arrives," said Mr. Cole.

"The State, as a whole, has been apportioned 7,522,300 tons of domestic anthracite. Philadelphia will get 2,800,000 tons. This total is not enough, but it is Slavs who live within a few blocks of the plant. tons. This total is not enough, but it is all the national fuel administration can

Keeping Careful Watch

"We are keeping careful watch on the total number of tons of coal saved in each hotel and office building affected by the conservation rulings, and though each hotel and office building affected by the conservation rulings, and though we are not prepared to give out any de-tailed statement until a month has alapsed, you can say that one big Chest-nut street hotel alone is saving a ton and a half a day, and one large office building, which has its own power plant, is saving three and a half tons a day. We are confident from reports received so far that the total of coal served by the present rules will be

If other cities and States do not care to follow our lead, they will probably regret the fact aext January.

"The fuel administration wishes to emphasize the fact that the supply of coal alloted to Pennsylvania will fall far short of the demand unless it is carefully conserved and every ounce of power secured from every pound. The miners cannot dig out enough coal and the railroads cannot transport enough to meet every need of the State or the country. We must get along with what we will have, and it seems only wise to save in every possible way now so as to keep the wheels of industry running next winter and to assure a healthy degree of warmth in the homes of our oftizens.

War Needs Minimise Inconveniences "The personal and industrial inconveniences that have resulted from the conservation orders may loom large in the perspective of individuals, but they should sink into insignificance when the social needs of the State, to say nothing of the demands of the war and the imperative necessity of supplying our boys over there, are taken into consideration.

"Who could find it in his heart to complain against waiting a few minutes for an elevator or walking an extra guare or flight of stairs if only he stopped to realize that some humble family might be kept warm this winter by the coal thus saved? And who can find it in his heart to grumble at such trifies, anyhow, for rifles these matters are in comparison to life in a vermin-infested trench and the dash over the top in that chilly hour before dawn? The man who is safe on this side of the ocean should be wilding, indeed eager, to submit to three times what he has been called upon to bear when he considers how much better off he is here than if he were in France."

With the examination of the men Government agents will start an investigation into societies composed entirely of Austrians employed at shipbuilding and as munitions workers.

Simultaneously with this investigation, officials of the Emergency Fleet Corporation will start a sweeping inquiry of all shippard employes in an effort to send into the military service all would-be draft dodgers and all men of draft age not absolutely essential to the shipbuilding industry.

Announcement of this was made by Howard Cronley, vice president of the corporation, who declared that every man employed in the shippards will be required before August 10 to fill out a questionnaire which will be scrutinized and referred to the head of the department in which the man is employed.

In this way it is planned to make available for immediate military service every man more essential as a fighter than a shipworker.

The Austrian shipyard employes who will be examined today are Ignatz Lurson, 2555 East Thompson street; George Levak, 2609 East Harold street, and Several other magazines and freight cars on a nearby siding were threatened for a time by the blaze.

The du Pont Company today issued this explanation of the "flare":

"The explosion took place in a warehouse on the edge of plant No. 2. It contained about 200,000 pounds of cancontained about 300,000 pounds of can-non powder. It was caused by the heating of the brake bearings of a mo-tortruck which was loading in front of the warehouse. There was no loss of life. The men who were doing the load-ing had plenty of time to get away after the flare started. The bearings heated on account of a tight brake on the mo-torcar."

"I am confident that this is the solution of our aircraft difficulties," said Senator New, "and this is borne out by every army officer of high command and every member of the aircraft board of the old and the new regime. This bill is based on the testimony taken before the investigating committee."

The Secretary of Aeronautics under the New bill would have "direct and complete control of all matters pertaining to the design, purchase and manufacture of aircraft and aircraft equipment intended for the use of the army, navy or marine corps."

The Cabinet member would be appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate, and would receive a salary of $12,000 a year.

ary of $12,000 a year.

Financial provision for the new department is made by turning over "unexpended balances of such appropriations as may have been made for the purpose and manufacture of aircraft and aircraft equipment and all appropriations hereafter made for such purposes."

The introduction of Senator New's bill closely follows the statement made by Senator Reed, another member of the investigating committee, favoring the creation of an air ministry, and indi-cates that this will be an outstanding feature in the committee's report.

"I realize that the views I have taken respecting all of the subjects treated in the platform will not, of course, meet with the approyal of every citizen," said Governor Edge today. "It would be presumptuous to expect such unanimity of opinion in this day, when the problems are of such perplexing character. Upon some subjects I have reached no final conclusion, for the reason that I realize the necessity of maintaining an open mind in order that the period of wonderful experience through which we are passing may be used as a period of wonderful experience through which we are passing may be used as a guide. For any man to stand up today and arbitrarily decide the future of such problems, for instance, as Government railroad ownership, or permanent taxation policies, is to prove that he is utterly incompetent to assume the responsibilities of business government in reconstruction times.
