CK HENDRICKS ORDERS LAST-MINUTE CHANGE IN SIGNALS AND CARDS WIN

Erafty Pilot Omits Singles and Sacrifices From Code, Calls for Extra-Base Knock in Pinch and Twilight Game Goes to Visitors

By ROBERT W. MAXWELL Sports Editor Evening Public Ledger

VEN a worm will turn, but just because it turns it doesn't become a wild-eyed elephant on a rampage. It's still a worm, according to the dope we have on the subject. However and be that as it may, the was very much off color yesterday at the Phils' park, when the St is team, after lying supinely on the mat in the first game while the me folks walked all over it, suddenly turned and chased the Moranmen a the lot with the short end of the second struggle attached to their raons. Those athletes who occupy the cool, dark cellar in the National ague came to life long enough to split fifty-fifty on the day's work.

All due credit for the twilight victory goes to John C. Hendricks, the Iver-haired, hard-working but unappreciated manager of the Cards. During he afternoon he tried every stunt known in baseball to squeeze out some art of a victory, and after seeing every break go against him for eighteen ings finally was successful in the nineteenth-meaning the tenth frame the second bill. Jack tried the delayed steal, the forward pass, the crissbas, the hit-and-run-which worked perfectly except for the hit-and even ent so far as to instruct one runner to try to swipe the home plate. He snagged at every turn, however, but instead of flopping for the long ount Hendricks perpetrated a Houdini stunt and pulled the Cards out of he sack after they apparently had been stacked.

Jack discovered in the tenth inning that his signals were wrong. d been calling for singles and sacrifices and they were not numerous ough to win. So in the final frame, after Doak hatted like a regular litcher and atruck out and Anderson was safe on Bancroft's foozle, he witched his signals. Before he got going, however, Clifton Heathcote, the emon slugger, had forced Anderson at second and was roosting on first after the blow. Then Paulette trotted up to the plate. Hendricks signaled or a two-bagger and Pauly came through with a bolsterous hiff which ded off the barrier in left center. Heathcote counted and the batter ched third on the throw-in. Hornsby's single sent Paulette home and the stuff was off.

Conferred by King George Washington, Aug. 2.—There will be no "Sir Admirals" in the navy. King George recently awarded the Order of the Bath to Admirals Strauss and Rodman, who were on duty the day he visited the American fleet. Under the recent rule, by which Congress gave permission to American fighting men to accept foreign decorations, the admirals may wear the ribbon, but they work. Before Congress passed this rule the King bestowed a similar order on Ad-miral Sims, which he declined. Secre-tary of the Navy Daniels cabled him his approval of the declination.
