Cleveland today to take action which will conform with Secretary of War Baker's order that baseball players must be prepared to observe the work-or-fight regulations after September I.

Barney Dreyfus, president of the Pittsburgh club and a member of the National League schedule committee, left immediately after the conference for Cleveland, where he will confer with the American League officers in reference to rearranging the schedules so that a world's series may be held, providing the junior association is in favor of the usual seasonal baseball climax. National League, and the latter organization will abide by any agreement he may make.

The wording of the National League resolution is such that the pennant season may be ended considerably in advance of Sentember 2 in case it is necessary to complete the world series by the end of the present month.

Reports from American League officials indicate that this is the desire of the majority of the club owners of that organization in order that there may be no conflict with the ruling of Secretary Baker. If Dreyue acquiesces to this arrangement the post-season championship series may be staged on or about August 20. This would give at least ten week days in which to play the best four-out-of-seven games necessary to decide the winner. All the National League cub owners are in favor of such a series, and as the American League magnates are understood to hold similar opinions, it is said, the question of suitable dates for the series is the only one to be settled.

Those in attendance at the meeting here yesterday were Presidents Baker, of Philadelphia club; Hempstead, of New York; Ebbets, of Brooklyn; Dreyfus, of Pitsburgh; John K. Tener, president.

Haughton, former president of the Roston Club. Haughton, who appeared in the uniform of a major, stated that he was taking the opportunity to bid his former fellow magnates good-by, as he was taking up his military duties.

None of those who attended the meeting was able to state what would be the ultimate outcome of the conference with the American League officials. It was intimated that in case a world series could not be aranged the league's schedule would be continued until the close of August. There was no expression of opinion as to whether the remaining games of the regular schedule should be doubled up in order to complete the full 154 contests or how many games should be played before August 20, in case that date is selected for the opening of the world series.

Should both leagues agree to begin the series on August 20 it is probable the Should both leagues agree to begin the series on August 20 it is probable the regular pennant season will be terminated on Saturday, August 17, and the rival combinations given two days to prepare for the interleague clash. If the present schedules remain unchanged August 17 would find the eastern National League clubs playing in the West while the American League contests would be under way on eastern diamonds.
