

DRAFT FOR NAVY NOT NECESSARY

Admiral Palmer Says Service Has All the Men It Requires

MERCHANT MARINE JOBS

200,000 Enlisted for Crews and 15,000 a Month Available as Recruits

By the Associated Press

Washington, Aug. 8. Extension of the draft system to the navy is not regarded as necessary at this time by the Navy Department.

Rear Admiral Palmer, chief of the Bureau of Navigation, told the Senate Military Committee today the navy has virtually all the men it needs and that enlistments would not be affected by changing the army draft ages.

Enlistments in the navy now total approximately 430,000 men, said Admiral Palmer, who represented Secretary Daniels before the committee.

Admiral Palmer explained that enlistments in the navy just now are principally to provide crews for the merchant marine, and that about 200,000 men have been accepted for that purpose.

Even if the present bill is enacted, he said, the navy would have no difficulty in recruiting 15,000 men a month for the merchant marine and for other purposes.

The Navy Department is already working in conjunction with the War Department to provide crews for the navy.

Senator Chamberlain said today if the man-power bill could be reported out by next Monday, he would make an effort to have the Senate reconvene probably about August 19 to take it up.

Secretary Baker returned to the city during the day and was at once asked by Senator Chamberlain to appear before the committee tomorrow.

Lie Given to Stern by Mayor on Stand

Phrases from Mayor Smith's testimony follow:

"Mister Stern is the last man in the world I would have any confidence in."

"Izy Stern told me Judge Gordon and himself wrote the Carey letter telling me of conditions in the Fifth Ward."

Senator McNichol was the best friend I had in the world."

"There is only one distinctly Vares man in my cabinet, his name is Wilson. Because of his appointment I have been subject to all sorts of rumors."

"Director Krusen was endorsed by Senator McNichol. Director Twining was endorsed by Mr. McNichol. So was Director Twining."

"I was close, extremely so, with Senator Penrose."

With State Senator Edwin H. Vares, Congressman William S. Vares and Mayor Smith as absent spectators, the defense in the Fifth Ward conspiracy case today unfolded its direct charges of a Penrose "frame-up" to discredit the Mayor and the Vares.

The defense's trump card today was Allen Olds Meyers, a Burns detective. Isadore Stern, in February, 1917, Meyers testified, said a scheme was being hatched to discredit Smith and Vares. Stern reiterated that statement May 22, 1917, in Washington, according to Meyers.

Director of Public Safety William H. Wilson and William J. Burns, the detective, were also witnesses today for the defense.

Wilson said he was informed in February of 1917 that a plot was brewing to discredit Mayor Smith and the Vares. His informant was Meyers, the Burns Agency operative.

The Vares, Burns testified, employed his agency to get to the bottom of the supposed "frame-up" being engineered by Penrose against the Vares.

Stern believed the Fifth Ward case would duplicate the Lieutenant Becker case in New York, Meyers asserted. Stern was of the opinion that Mayor Smith's conviction would make District Attorney Rotan the biggest man, politically, in Philadelphia, the detective continued.

U-BOAT MUTINEERS AT KIEL AND OTHER BASES IN CUSTODY

Revelation of Revolt at Wilhelmshaven Causes Great Sensation Among People, Together With Bad News From Army on Western Front

Special Cable to Evening Public Ledger

London, Aug. 8.

The Daily Express prints the following dispatch from its correspondent at Amsterdam:

"Extraordinary rumors are afloat at Wilhelmshaven regarding serious acts of submarine sabotage perpetrated by a number of revolutionary sailors for the last six months who have been carrying on propaganda with the object of bringing about an early stoppage of submarine operations."

"The reports reaching me are somewhat conflicting and it is difficult to ascertain the actual facts, but I am told on good authority that the sailors revolted because of the increasing dangers of submarine work, owing to the Allies' new anti-submarine methods. They incited other sailors about to leave on submarine cruises either to attack their officers while at sea and surrender the ship or to take the first opportunity to sink their ship and getting themselves interned in neutral harbors. More than fifty submarines disappeared, sometimes with all hands."

"The revelations made at Wilhelmshaven caused a great sensation among the people who were informed of them. The police arrested twenty-three ringleaders who were court-martialed and sentenced to death within three days. Many of their accomplices at Kiel and at other harbors have been arrested, but have not yet been sentenced."

"The sudden resignation of Holtzendorf as chief of the naval staff was caused by this extraordinary scandal, which was reported to the Kaiser last week by the Imperial naval cabinet. Holtzendorf was immediately sent for. He entered the Kaiser's room as chief of staff and left it half an hour later as a retired officer."

"The Kaiser was expected to pay a visit to the fleet this week, but he abandoned the plan for the present, owing to the state of ferment prevailing at Wilhelmshaven, where the heavy losses of submarines, the lack of food, and bad news from the west front produced a state of mind among the sailors that was not conducive to an enthusiastic reception."

A. BASKIN, J.G. FLEMING, RICHARD HARTLEY, CAMILLE DURANDO

Five From Here Die in France

Continued from Page One. Moore street, Norristown, seriously wounded. Sergeant Edward R. Palmer, Trenton, N. J., killed in action. Corporal Francis D. Howard, Pleasantville, N. J., killed in action. Private William Pitrowicz, Trenton, N. J., killed in action. John C. Graff, killed in action. He was twenty-four years old, and married. He lived at Wharfedale lane and Delaware River, in the far northeastern section of the city, and was a brakeman on the Pennsylvania Railroad. He was an ardent patriot, his wife said today, and was eager to enlist from the moment this country entered the world war.

When he found that his pay and the separation allowance the Government would give his wife would support her in fair comfort, he enlisted in the regular army, being assigned to Company B, of the 19th Regiment Infantry. His preliminary training was obtained at Camp Hancock, Ga., and from there sent to France. Two brothers, William and Lawrence, are also in the service. William has been in the regular army for five years, and is stationed at Fort Sill, Okla. Lawrence was drafted, trained at Camp Meade and sent to France in June of this year. John Brennan, wounded in action, lived with his mother, Mrs. Peter Brandler, of the Fifth Pioneer Regiment and lived with his parents at 5223 Knox street. He was only twenty years old when he enlisted in April, 1917, in the 19th Regiment Infantry. He was assigned to Company A of the 10th Regiment of Infantry and was trained at Camp Hancock. He took to arms life with avidity and learned so rapidly that when orders came to send a detail to help guard the Mayale steel plant he was one of those chosen. This enabled him to spend his leave frequently and to spend his leave at home. A letter was received from him last Monday, dated July 3, in which he wrote of the plans for celebrating Independence Day and also reiterated a remark he had often made before going to France, which was to the effect that he did not expect to live through his first big battle. His prediction was correct. He was killed during the desperate fighting on July 16, when

James G. Fleming, killed in action.

Americans and French checked the German drive in the Champagne district.

Fleming was born in Ireland and came to this country with his family when he was a young boy. He attended the Daniel L. Keyser Public School at Coulter and Morris streets, Germantown, and after completing the eighth grade obtained a job as driver for the Charles Y. Scully Grocery Company, 5317 Germantown avenue. He was widely known in Germantown and word of his death caused general regret among those he had formerly served and among the members of the West Side Presbyterian Church of Germantown, of which he was a member.

A brother, R. J. Fleming, twenty-two years old, was drafted last week and is now at Camp Wadsworth, Spartanburg, S. C. Besides this brother, two other brothers and two sisters survive young Fleming, in addition to his parents.

Sergeant Samuel Geller, killed in action, lived with his brother, Henry Geller, at 1226 South Third street. He was drafted last September, trained at Camp Meade and sent abroad in May of this year. A letter received from him a few weeks ago stated that his regiment expected to get into action soon.

Private Frank Joseph O'Connor, wounded in action in thirty-two years old, and lived with his parents at 41 North Hobart street. He is the eldest of twelve children. He was drafted in September, 1917, and was trained at Camp Meade, being assigned to the 19th Infantry. Later he was transferred to Camp Hancock, Ga., and from there sent to France. Two brothers, William and Lawrence, are also in the service. William has been in the regular army for five years, and is stationed at Fort Sill, Okla. Lawrence was drafted, trained at Camp Meade and sent to France in June of this year.

drafted last November, trained at Camp Meade, assigned to Company I, Fourth Infantry, and sent to France last spring.

William J. Woelfel, Jr., reported missing, lives with his parents at 2506 Meredith street. He was a member of the Second Regiment, Pennsylvania National Guard, later the Second Artillery, and served on the Mexican border. When his regiment was summoned for duty overseas and merged with other regiments to make the 130th Regiment of Infantry of the National Army, he was assigned to Company E. His regiment has been in France since April.

Talmage H. Moore, wounded in action, lived with his brother, John, at 336 North Fifty-sixth street. His mother, Mrs. Mordie Moore, lives at 2249 North Fifteenth street. He was not quite eighteen years old when he enlisted in the regular army on June 3, 1917. He was assigned to the Ninth Infantry and trained at Fort Meade, Md. He was sent abroad last September and he had had much experience of trench life. Only a week or so ago a letter was received from him in which he said that the trenches were not so bad as they were painted and he figured he would get back home safe and sound. Moore attended the public schools up to the eighth grade, then got a job with a chain grocery store in West Philadelphia.

Private Hartley was twenty-seven years old, the son of Richard Hartley, who lived at 1226 South Third street. He was drafted and sent to Camp Hancock, Ga., last September, and assigned to the 19th Infantry. He was home on a furlough four months ago and soon afterward went to France with the Twenty-eighth Division. He went into action July 15, the day the German offensive opened, according to word received by his parents, and fell the following day. His brother John is member of the Fifth Pioneer Regiment and
