LOWERING OF THE DRAFT AGE TO 18 WILL BOOST ALL COLLEGIATE SPORTS

Prospects for Football Even Better Than in 1917 Summer Work Presages Large Registration in All American Colleges

By ROBERT W. MAXWELL

TN ANOTHER month college football will take its place in the sporting world, and already there is some doubt that the game will be affected by the war. Some of our best little gloom dispensers are making dire predictions and croaking of a tough season, but as usual these persons are handing out the wrong dope. College football will be just as great as ever; in fact, we would not be surprised if it surpassed the season of 1917.

It must be remembered that the American public must have some diversion despite the war, and the principal means is watching some athletic sport. Baseball will be done after the world series and something must step in and take its place. That leaves the gate open for football, and although many of the stars are missing, there still are enough students in the various institutions to more than fill out the gridiron squads.

The lowering of the draft age limit to eighteen will help intercollegiate sports. This statement may seem far-fetched, but let's talk it over for a moment. There are many essential wartime professions being taught in the colleges. No matter how serious the war may be we still will need physicians, dentists, chemicis, civil and electrical engineers, and it is up to the young men to take up the work. If you visit any of the big universities throughout the country at present you will be surprised at the large enrollment. There are more students taking summer courses this year than ever before. A majority of these are fitting themselves for the task of helping Uncle Sam win the war and thousands have been sent there by their local draft boards to learn some of the wartime trades which have been added to the curriculum.

This summer work presages a large registration this fall. Hundreds of students who under ordinary conditions never would have a chance to attend college will have all expenses paid by Uncle Sam. These boys must be physically fit and will be ideal for football. No matter how hard a student studies, he must have some relaxation and football will give him all he needs. I firmly believe that there will be more candidates for the eleven this fall than in years.

BAN IS BIGGEST MAN IN GAME

American League President Has Increased Strength by Recent Attitude

If there is a reorganization of baseball the came is Ban Johnson. It is tr that he was not supported by the club owners in his stand to close down the American League on August 20. But that very fact is going to restore Ban to his former place in the baseball sun. . Johnson's attitude was that the Government gave the players until Septem-ber 1 to find essential employment, and that they should obey the mandate to the letter. The American public is out to win the war, and anything that is might be interpreted as a hindrance to the Government's plans or a disobedient act will not be tolerated. The result was that the American Lesgue became far stronger than pre-National in every way because it was ruled by one man. Johnson did not at tempt to run the American League for mere mercenary reasons. He tried and did give the public the best that was to be had in the way of sport. This the public has appreciated and it's appreciation ultimately is going to place Ban Johnson at the top, where he is likely to remain as long as he cares to reign over the national pastime.
