Continued from Page One facts of the bombs dropped. A great deal of traffic has been reported passing over the Alene bridges, and the French and Americans increased the fire of their heavy guns in an attempt to destroy as many bridges as possible...

Sketches of the Heroes Private William C. Kluth, killed in action, was only nineteen years old when he enlisted in the old Third Regiment, N. G. P., in June, 1916. He served through the Mexican border campaign, and when the regiment returned to Philadelphia he stuck with the colors, being in the company ordered to Silver Lake, Pa., near Pittsburgh, for guard duty.

Missing Man's Mother Wives Private Harry Atlas, reported missing, lived with his mother, Mrs. Atlas, at 457 North Sixth street. He was drafted last fall, trained at Camp Meade and later at Camp Hancock and went to France in May of this year. He was twenty-two years old. His younger brother, Abe Atlas, was drafted in July last, leaving Mrs. Atlas, who is a widow, alone in the world.

Private Leslie H. Crabtree, reported missing, was drafted April 6 this year, and sent to Camp Meade. He made such rapid progress that when twenty-five men were needed to fill a company in the 109th Infantry, to be sent to France in May, young Crabtree was among those chosen.

Private Benjamin Sandlow, twenty years old, 1238 Mechanic street, Camden, reported severely wounded, is a member of the Twenty-eighth Division. He enlisted a year ago. His father and mother were born in Poland, but he was born in this country. He formerly worked with the Evansville & Leveson Wool Scouring Company. He has two brothers working in shipyards.

Captain Philip Mills lost his life while leading his men in battle on July 25. His death recalls that the first division of the National Army engaged in battle received its baptism of fire in the big push launched by Major General Pershing on July 26, 1918. The soldiers were the first to pass through England, where they were reviewed by King George and the notables of London.

Captain Mills commanded a company in the 38th Regiment of this division, which was attached to the Second Army Corps, under Major General Robert L. Bullard. Brigaded with this division, that corps is the Twenty-eighth Division, of the former National Guard regiments from Pennsylvania.

War Profiteers Hit Public Hard Continued from Page One war profiteering has been given Congress recently in compliance with a resolution passed by the House of Representatives. In citing certain industries or commercial classifications as containing the largest percentage of profiteers, the Treasury has said that it is clear that not all individual business is in these groups have gathered in swollen earnings...

Big Profits in Mining Despite high cost of labor and other factors entering into mining, the Treasury Department analysis shows that very few iron, copper or aluminum mines failed to make tremendous profits for their owners under the Government policy of stimulating production.

Head Food Profiteers Meat packers, four millers and cannery apparently stood at the top of the list of food profiteers, according to income reports. Farmers also made money heavily in the sale of their products, their returns have been analyzed to justify a general statement of their profits.
