

SUN SHIP CHIEFS BOIL PROTECTORS Inferior Material Delivered for Workmen's Homes Quickly Rejected MEN WELL CARED FOR Lunchrooms and Noon Recreation Planned—Drive for Labor Planned

That profiteers in building materials have attempted to foist inferior products upon the Sun Shipbuilding Company, of Chester, was revealed today when Colonel J. H. Brown, vice president of the North Chester Shipyard, asserted that many shipments of materials designed for the homes of ship workers have been rejected.

"We are building homes for the Sun Shipbuilding Company workers," said Colonel Brown, "and are insisting that nothing but the best material be placed in them. That much is due to the workers, and crookedness on the part of profiteers will not be tolerated for a minute. We have rejected many shipments of materials because they failed to measure up to standards."

Building houses for the army of workers employed at this big yard is one of the outstanding features of the company's activities. J. N. Pew, Jr., president of the company, believes that the only efficient worker is the happy worker, and to make a man really happy Mr. Pew believes it is necessary to give him a modern home.

A recent order from the Emergency Fleet Corporation directing that the Sun Shipbuilding Company to double its output has put officials of the yard on their toes in an effort to augment the force of workers.

C. J. Drennen, manager of the employment department, is making endeavors to recruit workers and will launch a big drive for skilled mechanics and laborers in a few days. A new commissary is being erected in the main yard of the company. Lunch counters are also being built and additional houses are under construction or use of men building their homes.

The big new cafeteria will accommodate more than 8000 men. There are two shifts and plenty of room is provided for each individual worker. The company purchased direct from the farms near Chester. During the lunch hours entertainments are held, such as musicals by the company band and local artists.

Boxing shows are staged twice a week. Swimming in the Delaware River is another noon-hour popular sport. Protection is given the swimmers, and as a result no deaths have occurred from drowning.

WHAT THE BOYS IN SHIPYARDS ARE DOING THE "CAMOUFLAGE CLUB" OF HOG ISLAND

Here is the squad of daubers who have been picked to give the Quistconck, the first ship launched at the big shipyard, her first coat of camouflage. See their paint pots and brushes, then study their countenances and see if they aren't fit to fool the Kaiser's U-boat skippers.
