

FROM SHELLS TO SHIPS W. GOGGINS CARRIES ON

Fired 4000 Shots Into Lines of Germans Before He Was Gas Victim

W. Goggins knew something of the great war, having fired more than 4000 shells into the German ranks. Of course, he was wounded and invalided out of the service. Now he is a hold-over at the Merchant Shipyard at Harrison.

He fought at Kemmel Hill, Belgium, in January, 1918, and also at Arrerieres, Plugetstreet Wood, Lynbrook Road, the Bluffs and Dieckebuch Lake, St. Eliot and the third battle of Ypres.

For seven months he held his own in the Ypres salient and fought on the Somme in August, September and October, besides taking part in the fight at Mesquet Farm. He was in at the capture of Courcellet, where the first British tanks were used in September, 1918. Goggins was wounded and gassed near Pozieres in October, 1918, after having fought for twenty-three hours at Courcellet with a gas mask on.

Goggins also did his bit in the Spanish-American War. He volunteered at the outbreak of hostilities in Company G, Twelfth New York Regiment, and was mustered out April 20, 1899. Re-enlisting at Baltimore, his birthplace, he served three years in the Philippines, taking part in nineteen engagements as a member of Company D, Twenty-second Infantry. He was honorably discharged at Angel Island, Cal., July 21, 1902.

He won medals from the United States and New York State for bravery on the field, and also has a silver badge and bronze and gold buttons from the British and Canadian Governments for service in the present war. This hero is still doing his best bit in the shipyard.

MEN OVER 45 FOR SHIP WORK

Plants Told to Give Preference to Those Above New Draft Age

Wherever possible shipyards will hire men over forty-five years of age to replace workers who will come within the age limits of the new draft.

An order to this effect will be flashed to every shipyard today by Charles Pies, general manager of the Emergency Fleet Corporation.

The order follows: "As far as possible you will replace workmen at present holding Emergency Fleet Exemptions with men available under the work-or-fight provisions of the new draft law."

Every precaution will be taken to prevent the shipyards from becoming a harbor of refuge for men in the new registration, said Mr. Pies.

REUNITED AFTER 30 YEARS Chums of Long Ago Meet Again at Bristol Shipyard

Charlie Brown and Michael Rogan, two old chums who had not seen each other for thirty years, came together at the Merchant Shipyard a few days ago.

Brown is about sixty and Rogan several years older. The last time they met was in Scranton, Pa. Both were at the information bureau in the yard when they surprised each other. Brown is working on hull No. 31 and Rogan on No. 3. Their nightly reunions are crowded with reminiscences of the long interval of thirty years.

A. H. Cooke, assistant general manager of the Merchant Shipyard at Harrison, is not only a production engineer, but a musician and vocalist. He is also a hard worker and at a recent testimonial dinner gave in his honor he presented with a small desk clock to remind him of quitting time.

Persons, better known as "Hector the Inspector," of the Merchant Shipyard, is to be married soon, but he will find that even a harem needs a harem in such an emergency.

Jim Jordan would rather work twelve hours than fight for the same pay. Jim is from Scranton, Pa., and was only recently taken on as a guard at the shipyard. A guard's shift is eight hours, while a watchman's is twelve. "Gimme the twelve," he said he after working eight hours for about a week. He was accompanied by a woman in a red dress.

Joe Prescott, a guard at the Chester Shipyard, lost a shirt and almost a thumb in a scuffle at the Upland baseball ground last Saturday. The Chester team played the Pusey & Jones nine and a detail of guards was sent out to keep order. One individual was notoriously high and Prescott spoke to him. The result was a scuffle and the guard thought it was all over when the "drunk" renewed the battle. Yesterday Prescott put in his bill for a new shirt.

Has anybody seen an army shirt with a little square hole in the left side? The Chester Shipyard sleuths are hunting for it. They Rhoads for when a guard at the shipyard, and he left the garment in the dormitory and when he went there to get it yesterday it was gone.

Charlie Perry, of the Chester Shipyard, will not be drafted into the army if his mother can help it. She already has two sons in Uncle Sam's fighting forces and is willing to contribute the third and last. "Remember, you're not to be drafted," she told Charlie as she handed him goodbyes yesterday morning just for the day. "You go and enlist like your two brothers did." This son promised he would do that if he got a chance. He is somewhere between eighteen and forty-five, but will not tell his exact age. One of his brothers, Horace, is a lieutenant who trained cadets at West Point for about nine months before going to France. The other brother, John Lee, is an older in the navy. This one is a stickler for regulations. "Every time he comes ashore he goes broke and somebody has to pay his way back to his ship," said Charlie, "but he has never yet told us even the name of the ship nor where it was, and we always have fun with him when it comes to the 'touch.' Not knowing where his ship is, of course we don't know how much he needs to get back and have to 'pony up' whatever he asks for." John L. has worked below as long as two months at a stretch without getting on deck once, yet he loves the life.

Miss Margaret Gay, of the Wetherill plant, Chester, leaves next Monday to go back to school teaching. She will still have time for a vacation.

Jimmie Pindilton, of the Wetherill office, is visiting a daughter at Stroudsburg.

Jimmie Mohrter, assistant to Charlie Morris, of the Sun Ship Company, has gone to Camp Dix for training, and is a happy man. He was rejected several times, but kept at it until accepted.

U-RAIDER WHO SANK LUSITANIA CAPTURED

French Patrol Boat Catches Arch-Fiend, Who Was Previously Reported Dead

By the Associated Press

Paris, Aug. 27.

Lieutenant Schwieger, the man who sank the Lusitania, has been captured by a French patrol boat in the Mediterranean, according to La Journal.

A large submarine, of which he was second in command, had just torpedoed a British steamship between Malta and Sicily. The German was waiting to see the vessel sink when two French patrol boats emerged from the fog and sank the U-boat. Of the crew of seventy-five only one officer and four men were rescued by the patrol boats.

While being taken to Toulon, the officer appeared ill at ease. When he thought no one was looking he tried to throw some papers overboard, but a sailor seized his arm. He refused to answer questions, but an examination of the papers explained his uneasiness. La Journal asks if the man who committed "the most vile, the most barbarous and the most cowardly action the annals of war" is merely to be sent to a prison camp.

A despatch from Toulon last Friday, which described the sinking of a German submarine in the Mediterranean by patrolboats, added that the mate of the submarine attempted to commit suicide when brought on board a rescue ship. The man appeared to be insane and was reported to have declared that the lost U-boat had torpedoed the Lusitania.

The German Admiralty, according to advices from London August 10, has admitted that Lieutenant Schwieger was killed when a U-boat that he commanded struck a mine in the North Sea. The despatch said that his death occurred in September, 1918.

Eat More BAKED Beans

EAT more baked beans. You'll see them recommended on every food conservation list.

Don't they look appetizing in their shining little dish, brown and flaky on top, just about bursting open with flavor? They're different from raw white beans.

"Cooked" tobacco is very different from "raw" tobacco, also—about ten times more appetizing. Try Lucky Strike Cigarette—it's toasted.
