

WAR LABOR MEN PARADE MONDAY

Shipbuilders and Munition
Men Plan Liberty
Statue Meeting

FIGHTERS WILL SPEAK

French and British Officers
Will Give Addresses Before
Patriotic Sing

Munition workers and shipbuilders will hold a parade and listen to addresses by French and British officers Monday morning, Labor Day, at the Statue of Liberty in South Penn Square.

The demonstration has been arranged by the ordinance department and is part of the movement of the Government to bring the workers in war industries to a greater realization of the importance of their labor.

Lieutenant F. J. Kersley, of the British army, and Lieutenant Robert J. Bagues, of the French army, will speak. They will tell the workers of the importance of maintaining high production records in ordnance work and shipbuilding.

The workers will parade to the statue. One part of the line, composed of shipbuilders, will form at 8 o'clock at Girard and Montgomery avenues. The munition workers will form at Broad and Jefferson streets, and the two columns will unite at Broad and Girard, where the parade will be met by the speakers and Sergeant B. Laskin, representing the ordinance department.

Speaking at 11:30
After joining the lines, the whole column will move down Broad street to South street and counter-march to the statue, where the speaking will take place at 11:30 o'clock.

Superintendent of Police Mills informed the ordinance department that the space between Chestnut street and the statue would be roped off so that traffic would not interfere with the exercise.

William Kelton, a union leader and member of the National Board of Defense, will be marshal of the parade and may preside at the meeting.

Lieutenant Kersley was wounded in action with the First Battalion, Rifle Brigade, in Flanders, last spring. He has been in service since 1914, when he enlisted in the British army. The lieutenant fought with the Americans who were brigaded with the British in Flanders last spring, and speaks loud praise for the gallantry of the Americans under fire.

Three Years at Front
Lieutenant Bagues has seen nearly three years of fighting and has been decorated for bravery. He was president of Bagues & Brothers, of Paris and New York, when the war began. Being in the reserve army, he promptly joined his regiment at the front of Belgium. He fought at the Meuse and later in the first battle of the Marne. He was commissioned in 1914 and put in charge of a machine-gun squad.

Florets showing what various unions are doing to produce war material will be in the parade. Every marcher will carry an American flag.

Airplanes will fly over the marchers, dropping literature urging support of the boys in the trenches.

The procession will be headed by Joseph Rich, of the American Federation of Labor; Edward Keenan, president of the Central Labor Union; James Potts, of the Iron Shipbuilders' Union; and Charles Scott, representing the Iron Shipbuilders' Union.

After the speaking there will be a Liberty Sing.

BROTHERS FALL SIDE BY SIDE

Lawlor Boys, in Army Hospital,
May Go Back Together

Lying on adjacent cots in a base hospital in France are Private William Lawlor and Joseph Lawlor, brothers, the former suffering from shell shock and the latter having been gassed. Both are doing well. William paid in a letter to their parents, who live at 5129 Columbia avenue.

The brothers enlisted on the same day in June last year, were assigned to the same regiment, the Fourth Infantry, Regular Army, placed in the same company and trained at the same training camp.

They fought always side by side and Joseph was injured by a shell which hit the assistance of the Marine Corps. He was taken to a hospital and later to a base hospital in France.

"I only hope they will recover in time to help finish the Dutchmen," said their father after reading William's letter.

The private William Lawlor lived at 1449 North Fifty-second street. He has a wife and one child. His wife received a letter from him August 23, in which he said that some of the treachery displayed by the enemy was "simply hell on earth." James Lawlor Jr., a brother, is now at Camp Meade and expects soon to sail for France.

CURB MARKET THROGGED

Women Attracted by Prices 20 Per Cent Below Retail Ones

Crowds attended the curb market in North College avenue, near Girard College, today, taking advantage of the prices, which were about 20 per cent below the prevailing retail figures.

The number of farmers was limited to thirty, but as one sold out another soon took his place. The market remained open until 3 o'clock, instead of closing at noon. This was in accordance with a request to the food administration by millworkers who are not paid until noon Saturday.

SOLDIER HUNTS PARENTS HERE

Harry Goldberg, Who Ran Away in 1914, Wants Them

Where are Private Harry Goldberg's parents?
The soldier in question ran away from his home in the city four years ago and is now anxious to get into communication with them. Goldberg is a member of Service Company No. 4, Jacksonville, Fla.

When he went away his family lived at 725 North Fourth street. His father is Louis Goldberg. The mother's name is Jennie Goldberg. A brother of the soldier, Nathan Goldberg, conducted a drug store at Thirty-second street and Susquehanna avenue.

There are two other boys in the family, Nathan and Hyman Goldberg. Workers of the home service section, American Red Cross, 1607 Walnut street, have made a futile search for them. They wish the parents to communicate with them or directly with the soldier in Florida.

The appeal of the soldier was forwarded to the city by a field secretary of the Red Cross.

PLAN 1,800,000 TONS SHIPPING IN 4 MONTHS

Schwab Announces Fleet Corporation's Program to Help the Boys Overseas

"One million eight hundred thousand tons of shipping in four months to get reinforcements and supplies and munitions to the boys 'over there'—and to help with the Kaiser!"

This constitutes the program to which the Emergency Fleet Corporation has set all its resources and energies, as it was laid down today by Charles M. Schwab, director general, and Charles F. Vreeland, vice president and assistant general manager, who are now en route home after a whirlwind tour of New England shipyards in motorcars.

At every stop these two master shipbuilders were greeted by workmen with great enthusiasm.

In numerous speeches Mr. Schwab urged the men employed in the shipyards not to let their efforts interfere with the work in hand. He told them they must stand together to win the war quickly.

At several meetings he addressed Mr. Schwab declared that in October the Fleet Corporation will be asked to put into commission as many ships as in the whole year before.

After visiting many wood shipyards in the New England States Vice President Vreeland said today he had decided the wood ship is a big factor in winning the war.

GIRL'S BODY UNCLAIMED

Mystery Surrounds Identity of Westville, N. J., Drowning Victim

A nineteen-year-old girl, drowned in Westville, N. J., last Sunday, will be buried in the potter's field at Paulsboro, N. J., Monday unless her relatives can be located within the next thirty-six hours.

The police have been trying for a week to find someone to identify the young woman. At the time of her death she was living in a lodging house at 2049 North Hope street, where she had given the name of Elizabeth Wood. However, she had confided that her real name was Lester.

The police have found that before going to the Hope street address she boarded at 622 North Sixth street, about a year ago she lived for a time at 1337 Brown street. At that house she told a lodger her mother was dead, that her father, a tailor, had married again, and that she had left home because of her stepmother. The girl's real name, according to this lodger, Walter Anderson, was Lester or Lester.

WILL DRAFT MEN TO HELP BOARDS

Clerical Work in New Registration to Be Done by Selectives

TASK TO BE HARD ONE

Special Training Will Be Given Them at Gettysburg Week From Today

Local draft boards, in receipt today of a new regulation permitting them to use selected men for clerical work in draft boards, are preparing to issue a call next week for a number of men to aid in the registration of all men in this city coming within the scope of the nation's new man-power bill.

Two hundred and twenty-five thousand men between the ages of eighteen and twenty-one and thirty-one and forty-five are expected to enroll in this city under the new law.

Warned by Major W. G. Murdock, State draft head, that "the next hundred days will be the hardest in draft history and will mean most to the American army," members of local boards are making elaborate preparations for the new registration.

Selective service men called to aid in the new registration will be sent to Gettysburg a week from today to undergo special training for the work. They will then be assigned to the various boards and probably will work until January 1, 1919, when they will be transferred to other military duties.

The pay of the men will be $42.50 a month, which includes the regular private's salary of $30 per month, $15 for quarters, $5 for light and heat and $17.50 for subsistence. Their hours will be from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m., with an hour off for lunch and freedom every Sunday.

The Emergency Fleet Corporation will be hard hit by the new draft, in the opinion of Major Murdock. He says it is probable the men physically fit and without dependents who have been working in shipyards will be placed in Class 1, subject to immediate call, and their places in the shipyard filled by men not eligible for service.

2500 GET COMMISSIONS

Large Class Graduated at Zachary Taylor Field Artillery School

By the Associated Press
Camp Zachary Taylor, Ky., Aug. 31.—In the eighty-five years from 1802 to 1887, the number of officers graduated from the Military Academy at West Point was not equal to the number of graduates to receive their commissions today at the field artillery central officers' training school here.

Included in the class of more than 2500 are men from every State in the Union. Among them are thirty-five negroes, the first in their race to be made officers at the field artillery training school.

Hundreds of candidates for commissions are active today at the school. Among the recent arrivals is Summer Gerard, son of the former American Ambassador to Germany.
