"Are You Looking for Somebody?"

It was an oldish man standing in the Courtvard of the Store, where the big eagle stands guard over the great organ, and he was gazing up to the galleries and staring with wondering eyes at the immensity of everything about him, when one of the floormen said to him politely: "Are you looking for somebody?" And this was his reply: "No, I am just looking around about and thinking what a fine place it is and how we, who worked in the old Grand Depot, helped to make

Continuing, he said: "I have great pride in it," and with tears in his eyes, added, "I was one of the first boys who worked here forty years ago, and I am glad to think how hard we all worked to make a great thing like this for Philadelphia."

It is with great thankfulness that many, still living, who worked for us come in to enjoy what has been wrought out by so many who have been faithful to the principles we sought to establish.

The Dearest Suits for Little Boys

Manly suits that are boyish enough to please the small wearer and picturesque enough to delight his mother's heart.

They are charmingly designed, many of them copies of suits the old masters used in their portraits, and others cut along the lines of the French artist and peasant smocks. And for little lads whose fancies are seagoing there are sailor suits and middies.

They come in pique, rep and chambray, and the Lord atleroy models have little velvet trousers and jackets.
