SCHOOL CHILDREN TO AID NEW LOAN

Will Be Organized for Service in Fourth Liberty Campaign

EAGER TO SHARE WORK

"Doubt if We Could Keep Them Out," Says Associate Superintendent Nusbaum

ONE-DAY LIBERTY LOAN Future Liberty Loans will be floated

a single day. This is the prediction of John H. Mason, president of the Commercial Trust Company.

Speaking at a dinner of the fourth Liberty Loan committee of the Real Estate Board, in the Bellevne-Stratford last night, he prophested the fifth loan would be disposed of in a week, the sixth in forty-eight hours and the seventh in one day.

"When thirteen million men register for the draft in a day," he said, "it is not too much to hope that before long millions of patriots will step up and in one day take their quota of Liberty Bonds."

School children of Philadelphia will be organized for Liberty Loan campaign work similar to that done during the third loan, despite the adverse sentiment of most members of the Pennsylvania women's Liberty Loan committee, expressed in the conference yesterday.

"The children have done splendid work in three loans, and I doubt seriwork in three loans, and I doubt seriously if we could keep them out of this if we tried," said Louis Nusbaum, associate superintendent of schools, in charge of the organization of the school children. "They are just as patriotic and eager to do their share as the adults, and they feel they are actually doing something tangible for their country in getting Liberty Loan subscriptions. Of the $15,593,430 worth of subscriptions turned in by school children scriptions turned in by school children in the last loan, $12,500,000 were ob-tained by grade school children." While there was no motion or regu-

While there was no motion or regulation made on the question at the conference of State Liberty Loan women workers, it was the general opinion of all those who discussed it that the children's work caused more or less confusion. The greatest complaint was the duplication of effort. Children, the women complained, went promiscuously to business houses or homes to solicit. to business houses or homes to solicit. Then when the adult committee mem-tained many subscriptions. Then there are both men and women who give more gladly and generously to children.

"As to confusion in the turning in of reports from the children and lost subscriptions, I am sure there was no such complaint in Philadelphia. I consuited several bankers on the question just recently. While many of the people who subscribed last time failed to lift their bonds, they said the larger per cent of these were among subscriptions turned in by adults. Children in Philadelphia were instructed to take no money whatever in the Liberty Loan campaign. They merely obtained the subscription and turned in to their teacher or principal the signed subscription blanks."

Mrs. E. T. Stotesbury has been named chairman of the public schools committee of the women's Liberty Loan campaign committee, and she has as her aides Dr. Lucy L. Wilson, principal of the Kensington High School for Girls; Miss Margaret McGuire, principal of the McCall School; Dr. Maud B. Mansche, principal of the West Philadelphia High School for Girls, and Miss Helen Fleisher.

Soldiers to Launch Drive Soldiers from Camp Meade will launch the fourth Liberty Loan drive in this city one week from Saturday.

A battalion of the khaki-clad youths from the Lafayette Division—about 1200 in all—will parade on the opening day cial train from the big Maryland can-cial train from the big Maryland cantonment:

Announcement by E. P. Passmore, governor of the Third Federal Reserve District, that questionnaires would not be submitted householders in connection with the loan drive was followed by another at Liberty Loan headquarters to the effect that a nation-wide crusade by the Government is now under way to suppress bond profiteers. Agents of the Department of Justice are gradually driving these profiteers out of business, it was stated.

A feature of the campaign will be a contest for the naming of ten American armored tanks. The ten counties having the largest percentage of subscriptions will be given the honor.

"Bovery patriotic man and woman in Pennsylvania will enter into this competition," said Richard E. Norton. "It will be a matter of pride with us to see that the first tank is named 'Philadel-

that the first tank is named Philadel

Phia."

Every citizen is asked to subscribe a certain percentage of his income to the purchase of bonds. Thus a man or woman without dependents who ears $20 to $25 a week is asked to pledge $150. If they have one dependent they are expected to buy a $100 bond, and if more than one a $50 bond.

"When you buy bonds, remember the money will never pass out of this district," asid a member of the committee. The Government is expending right for war purposes more than all

With Emergency Ald aides acting as shers, Girl Scouts directing traffic and amittees of women handling most of he side attractions, there was a distinctly feminine touch to the opening session of the second Bryn Mawr War Horse Show a the Bryn Mawr Polo Club

The military touch was also much in evidence with the Allied flags waving in the breeze, British, French and American army officers acting as judges and a squadron of rough riders from Camp Dix providing the big thrill of the exhi-

True to tradition, the first day weather was perfect, after a damp and foggy dawn, and the crowd was really worthy of the name—a very unusual thing for the curtain-raiser.

Things ran off like clockwork, thanks to the combined efforts of the executive committee and its many able assistants.
R. Penn Smith, who had begged off the job of master of ceremonies, held by him at this show for many, many years, found the urge too strong, and was on hand bright and early.

He was immediately pressed into service in a sort of ex-officio capacity. Mr. Smith has recently bought a new farm near Unionville, which he has named Penn Manor, and has been so busy fixing up the place he figured he would not have time to spare for this show. When the time came he just couldn't stay away, as he put it, and, besides showing up himself, he brought a fine string of race with him.

This war horse show is a bit different from its peace-time predecessors, in that it has many "added attractions" to actach the pennies of the spectators.

Candy, toys, smokes and a cafeteria were among them. Incidentally a dog is also on top, held in a tent not far from
