DAMAGED PROBOSCIS KEARNS' REWARD FOR "SHOWING" DEMPSEY

Famous Leader of Fighters to Australia and Discoverer of Late Les Darcy Once Attempted to Give Present Protege Boxing Lesson, With Sad Result

By ROBERT W. MAXWELL Sports Editor Evening Public Ledger

JACK KEARNS, manager of Jack Dempsey, is a very wise person, but even the wise guys make mistakes. Jack once attempted to teach Dempsey some of the finer points of the fist game "just for fun," but the coast heavyweight couldn't see the joke and pushed his manager's nose out of place.

Kearns is well known in boxing circles, having stepped into the limelight long before Dempsey was heard of. He is the real discoverer of Les Darcy and signed him to a contract in Australia three years ago.

"The first I ever heard of Darcy," said Kearns, "was when I visited Australia in 1914 with my stable of fighters. I had Eddie McGoorty, Jimmy Clabby, Billy Murray, Red Watson, Joe Bonis and Billy Kramer, and was anxious to keep them busy. Darcy was going good then, having cleaned up everything on the continent and stood in a class by himself.

"I watched Les carefully and noticed he was not a showy fighter, but very consistent. He went at the same speed for twenty rounds and never let up. However, I believed a clever boy could outfight him, so I matched him with McGoorty. Eddie did well for fifteen rounds, when Les copped him on the chin and it was curtains.

"I tried him again with Murray, and this time Billy took the long count in the sixth round. After that I was convinced Darcy was a regular brawler.

Scarcity of Opponents Made Darcy's Earnings Small

In a short time I learned that Les was not making big money in Australia, although he was the idol of the nation. There were no opponents and the only time he boxed was when some American appeared on the scene.

"I had several talks with Darcy and found him a big boy, anxious to make enough money to keep his mother and father free from financial worry. I told him about the boxing clubs in America and how a good fighter could make a fortune in a year, and this made quite an impression.

"I told him I was managing McGoorty, but he said he didn't mind, so I went to West Maitland, Darcy's home, where the contract was signed by Les and his father and mother, as the boy was not yet of age. That placed me in a peculiar position, so I left Australia before the bout, as promised to leave on the next boat.

"Before I left, however, I got passports for Darcy and myself from the authorities. There was no trouble, but Les was supposed to return in six months and enter the service. This he promised to do. However, there was a big stir when it was learned that the boxing idol intended to go to the United States, and sentiment was so strong against it that the passport was revoked. Les was called a slacker for even thinking of going away and he was ridiculed on the streets.

"He didn't care very much about the war and this treatment caused him to leave the country as a stowaway. He intended, however, to return and do his bit.

Kearns Didn't Approve of Darcy's Exit

Now the real man I want to make," resumed Kearns, "is that I was Darcy's point man, the man who discovered him, but did not approve of the way he left Australia. I wanted him to depart in the regular way and had nothing to do with his stowing away on that tramp steamer. The first I heard of him was after I had reached Frisco, when he sent me a wireless stating he was on the Hattie Luckenbach and headed for Panama. He said he was accompanied by Tim O'Sullivan, a rubber and paper man at Australian fight clubs.

"The rest of the story you probably know. He left Panama on the ship, one of the oil tankers, and eventually arrived in New York, where he was met by all of the windy promoters, who promised him all of the stage money in the world. Darcy's head was turned, he refused to honor my contract and hooked up with Tex Rickard. That was a big mistake, for Tex was not as popular as he thought and had no chance to put anything over. He messed things terribly and Les, after being knocked from pillar to post, finally enlisted in the aviation corps. Then he was taken ill and died in Memphis.

"I am one of the few in this country who has seen Darcy in action, and with all due respect to him and his memory he was not the thunderbolt they said he was. Mike Gibbons would have given him lots of trouble and the clever middleweights would have had no difficulty in lasting six or ten rounds. Les was a consistent fighter, who kept after his man from start to finish. He was not very clever, but packed a good wallop and could knock out any one he hit fairly. He would have made lots of money here had Rickard kept out of it, but I doubt if he would have lasted more than a year. Some one would have knocked him out.

"I believe Jack Dempsey is three times as good as Darcy ever was, for he has speed and cleverness, and in addition hits harder than any man I ever have seen. Jack is by far the better man in every way.

Dempsey Preferred Shipyard to Boxing

Did you ever hear how I got Dempsey? It was two years ago, when Jack was working in a shipyard in Oakland, Cal. He was disgusted with the boxing game and satisfied with his $5 a day. I told him I could get him some work in the clubs and after a time he consented to try again. I had difficulty in getting $20 for him in the first bout, but he knocked out his man, and after flooring a few others it was easy sailing.

"Dempsey is a great fighter and reminds one of old John L. when he was knocking 'em stiff in the old days. Why, in Jack's last twenty battles only two men—Meehan and Miske—stayed the limit! Most of his opponents went out in the first couple of rounds, and the one who lingered longest was Bill Brennan. That was a tough fight, and Bill gave Jack his toughest battle until he took the count in the sixth. Brennan hasn't boxed since.

"What do I think of the Levinsky bout? Why, I believe Dempsey will win by a knockout. I know the Battler never has taken the long count, but that's because he never has met Dempsey. Just wait and see."

Mike Gibbons Stated for Major's Commission

Football, baseball, track and other branches of sport have their stars well represented in official military and naval life. Many of these athletic performers have won commissions and thereafter rapid advancement. Only recently Von Koltitz, once of the Cincinnati Reds and Chicago White Sox, was promoted to the rank of major. But boxing has not been represented. Few of the knights of the ring have won commissions.

Now comes a report from St. Paul that Mike Gibbons, brilliant middleweight performer, is to be given the rank of major in the army. This is largely unofficial, but comes from a worthy source. This honor is to be conferred upon Gibbons in recognition of his services as boxing instructor at Camp Dodge and Camp Gordon.

Mike Gibbons has not engaged in a professional ring battle since he started his duties one year ago as boxing instructor. He has worked hard with the service men and made good.

REAPERS, the lanky Australian cyclist, is a great booster for the Liberty Loan drive. Yesterday when he won the world's championship cycling derby at Newark he was handed $400 in cash. Spears then offered to add $500 to his purse and purchased a $1000 Liberty Bond from the Green men who mingled with the crowd, selling Liberty Bonds.

Laurel, Md., Sept. 28.—But little work here and there remains to be finished before the beautiful racing plant of the Maryland State Fair is in tiptop order for the annual October run of racing.

Always keen to make things as attractive as possible, General Manager Winn has overlooked nothing to make the local plant as pretty as good taste and expert workmanship could make it.

Horsemens Pleased

Horsemens are pleased with the excellent condition of the track, and those who were yesterday declared it was just as fast as Saratoga, where records one after another fell by the wayside during the summer months.

In places the track has been raised six feet, and under the supervision of Frank McGoorty, who has been in charge since the start of the season, it will be amazingly fast on the inaugural day—that is, if the weather continues fair. The drainage system is well nigh perfect.

While the bulk of the work probably has been centered on the track proper, the infield where the steeplechase will do battle has not been neglected in the slightest. The jumping game at Laurel Park next month is sure to be the best since this popular branch of thoroughbred racing was introduced here.

To Hold Two Fictures

A glance at the nominations in the cross-country feature, the Royal Rius and Chevy Chase, reveals the fact that the very best fencers in the land will be here for the competition over timber during the twenty-seven days.

The overnight, too, will be filled by a class of leapers above the average, and steeplechasing will have finally come into its own during the approaching October campaign of the Maryland State Fair, which with the special feature virtually arranged, will collapse that brilliant one of last fall, which marked an epoch in the history of racing in Maryland.

Judging from the early interest the forthcoming event has evoked in the past, the daily riders of last year, which were the largest since Laurel Park was placed on the racing calendar, will be sent into oblivion.

The great fall sport is on. Wartime football has started and before long this thrilling game will be on in front. It remained for the army to start the season right. The powerful cadet eleven engaged the Mich. Field aviators, an eleven made up of former college stars.

The stars of other seasons who remain stood on prominently. Vidal, former western headliner and running mate of Oliphant at West Point in 1914, was a very important factor in the army's win. Norman, a former University of Chicago halfback, and Philson, ex-Notre Dame star, played brilliantly for the defeated aviators.

When the great Lakes naval training station team met Iowa, it was Paddy Driscoll, one-time Northwestern headliner, who played the strong sailors to victory. Gibbs and Bahan, veteran athletes, were washed into the line-up in time to enable Notre Dame to beat Case, a Chicago halfback, and Philson, ex-Notre Dame star, played brilliantly for the defeated aviators.

Out on Franklin Field Coach Bob Folwell sent his proteges through a long scrimmage. Only one touchdown was made, this by that pro-shattering back of last season, Joe Straus. Penn has a bunch of promising material and the squad that worked out Saturday looked very good. They know football and played the game like veterans.

Butlers showed that it possesses a team worthy of respect. With many of last year's team in the line-up the New Brunswick aggregation battered the light Ureins team and won, by 6 to 0.

In preparatory school ranks Coach Alie Miller's Toms School eleven opened by trouncing Cheltenham High. The former Penn captain has some excellent material on his Post Deposit squad.

Now that the lid is off the coming weeks are certain to witness some very big gridiron sessions.

TO REVISE SCHEDULES Western Conference May Lengthen Season to Stage Games

Chicago, Sept. 30.—Revision of football schedules at colleges in the Big Ten conference was begun today in accordance with the ruling of the War Department which permits no games during the month of October where teams must be away from home overnight.

While it will be necessary to cancel a number of the October games, it was said that there is a possibility of lengthening the season so that some of the may be played on Thanksgiving Day and the Saturday following.

The new ruling of the War Department will not affect the game scheduled for November 9, between the University of Michigan and the University of Chicago, old-time rivals as two games are allowed in that month when teams may remain away from home from Friday to Sunday.

Michigan and Chicago have not met on the gridiron since 1905, but football followers declare that the rivalry which existed for many years has not diminished on account of the break of thirteen years in the relations of the two schools.

DRYDOCKS DOUBLE WINNER Baltimore Team Easily Defeats Lebanon Steel Men

Baltimore, Sept. 29.—The Baltimore Drydocks defeated the Lebanon, Pa. club of the Bethlehem Steel League yesterday at Oriole park in a doubleheader, before 9000 fans, by the scores of 6 to 5 and 4 to 2. Dave Danforth was on the mound for the Drydocks in the opener and, while hit hard and a trifle wild, pitched himself out of some tight places.

SHAWNEE TOURNEY DRAWS LARGE ENTRY OF PHILA. GOLFERS

Star Field to Compete in Fall Benefit Play in Aid of Sun Tobacco Fund

STARTS ON THURSDAY

PHILADELPHIA will be well represented in the annual fall golf tournament of the Shawnee Country Club which will begin on Thursday, October 3 with the qualifying round. The proceeds will go to the Sun tobacco fund and the entrance fee will be $2. In addition, contributions to the fund will be made by the fund which has supplied hundreds of thousands of our supplies and tobacco with smokes.

A suitable commemorative medal will be given to the player having the lowest score in the qualifying round and to the winner and runner-up of the various divisions. If any Philadelphia golfer has not sent in his entry he should send it immediately to R. S. Worthington, secretary, Shawnee-on-Belwaters, Pa.

Really Fine Test of Golf

If you have ever played over the very fine course at Shawnee it is not necessary to say anything about the links, but if you have not you have a great treat awaiting you. There is not another course in the country that has a more beautiful setting than Shawnee. Few courses are better planned and you will not find a near hole on the course. The greens and fairways are beyond criticism and the fair play of the links is nothing more delightful than playing over the beautiful eighteen hole links four or five miles from the Water Works.

Five holes surround the Brookwood Inn, which is the center of everything at Shawnee, while the other twelve holes are on the island made by the Delaware River and the Binnickill. If the Binnickill is not known to the average staid citizen who takes little or no interest in outdoor recreation, it will be difficult to find a golfer who has not heard of the famous Binnickill hole at Shawnee. It is about 125 yards in length and from the tee to the green there is nothing but the placid waters of the Delaware. It is unquestionably one of the finest mental hazards in the country and it has to be played to be appreciated.

The Famous Binnickill

There are three other one-shot holes and all are good, but the best is the sixteenth, and more beyond criticism, and the most difficult to play. It is a hole that has been dropped into the country by any other water hazard in the country. But there is always a caddy who is willing to wade to his arm and to recover the ball, so the stream does not exact much toll other than penalty strokes.

The two-shot holes are finely laid out, and possibly the finest of the lot is the fifth, or the first hole that has been dropped into the country by any other water hazard in the country. But there is always a caddy who is willing to wade to his arm and to recover the ball, so the stream does not exact much toll other than penalty strokes.

Philadelphia has always sent a large entry list to the various golf tournaments at Shawnee, and the Quaker City players will be represented this week by a large entry list. You will miss much of the pleasure of fall golf if you fail to send your entry list to the Shawnee tournament.

Drawings for the preliminary and second round proper in the National Cup were held at the Hotel Bellevue on Saturday, Sept. 28, at 8 o'clock. The winners of the preliminary round were: W. C. Corcoran, 1st; J. H. Egan, 2nd; J. H. Egan, 3rd; J. H. Egan, 4th.

SOLDIER BARTFIELD

O'Hagen, a harmless-looking individual from New York, was the opposition and put on the surprise act. He completely outfoxed the veteran George which isn't much of a task, but he also proved that he could punch, and landed some stinging blows that Chip, O'Hagen was the winner.

For the first four rounds O'Hagen battered Chip with his speed, and in the clinches easily checked his man. The New Yorker had a fast left and a finishing right-hand punch. He used his right with effect to the body, usually stepping in under Chip's swings. O'Hagen made good in his debut here.

Mike U'rine substituted for Battling Kopin, and lost to Tommy Ferguson. The veteran upstate boy trounced his man for four rounds, but weakened toward the finish. Despite the weak finale, Ferguson was the winner. Joe Mendell fought so well that he forced Frank Rice to quit in the sixth.

In the other bouts Joe Renolds beat Joe Augalis and Billy Cannon stopped Patsy Bradley in the fourth round.

Was Williamson, claimant of the lightweight championship of the United States, has been matched to meet Al Moore, the fighting champion of the United States, in a doubleheader, before 9000 fans, by the scores of 6 to 5 and 4 to 2. Dave Danforth was on the mound for the Drydocks in the opener and, while hit hard and a trifle wild, pitched himself out of some tight places.

Hares Thru, a former Kansas City lightweight, met John Dundee at the Olympia on Monday night. There was supposed to be a doubleheader, but as the Baltimore slugger boxes at the National A. A. Dundee was suggested as a probable opponent.

Battling Leonard and Mike Erie, of St. Paul, have been matched to appear at the Olympia A. A. on Monday night.

Frankie Rice, the Baltimore bantam, who was stopped by Al Mendell at the National A. A. last Saturday night, would like to get another crack at his conqueror.

Herman Hindin and Patsy Wallace have broken relations and hereafter Patsy will be handled by Harry Russell. Russell is anxious to match the local bantam with all leading bantams in the country. Joe Bauer, Joe Herman and Patsy Herman are offered.

Sammy Schiff, the Harrisburg bantam, recently administered an article also round leading in Frank Rice of this city, at Harrisburg. Schiff showed that he carries a shoddy punch when he dropped the local bantam, but he was not able to start on his last round, but couldn't finish him.
