

THE LADY'S LUGGAGE IS IN THE WAY OF A SHIPMENT OF SHELLS, WHICH MUST WAIT?

SUITCASES, PERSHING GUNS AND A RUFFLED YOUNG LADY

In Which the Young Lady Learns Just Why Luggage Expressed Three Weeks Ago Did Not Come—A Twelve-Ton Shipment of Shells Figures In, Too

A READER sums up so entirely to the point the whyfore of the present baggage situation that we withdraw with pleasure to allow her full sway of this column today.

Yesterday an indignant young woman stalked down the long platform of a depot of the American Express Company in search of justice and a lost suitcase.

And this question does the returning information that nothing matters to the express company unless it can help win the war.

PLEASE TELL ME WHAT TO DO

By CYNTHIA

From Our Westerner

Dear Cynthia—May I say a few words to you about your letter of the 29th? I am glad to hear that you are so interested in the war.

It will interest readers to know that a student soldier at the University of Pennsylvania has volunteered to help in the war.

Micawber Has a New Name Dear Cynthia—"Micawber" is a name that is used in the "Pickwick Papers."

Why say "Yes" when you mean "No" and vice versa? That is an foolish! Friends may hurt, but it is final and sure.

Discouraged by Encouraging Dear Cynthia—I have discouraged a boy by sending him letters and calling him on the phone.

This is a decidedly elegant velvet suit. One of its features is the puncting in the skirt of the coat. Gray squirrel fur the trimming.

A Maid and Two Men The Story of the Girl Who Was Left Behind By HAZEL DEVO BATHKLOP Copyright, 1918, by Public Ledger Co.

"JACK, dear," the words started up at Ruth from the smooth sheet of paper. She had begun her letter to Jack, and after those two words had wondered vaguely what to write next.

"This you know that I ought to be very angry with you for treating me as you have," she wrote breathlessly. "Didn't you imagine I would wonder where you had gone and why you hadn't said a thing?"

Ruth's heart had never been so bitterly jealous as it was when she entered the gorgeous apartment house lobby and went up in the elevator. The maid had scarcely admitted her, however, when Ruth glanced into the living room.
