It has been found on examination that many accidental injuries not connected with operations at the front are included in the first lot of names. The lists are now being checked and will soon be ready for issue to the press.

Gain 14 Miles in Three Days Describing the operations at the front during the last few days, General March said the Anglo-American drive between St. Quentin and Cambrai had shaken the enemy's resistance and resulted in at least temporary disorganization in the German ranks. On the first day the whole front of attack was swept forward an average depth of three miles, followed on Wednesday by a six-mile drive on a thirty-five-mile front, with the French troops carrying the southern

Spirit of Liberty to Stand Above That of Militarism. Declares Secretary

Auburn, Oct. 11. Secretary of State Lansing, in a speech here declared that lasting peace mannet come "while the beast control-ling the peoples of the Central Powers is still at large." The Secretary of State warned his audience, however, that when the "day of wrath" dawns America must discriminate between the military rulers of the Feuronic nations and the slavish people, who have been driven to the battlefield.
