

JUST GOSSIP ABOUT PEOPLE

Nancy Wynne Comments on the Death of Mrs. Beggs. E. A. A.'s Working as Nurses' Aides in Hospitals—Other Subjects

POOR Mr. and Mrs. Earle and Ensign Lee and Lawrence Beggs! Isn't it all a dreadful tragedy? Somehow I can't think of anything else but those two beautiful sisters so full of life, so fair, so beautiful, dying so young and leaving little children to grow up without a mother's love. For no matter how many people love us there's no love to take the place of the mother's especially when one is growing up. It takes faith indeed, to realize it is for the best, as we know it is.

wold, their place at Radnor, before returning to their town house, 2112 Walnut street. The marriage of Miss Mary Elizabeth Gibb, daughter of Mrs. Joseph Gibb, of Overbrook, and Mr. Joseph S. Clark will take place at 6 o'clock on Wednesday, October 23, in St. Paul's Memorial Episcopal Church, Overbrook.

I HEAR there are seven members of the Beale family at Stratford down with the influenza, Hope and Tony Cromwell among them. Tony is Mrs. Stotesbury's son you know and is in the Navy. He married Hope Beale. I understand there are no serious cases there however, but the fact that seven are down means some problem for nurses' and doctors' attention.

Owing to the order of the Board of Health, the wedding of Miss Esther Hill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Preston Hill, of 338 North Lansdowne avenue, Lansdowne, and Mr. Solberg H. Harter, of Mr. Alverno, Pa., took place at 12 o'clock this morning in the presence of the families only.

JIM WALKER'S death at the Bryn Mawr hospital on Thursday morning was very sad. I know of few men who were better liked than he. He had been ill with influenza from Saturday, but the hospital was so full he was unable to get into one before Tuesday night. Pneumonia set in and he died early on Thursday morning.

Mrs. John Richard Peterson, Jr., of Chestnut and Forty-fifth streets, and Miss Edna Peterson, of New York, are visiting at the Hotel Traymore, Atlantic City. Mrs. Peterson, who is the wife of Lieutenant Commander Peterson, U. S. N., will return to this city on Monday.

ONES sympathy goes out to Mr. and Mrs. David Paul Brown in the death of their lovely daughter Caroline. She was taken ill shortly after the Liberty Loan parade on September 28, when she walked with the other members of the National League for Women's Service. Her illness proved to be influenza, from which double pneumonia developed, and after a painful and trying illness she died last yesterday.

The members of the Murdoch Shakespeare Club of the Alumnae Associations of the Girls' High and Normal Schools will hold their meetings during the coming season in the Alumnae room, 502 Kitchener Building, on Tuesdays at 2:30 o'clock. "Henry VIII" and "As You Like It" will be studied.

THE Emergency Aid Aides who went into training for a three months course at the Episcopal Hospital were to finish next week, but one and all have they turned in and offered their services in the present crisis at the hospital and they are doing splendid work. Dorothy Blair of Edgewood Park is in charge of the little band which includes Natalie Davis, Mary Forcher, Gladys Muller, Virginia Maxwell, Edith Dawson, Doris Dexter, Doris Garvin and Mrs. J. W. Haggerty. The class started in July and the girls have done splendid work.

Miss Margaret Berwind, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Berwind, who has returned from Atlantic City and with her mother is spending some time at Weirwood, their home in Radnor.

I WAS so sorry to read in yesterday's casualty list the death from wounds of Lieutenant Frederick Pritchett of Wynnefield. "Ted" as he was affectionately named by his family and friends. I understand it is an unofficial report and one cannot help holding on to the hope that it is only a report. He and Mrs. Pritchett were one of the most ideally happy couples I know, and my heart goes out to her in her anxiety and sorrow over this news.

Miss Margaret Berwind, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Berwind, who has returned from Atlantic City and with her mother is spending some time at Weirwood, their home in Radnor.

Did you know that Mrs. George D. Wetherill has called off the invitations to the wedding of Ada and Karl Knipe to-day, on account of the Board of Health orders? Yes, it's true. The ceremony will be performed at Mrs. Wetherill's home in Bryn Mawr but instead of a large affair and a reception, there will be only the two immediate families present and the breakfast will be for them only, as no one feels that the risk of having a number of people together, should be run.

Did you ever read such a gloom as this column to-day? However I'll cheer you up with a little tale that came to my ears apropos of the grip.

Brother aged four was up stairs in bed. He was annoyed, but he said he had a tiny fever, but instead of a large affair and a reception, there will be only the two immediate families present and the breakfast will be for them only, as no one feels that the risk of having a number of people together, should be run.

LIBERTY BOND ARTISTS MAKING MASTERPIECES

Nothing Cheap or Slap-Dab About Noted Painters' Portraits of Subscribers

A truly extraordinary exhibition of work marks the close of the first week during which Philadelphia artists have been working at the Bellevue-Stratford for the Loan drive.

The interest which was taken first in the "free art" of the performance by the people who came to get a portrait sketch in oils, or charcoal, in two hours and a half, for a $1000 or $15,000 subscription to the Liberty Loan, soon changed into an amazement at the splendid quality of the work done.

A still more surprising recognition of its excellence has been the rapid increase in demands for these swift and skillful sketches. The greatest demands have been for portraits of the war heroes, and will, incidentally, represent $100,000 worth of Liberty Bonds.

Few of the artists have been able to keep to the steady strain of turning out a portrait a day. Leopold Seyffert and Lazar Baticz have been turned out eight portraits in one day, and a display of their work, to be seen now in the streets of the Latin Quarter on top of the Bellevue roof, is well worth a trip.

Among the work which has been finished so far are portraits of Harry Thayer and Miss Mabel Bice by Adolf Borie; of Horatio Lloyd's children, by Violet Oakley; of Edward G. Bremer, by Doctor McManis; of Charles A. Smith, by Harrison Kaner, Lewis Ketterling, Mrs. Carruth, John B. Stetson, 3d, and Ellis Gimbel, by Lazar Baticz; of Mrs. Harry Thayer, Mrs. W. W. Curtis, Mrs. Fred Bice, Mrs. Caleb Fox and Mrs. Harrison Smith, by Leonard Seyffert; drawings of Mrs. F. T. Chandler, Jr., Mrs. Anthony M. Gilmore and Archibald Eglin, by Josephine Stratfield; Mrs. Percy W. Chandler, by Harry Bittenberg; Miss Sue Conway, by Alice Kent Stoddard.

Jessie Wilcox Smith has contributed some charming studies of children, and Roman Susan an oil painting and a study in black and white.

Subscriptions amounting to not less than $25,000 and $50,000 a day have been taken in this remarkable colony begun in the most ingenious Latin Quarter estate, Miss Eleanor Chandler, of the artists' camp, and of the men searching for them, but they themselves were securely out of sight.

Dr. Tait McKenzie also has come forward with an offer to do a bust of any one who will sign for $20,000 to the fourth Liberty Loan drive.

DREAMLAND ADVENTURES

By DADDY "THE GIPSY CHARM"

CHAPTER VI The Flight in the Dark

PEGGY, now that she was free from the spell of the Gypsy's charm, was her old temperamental, somewhat self again. And so she was sorry that she had struck Viga with the dagger. She did not want to hurt any one that way, even in self-defense.

Then help came from an unexpected source. "Here! Here!" roared Judge Owl, appearing before them. He flung a long, slender, leading the way into a clump of big oaks, flushing after him, Peggy and Billy found themselves in a huge hollow tree.

"Up, here, quick!" cried Judge Owl and snug, high out of reach, and with a big opening in the tree in front of them so that they could look out upon the Gypsy camp.

Suddenly Viga sprang at Roland with knife uplifted. Roland caught the blade of the knife and, with a quick turn, he pressed it against the Gypsy's breast and bore the older man down upon it.

"Now I've got you! I'll show you who is supreme in this Gypsy band," shouted Viga. He lunged at Roland as if to finish him then and there. But Roland was ready for him. He jumped suddenly aside to avoid Viga's blow and caught the other's wrist in his hand.

"You have won, Roland. Viga's life is in your hands to take or to give." Roland looked at the queen. Then he spoke in a low voice. "Viga is old. Once he served the band well in leadership. Remembering that, I give him his life. But from this day forth Tizra rules alone. The Gypsy order is changed. No longer shall our band be child-stealers. We shall be free roamers of the road, as Gypsies have been for ages, but we shall live in peace."

Down from the tree clambered Peggy and Billy and then they ran and ran through the woods until they came to a wide road. There, to the north, was their home, the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel. "And here from the south comes your sister's automobile, Princess Peggy. Good night!"

"My, I'm glad I'm out from under that spell," he sighed. "I'd rather live things as they are than live in the false joy of the Gypsy's charm."

Plenty of Coal, Says Fuel Head. Householders who start fires now because of the influenza epidemic need not fear that they will run out of coal. The arrangement given by William Potter, State fuel administrator of Pennsylvania, after denying that any restrictions had been placed by the fuel administration upon the early lighting of fires, Mr. Potter said: "We are assured by the anthracite committee of the United States fuel administration, composed of the greatest experts in this industry, that the allotment of anthracite asked for by me will be given to the State to take care of all the domestic needs of its people."
