

AZIONISTI ARTIGLIERIA ALFRONTE ITALIANO

Intensa Bombardamenti si Sono Verificati Contro le Linee Nemiche

Published and distributed under PERMIT NO. 341 October 6, 1918, on file at the Post Office at Philadelphia, Pa. In order of the Postoffice.

Roma, 16 ottobre. Il ministro della Guerra ha fatto, oggi, la seguente comunicazione: "Lungo tutto il fronte la nostra artiglieria ha effettuato intensa concentrazione di fuoco sulle linee nemiche, sull'area retrostante e sopra trasporti lungo il Piave. Durante un attacco di sorpresa sull'altipiano di Asiago e sul Monte Asolone, furono fatti vari prigionieri. Lunedi' molti distaccamenti nemici tentarono per ben due volte attaccare le nostre posizioni a Monte Cornone, ma furono respinti con gravissime perdite.

Parigi, 16 ottobre. Il comitato indotto dal governo slovacco di Praga, protestando contro l'esportazione dalla Boemia dei generi alimentari, ha dato per rifiutato un'ulteriore generale di dogana. Il comitato di Praga, che gode di una grande popolarità qui, dice che il governo slovacco non accettera un aumento di dazio. La legge marziale e stata promulgata attraverso tutto il paese ed in tutte le truppe tedesche ed austriache sono le città di Praga, Pilsen, Piseck e Tabors.

Dispari dicono che il movimento rivoluzionario si estende in tutta la Russia e che comunisti, socialisti, verdi, socialisti a Bruno, in quest'ultima, si trovano a Khoda, ove, in quest'ultima, si trovano i lavori e sospeso.

Roma, 16 ottobre. In seguito alla cattura del porto e della città di Durazzo e' stato pubblicato il seguente comunicato: "Durazzo e' in nostro possesso. Dopo aver forzato durante il pomeriggio del giorno 13 ottobre le difese nemiche sulle rive del mare, i nostri aerei hanno successivamente penetrato nella città, catturando prigionieri e materiale.

Parigi, 16 ottobre. "Su all'impulso di Asiago i nostri reparti d'incursione penetrarono nelle linee del nostro avanzato nemico, e tornano a casa con un bottino di armi e munizioni."

GOSSIP OF THE STREET

TRADERS IGNORE PANIC IN BERLIN

So Far as Finance Is Concerned, Germany Has Ceased to Count Here

The financial district was not very much disturbed yesterday over the news that Berlin banking circles were in a panic over President Wilson's note.

As to Studebaker, another broker gave as the reason for the marked advance in that stock the prospect of an early peace. "Studebaker," he remarked, "is now a war stock, because they are manufacturing for the government and that the moment the war is over they have an accumulation of orders to fill that will keep them busy for two or three years at a profit far beyond that which they could expect to receive from the government, so that in reality Studebaker is a peace stock."

A layman asked a banker yesterday what was the best investment to make at the present time and got for an answer: "The best stock at present is any good bond." And of course the inference meant that the best bond is a Liberty Bond.

The German Feintheaters. "The barber across the street got a good one yesterday that started me up thinking," said a prominent banker. "We were talking about the fighting qualities of the Germans, when he said that collectively they are not very good fighters, but individually they are no good. Did I ever say one?"

"Yes," broke in the banker's partner, "but as clowns, acrobats and tumblers they are there everything."

Then someone remarked about the righteous indignation of the German over President Wilson's insincerity, and their beautifully sincere offer of peace which they were making under the gun. "Women and children. Bankers offices yesterday were given over between quotations to such discussions."

BUSINESS CAREER OF PETER FLINT

A Story of Salesmanship by Harold Whitehead

LISTEN to this, Francis, and then stick your chest out. I was reading a letter from Dad when I came across this paragraph:

"Thank Francis for that suggestion of his that I be a Kewpie doll. That candy that is 'talking.' Everybody's been clamoring for Kewpie candy with a ten-cent doll for fifty-nine cents, when they turned on their noses at it for forty-nine cents without the Kewpie. I'll try that plan again next week."

"Write to him, Peter, and tell him that you will do it. It is a good business that a stunt like that is good occasionally, but if used frequently it ceases to be a novelty and the masses appeal wears thin."

"I'll write today," I said, "but tell me, Francis, what made that candy sell when called 'Kewpie candy' when somebody else for less money with an appeal name I know it has sold, but why?"

"That's easy, boy. It's Mrs. Semper's. Francis bought it for his wife, and she bought it for her husband. We have breakfast with Mrs. Semper now—they are a dandy old couple."

"Very good, you know," he laughed. "If you can't get up an article that you want to sell to something that the public has accepted into its favor, you will generally accept that article as a novelty, and it will sell. People like them and buy them freely—the name Kewpie, therefore, makes them think of the Kewpie, and they buy it. It is a good business that a stunt like that is good occasionally, but if used frequently it ceases to be a novelty and the masses appeal wears thin."
