

WOUNDED IN BIG DRIVE

Son of Railroad Terminal Manager in Company That Lost Eighty Men

Lieutenant John C. Cleave, son of E. J. Cleave, terminal manager of the Philadelphia district, United States railroad administration, has been wounded in France.

Word of the young officer's injury has just been received by his father. No details were given, but it was assumed he was wounded during the attack on the fortified crest of Blanc Mont, in the terrific battle north of the crest of Rheims, west of Rheims, and in which the Second and Third Divisions distinguished themselves.

Lieutenant Cleave, whose home is at the Locust Apartments, Thirteenth and Spruce streets, was educated at Harvard School and at Harvard University.

When war was declared he was one of the first candidates admitted to the officers' training camp at Fort Niagara, and was awarded a commission as second lieutenant in the regular army.

After winning his gold bar he was sent to Gettysburg and assigned to the Seventh Infantry, being transferred later to the Fourth Machine-Gun Battalion. He sailed last Christmas with that unit for France. His next transfer was to Company M, of the Ninth Infantry, regular army.

In an attack on June 6 Company M lost eighty men, and in another engagement lost 176 men, killed and wounded. Lieutenant Cleave was the only officer left of the original group of six company officers who came into the sector on May 21.

BISHOP OLMSTEAD DIES

Colorado Prelate Was Former Rector of Bala Church

The Rev. Dr. Charles Sanford Olmstead, of Denver, bishop of the diocese of Colorado and former rector of St. Asaph's Episcopal Church, Bala, died on Monday night at his summer home in Saybrook, Conn.

While he was rector of the Bala church he was elected the third bishop of Colorado and was consecrated May 1, 1902. His rectorship at St. Asaph's began in 1896.

The bishop was born in Olmstedville, N. Y., February 8, 1853, attended St. Stephen's College, New York, and was graduated from the general Theological Seminary in 1876. He was ordained priest a year later, and before coming to Bala served as rector of churches in Morley and Cooperstown, N. Y.

His wife, who survives him, was Miss Mary M. Hunt, of Fort Edward, N. Y. Bishop Olmstead was the author of several essays and books.

"GOOD SAMARITAN" DIES

Capt. Lund to Lie Beside Friend for Whose Burial He Paid

The "Good Samaritan" who searched every underground establishment in the city until he found the body of his old friend is dead. He will be buried in American Mechanics' Cemetery beside the friend for whose burial he paid.

Captain A. F. Lund, skipper of a N. Y. tugboat, was the "Good Samaritan." Arriving here a week ago he learned that the body of Captain John Boggs had been washed ashore from his torpedoed ship. Lund finally found the body and was paying for a decent funeral when Mrs. Margaret Trimmer, 761 North Ringgold street, entered the undertaker's office and, with tears in her eyes, begged the undertaker to bury her husband. She had no money. Lund gave the woman $100 to pay the funeral expenses.

Then Captain Lund was stricken with influenza and died last night in a hospital, and his body was taken to the same undertaker who had prepared his friend for burial.

SWARTHMORE LAD CITED

Corporal Russell A. Yarnell Wears Croix de Guerre

Five Swarthmore freshmen are in the famous 117th Trench Mortar Battery, which has been cited three times for bravery in action.

This is the battery which was thrown in the path of the Germans in their last drive in the Champagne sector. All their shells were held by the crew at all costs. The story is told by Corporal Russell A. Yarnell, of Swarthmore, who won the Croix de Guerre and was severely wounded in a letter home.

Placed against these more heroic comrades were the Swarthmore freshmen. For six minutes the battery fought and captured the entire German division, and in those fateful six minutes the Germans receded. Lieutenant Yarnell started the drive that took them fifteen kilometers into the lines near the Germans.

While seven of the freshmen enlisted, it was felt that only five of them should arrive over there. Besides Yarnell, they were Sergeant Carl Michael, of Baltimore; Private George Holmes, of Atlantic City; Private John Mealy, of Baltimore; Lieutenant Clinton Walker, of York, Pa.; Pennimor Baker, of Baltimore; and March Elliott, of Minnesota, enlisted at the same time. A date decided that they should stay over here.

109TH GUNNERS ROUT FOE

Colonel's Report Records Former Third Artillery's Valor

After nearly a month in constant action in the Argonne forest, the 109th Artillery Regiment, formerly the old Third Artillery, National Guard of Pennsylvania, went back to the rest station with twenty-one dead and 123 wounded, among the latter being the commander, Colonel Asher Miner, and Lieutenant Colonel Olin P. Harvey, Jr.

The letter home tells the story of that heroic month when the regiment stuck manfully to its guns through some of the thickest concentrations of German shells and poured 25,000 rounds of high explosive shells into the enemy, as related by Colonel Miner himself, in a copy of his official report, just received by his wife.

HAROLD P. MOON DIES

Son of Former Congressman Was Prominent Attorney in This City

After an illness of more than a year, Harold Predmore Moon, a prominent attorney in the east of this city, died yesterday afternoon at his home at Noble on the Old York road. For fifteen years he had been a member of the Philadelphia Bar.

Mr. Moon was educated at the East-burton private school and at Swarthmore College, where he was reputed as an athlete. Later he entered the law school of the University of Pennsylvania, but finished his legal education in the school of the University of the Huntington Valley Club.

Besides his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Reuben B. Moon, of the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel, he is survived by his widow, Mrs. Attie B. Moon, and two children, Harold Predmore, Jr., and Attarista Bodine; also by one sister, Mrs. Clarence R. Musselman.

Mr. Moon is a descendant of a family prominent in the legal and educational affairs of both Commonwealths. His father, Reuben O. Moon, was nominated by the Republican party in 1893 to fill a vacancy from the fourth congressional district occasioned by the death of Robert H. Foerderer. He was elected, served several terms in the House of Representatives and was chairman of the Committee on Revision of the Laws.

BURSTING SHELLS CHARM COLONEL PUSEY AT FRONT

Delaware County Soldier, Who Enlisted With Son, Goes Into Thickest of Battle Just for the Thrill—Nearly Captured Once

VENTURING into the danger zone around the front-line trenches while a battle is raging is not considered in any way conducive to one's physical well being or longevity.

Yet Lieutenant Colonel Fred Taylor Pusey, chief quartermaster of the Twenty-eighth Division, United States Infantry, finds the experience thrilling and fascinating.

Colonel Pusey, attorney and former member of the State Legislature from Delaware County, enlisted with his son, Stuart O. Pusey, directly after the declaration of war. The latter is now a first lieutenant in the 108th Field Artillery and, according to recent dispatches from the war zone, has been cited for bravery under fire. He joined the colors at the age of eighteen, while a sophomore at Yale, where he matriculated after graduating from Hill School.

Although his post is one that guarantees almost absolute immunity from injury, Colonel Pusey has not been satisfied to remain in comparative safety behind the lines. He is ever in the thick of it, seeing that the men in the trenches are properly supplied with sufficient food and equipment. In so doing, he has several times exposed himself to injury from shells that burst almost at his feet and with four other officers was nearly captured on one occasion when he was captured near the enemy positions.

In a recent letter to his wife, Mrs. Nellie O. Pusey, who is staying at the Hiltop Hotel, he tells the story of his family return from overseas, Colonel Pusey writes:

"The big battle is still on. It is all wonderfully thrilling and fascinating, with the cannons roaring and shells whistling over one's head; machine guns crackling in the woods, airplane fights above and roads jammed with our moving artillery; trains of ammunition supplies and autos and ambulances returning with wounded and those who have not been picked up by ambulances being carried in on stretchers—on the shoulders of heroic prisoners on their way to a good rest."

Speaking of his experiences with exploding shells, Colonel Pusey says:

"The first day I had some hairbreadth escapes from high-explosive shells, one of which splashed dirt and leaves in my face and another threw a big jagged steel splinter into the side of the hill beside my bath, missing me by an inch or two; then, later, machine-gun bullets came knowingly close and one fellow few feet away got three of them, which finished him."

Colonel Pusey has an honorable military record of many years. For twenty years he was adjutant of the old Second Regiment under Colonel Bowman and saw active service during the Spanish-American War. He has been on the military staffs of three State executives, Governors Pennypacker, Stuart and Brumbaugh. He resigned about a year ago following the Mexican border uprising, but re-enlisted in April, 1917, when the President called for volunteers.

HOME WITH WOUND STRIPE

Captain William J. Eggleston Recovering From Gas

A wound in his arm, Captain William J. Eggleston is invalided home, and is spending his furlough with his mother, Mrs. Mary A. Eggleston, 2602 Medary street, Germantown. He was gassed in the fighting at Soissons.

Captain Eggleston entered the army as a dentist, but was not content to work in the dental infirmary behind the lines. He longed to see real service, and his craving was appeased when he was promoted from first lieutenant to captain and assigned to the artillery. He fought at Chateau Thierry and other important points.

Captain Eggleston is a Canadian by birth. He received his military training at a Canadian camp, but requested that he be assigned to the American army so that he could see earlier service. As Doctor Eggleston, the captain took a postgraduate course at the Royal University, Toronto, Can. He was a dental surgeon.

RAN THROUGH FOE'S BARRAGE Corporal T. F. Dixon, Jr., Saw Guards Go Over Top

Pennsylvania's former national guardsmen, charged right through the enemy's barrage when they got the order to go over the top. Nothing could stop them.

A description of the battle is given by Corporal T. F. Dixon, Jr., as he saw it from an observation post, in a letter to his father, T. F. Dixon, of Chestnut Hill. Young Dixon is in Battery F, 108th Field Artillery. He writes as follows:

"It was the first time I had actually seen the doughboys go over the top, and it surely was a wonderful sight. We were waiting for the word to come to open a barrage for our doughboys who were right through it. The hour set happened to be 2:30 p. m. It was a beautiful, clear day, and our observation was perfect. It was not hard to tell when it was 2:30, as it seemed that all hell had broken loose behind the enemy's lines. The noise was deafening with shells of all sizes and making the most terrific noise, everything from a shell to a roar.

"Then the doughboys went over. The first started a counter-barrage on them, but they were right through it and kept on going. It was a sight I'll never forget. I don't ever get ready to go to the National Guard can't fight."

Swarthmore Adopts Public Ledger in Currents Events Course

The Public Ledger has been adopted as a textbook in a course on current events at Swarthmore College. It is the first instance in this section where a newspaper was adopted officially as a textbook in a course other than journalism.

In the present time, the course in current events is largely concerned with the war aims of the Allies. History in the study is largely concerned with the students in the Public Ledger.

GIRL PROPOSED TREES

IN MEMORY OF HEROES

Miss Betty C. Hobson Originated Plan, Which Park Commissioners Approved

To Miss Betty C. Hobson, 5723 North Fifteenth street, is given credit for originating the idea of planting trees on Broad street to commemorate the deaths of Philadelphia heroes in France.

Miss Hobson interested her friends and, as a result, some of them will meet with the secretary of the Fairmount Park Commission to go over the practical details.

Several nurserymen who have been approached on the subject offered to give trees, and Miss Hobson is confident the small amount of money necessary to pay for the labor of preparing the streets and planting the trees could easily be raised through private subscriptions. The trees would be planted on Broad street south of Walnut and north of Arch.

School authorities of Harrisburg conceived a similar idea recently and, due to their efforts, Governor Brumbaugh issued a proclamation setting aside Friday, October 25, as Autumn Arbor Day, when trees in memory of the heroic soldier dead of the State should be planted.

Narberth, Pa., has already set out four trees in memory of its first war heroes and other towns in the State are taking up the proposition.

QUARTERS FOR SHIPWORKERS

Twenty-sixth Ward Dwellings Purchased by Shipping Board

New quarters for the governmental workers at Hog Island were obtained today when the United States Shipping board purchased a number of two-story brick dwellings in the Twenty-sixth Ward. The shipping board also acquired from Charles A. Shezine, a tract of ground in the Northside Ward to be used as a site for several hundred new homes.

The dwellings bought are 1700 to 1748 Johnson street and from 2302 to 2308 South seventeenth street. The lot purchased contains nine and eight-tenths acres and is situated at a point southeast of Seventy-ninth street and northwest of Trovato avenue in the Northside Ward. The tract is assessed at $13,000.

"HOOK" MYLIN IS WOUNDED

Franklin and Marshall Football Star Spent Day in Shell Hole

A whole day in a shell hole, wounded by a German sniper—and he never expected to get out alive—is the story told by Lieutenant Everett Mylin, the Franklin and Marshall football star, better known as "Hook" Mylin, in a letter home.

"I had the honor of starting the ball rolling for my regiment, writes Lieutenant Mylin. I was charging up a hill after a boche, whom I got, when a sniper got me. I lay in a shell hole from 10 o'clock in the morning until 5 o'clock in the evening and was expected to get out, as machine-gun bullets were flying so thick over me.

"Then I took a chance and crawled out. The lieutenant's company was in the battalion commanded by Major Alfred H. Allen of this city, who was killed in action September 29. Lieutenant Mylin was wounded September 29. At Franklin and Marshall "Hook" Mylin was captain of the football team and one of the greatest quarterbacks the game has produced. He was captain of the football team at Camp Meade last winter, where he trained with his unit in the 21st Infantry of the Liberty Division.

PERRY'S

Certainly have the Winter Overcoats!

We described a few of them yesterday, but got only fairly started when our space gave out. So we'll take up the story with these—

At $30, big ulster Overcoats with deep collars that roll up comfortably under the chin. Here are rich blues, quiet grays, handsome browns, and various novelty patterns.

At $35, more ulsters elegantly silk lined or silk trimmed on the insides and with individual style touches in lapels, pockets, waist lines.

At $40, here's a wonderful double-breasted Overcoat in a soft brown background overlaid with a faint bluish check on a large scale. The waist of it is snug, its two rows of buttons go off at a military angle, the pockets are vertical—a dandy Ulster Overcoat!

And that is only one of many beauties at $40.

But we don't stop there. We have an abundant and varied collection of superb overcoats of rich fabrics richly trimmed and tailored that combine luxury, comfort, and character—$50 to $85.

And the Winter Suits of course

Good, serviceable cheviots in desirable patterns at $25. Suits of unfinished worsteds at $30, and so on up to the finest obtainable ANYWHERE, no matter what you pay—and our prices are $40 to $65.

You really conserve when you insist upon quality—we supply it Conservation in clothes expenditure is not facilitated by buying "cheap" or low-priced clothes—quite the contrary. True conservation lies in buying clothes made of good materials, which are thoroughly tailored. Such clothing will give long service and constant satisfaction. You can't buy suits of this character now at $15 or $18, no matter what the ads say. Don't pay less than $20 for your Fall or Winter suit or overcoat—preferably pay $25 or more (we have them up to $75). We urge this in the interest of true economy. The man who spends only $15 or $18 for a suit at the present prices of clothes will have to spend another $15 or $18 very soon, if he doesn't want to look shabby.
