Weekly COAL Bulletin of the Federal Fuel Administration for Philadelphia

Fair prices and full measure for small coal buyers

Beginning November 1st all peddlers, storekeepers and others selling coal in small quantities must hold licenses issued by Horace H. Fritz, Director of Bureau of Peddlers and Storekeepers of the U. S. Fuel Administration, and will be required to sell coal at fair prices fixed by the Fuel Administration, and in buckets and bags of standard size and weight certified by the Bureau of Weights and Measures and by the Fuel Administration. As an added protection to the consumer the peddler or storekeeper will be required to display upon his wagon or other place of business a sign furnished by the Fuel Administration, containing his license number, the correct prices of coal, and the size and weight of the buckets and bags used.

Before buying of any peddler or storekeeper, consumers are cautioned to look for his license number and price list, and to look for the official stamp of the Fuel Administration on buckets in which the coal is measured or weighed. The Fuel Administration requests that all cases of extortionate prices, short measure or other violation of these regulations be reported immediately.

The Bureau of Weights and Measures has enthusiastically co-operated with the Fuel Administration in seeing to it that these regulations shall be observed. Any vender violating them will have his license revoked, and will be prosecuted when he violates the regulations which he has agreed to observe in consideration of receiving his Fuel License.

While protecting the public, the Fuel Administration has also aimed to do justice to the small vender, giving him a fair profit to take care of his extra overhead expense based upon his cost of doing business. This class of coal dealer is useful to the community, as he is the sole source of supply for 15% of the population of the city.
