

ENROLLED AS DEMOCRATS

Registration in All Wards of City Is 241,317

FIGURES NOT FINAL

Well Men Surprised at Low "Party Affiliation" of "Wet" Voters

Of the 241,317 voters registered in Philadelphia for the election Tuesday, only 24,163 have enrolled as Democrats.

The figures which were compiled by the Republican city committee, do not include the voters who, by reason of illness or absence from the city on the three ball registration days, had their names put on the lists by the registration commissioners.

Surprise was manifested over the small Democratic enrollment, as the supporters of Municipal Judge Bonifield, Democratic gubernatorial nominee, made special efforts to have "wet" voters enroll as Democrats.

The Democratic enrollment, not including those who may have been put on the lists at the special sittings of the registration commissioners, is less than the enrolled Democratic vote for the city election last November. At that election the Democratic enrollment was slightly more than 25,000.

The Republican enrollment in the city totals 206,787, which, excluding the large number of voters absent from the city in the military service, is considered almost normal. Other enrollment figures follow: Non-partisan, 9070; Socialists, 772; Prohibition, 461; all other parties, 14.

SOLDIER HELD IN DEATH

Deputy Coroner Turns Case of John Riccio Over to Grand Jury

Private Morris Mass, army medical corps, stationed at Camp Upton, L. I., but now home on leave, was held without bail to await the action of the Grand Jury by Deputy Coroner Sellers today, charged with having been responsible for the death of John Riccio, who died from a fractured skull.

According to the testimony, Mass saw Riccio with a twelve-year-old girl and questioned him. Riccio resented Mass's interference, as it developed later, he was merely arguing with the child as to which of two stores they should visit to choose a hat for her. An argument ensued and a fight followed. The autopsy showed that Riccio died from having to hold him, but said the law left no leeway in cases of homicide.

PEACEMAKER SHOT

Bartender Slightly Wounded—Two Men Arrested

August Scott, a bartender at the English Hotel, Philadelphia, was shot in the chest by a man named Peter Dannebeck, who arrested the two men during an argument over the war in the bar. The two men were not identified. Both were arrested and held in the city jail. The man who shot Scott is a native-born American, and the other is a foreigner. Gov. Edge Ridicules Opponent's Claim

Repels La Monte's Assertion That Country Needs Democratic Congress

Trenton, Nov. 1. Governor Edge, candidate for the United States Senate long term, issued a public statement today in which he called upon his Democratic opponents, former Banking and Insurance Commissioner George M. LaMonte, of Bound Brook, for specifications concerning the latter's statement, that unless he, LaMonte, were elected, the war would last one or two years longer.

The Governor after quoting from a speech made by Mr. LaMonte in Elizabeth and Newark, in which the Democratic candidate called the men who are going to vote against the President for Edge and a Republican Congress "pacifists, pro-Germans, malcontents and political henchmen of the Republican machine," asked:

"Is it possible that Mr. LaMonte means to say that the 30,000 Jaycoopers who took the trouble to vote for me in the recent primaries are for the Kaiser and against the President, that they are pacifists, pro-Germans and malcontents? Does he mean to say that the 15,000 who gave him a vote in the primaries are really patriotic Americans and supporters of the President? Does he mean to say that the 570 out of the 600 or so New Jersey boys in the trenches abroad who had an opportunity to vote in the recent primaries and cast their vote for the Governor

Dr. A. Reed CUSHION SHOES For Men and Women There's a real feeling about wearing these shoes which need no "breaking in." The extra comfort at a moderate cost is afforded by the famous cushion inner sole, which absorbs every shock of the body, and makes them "the easiest shoes on earth." And now, before the war, they represent the same high quality.

GRAPEFRUITS, to the delictation of its devotees, are now in season and flowing in a steady golden stream from Florida to Henry H. Hollowell & Son's, Broad below Chestnut street, ranking as they do among the most important and popular of citrus fruits, it seems almost incredible that as late as 1885 they were written of as being "more showy than useful," though incidentally noted as being "rather refreshing!" With sugar at a premium it is worth knowing that grapefruits contain a large amount of sucrose and reducing sugars in equal proportions, unsuspected because of the sour taste, and that the sugar increases and the acidity decreases during storage. Another tip: Sprinkling them with salt instead of sugar has been found to have the same effect. Try it and save sugar.

HAVE you noticed the bored expression on babies' faces when adoring relations are doing their adult best to prodigate them? One thing after another is offered for their inspection only to be thrown aside with scorn, but the most blase babe in Christendom would coo with delight at receiving from Bailey, Banks & Biddle Company any of the gifts designed for them. Their own tiny feet, always a source of interest to them, would be doubly so in a pair of cute booties, with little gold buckle or slides. Cap strings or bibs fastened by beautiful enamel or plain gold pins would, I fear, still be sucked, but sets of gold safety pins or three dainty enamel buttons or pins connected by chains for the back of the slips would surely escape this fate.

HAVE you heard the new Edison Diamond Disc Phonograph, the "Phonograph with a Soul"? It is a wonderful instrument. It does not give a mere mechanical reproduction of musical sounds, but actually re-creates them, and so marvelous that the recreation cannot be distinguished from the original. This has been proved when artists sang in direct comparison with the records, and it was impossible to tell whether one heard the singer or the instrument. The Edison possesses many unique features, among them the diamond stylus, which does away with needles and is altogether so superior that N. Stetson & Co., 1111 Chestnut street, who are critical in their tastes, felt it was worthy of recognition and that they would please their musical friends by carrying it.

REFRIGERATORS are most difficult to warm up to, such a chilly air emanates from them, but they are none the less necessary to every household, for without them the bill-day would be a greater nuisance than it is. At the House Furnishing Store of J. Franklin Miller, 1612 Chestnut street, quantities are to be had, and though differing in size and style, their general construction is the same. In the McKee refrigerators the outside covers are of hardwood, with double wall and an air space between. The virtually indestructible galvanized steel air chambers allow a perfect circulation of air; the seamless lining and removable drip pans and inside traps, with no overhanging molding to collect dirt, make them sanitary and superior ice savers.

A MAN is known by the work he does, a tree by the fruit it bears and a woman by the clothes she wears. That is why she wears B. F. Dewees, 122 Chestnut street, a shop in which she is sure of finding the best in quality, fit and style. At present they have an exceedingly good line of moderately priced yet dressy wool velour and silvertone suits. The velours come in nearly all colors, such as Copenhagen, navy blue, brown and plum, with or without fur collars, and are strictly tailored, though one has the edge of the entire coat bound with braid. The silvertones, as pretty as their name, are in about the same colors, but are decidedly more military in effect, with short shoulder lines and high collars.

ALTHOUGH a woman's wardrobe may include a number of one-piece dresses, she always has need of separate blouses to wear with her tailored suits, and the more she has the better dressed she feels. At Blaylock & Blynn, Inc., 1528 Chestnut street, there are so many charming styles it is a question which to choose. The indispensable white cotton voiles are colored and lined are not to be ignored, though there is always temptation to do so when the eye falls on the dressier Georgette crepes. These are to be had in flesh and white and suit shades, with square or round neck lines, crêpe, tulle or delicately beaded in iridescent shades, others plain, with collars, cuffs and vests of beige Georgette. For mourning there are also new models of black Georgette or soft silks.

ONE improvement after another is installed in shops and accepted by customers without realizing their conversion. Take, for instance, the new type of showcases for clothing at Jacob Reed's Sons, 1424 Chestnut street. Formerly men's suits were laid in piles on tables, subjected to all the dust that blew. When a particular size was needed the pile was gone over and the suit, wrinkled and crushed, was pulled out. Contrast this with the new method. Glass dustproof cases in which the clothes are neatly arranged by size on individual hangers suspended from steel rods. The customer sees at a glance the color that appeals to him and virtually selects without the assistance of a salesman. Clothing kept in this manner preserves a fresh appearance impossible under the old regime.

PLEASANT surprises are so rare I am always glad when I can give one. This time it is the men who will benefit; the women's turn is yet to come. MacDonald & Campbell, 1334-36 Chestnut street, have secured a new shipment of the much-desired Mocha gloves. This may not sound like a feat, but unless you have tried to find them you can have no idea how scarce they are nor how difficult they are to obtain. These are of genuine Arabian Mocha, in grays and browns, with outseams and self or black stitching, and are up to the usual MacDonald & Campbell high standard in every respect. Besides Mochas they carry all styles of gloves, including an exceptionally fine line of buckskin gloves, made of South American skins, the strongest and most durable of leathers.
