THREATEN UNPatriotic NEGRO Youth Refuses to Stand When National Anthem is Played

George Bruce, a negro, caused a riot in a motion picture theatre at Germantown avenue and Doughton street last night when he refused to stand up when the orchestra played the Star Spangled Banner.

K. David Pittman, a petty officer stationed at the League Island Navy Yard, remonstrated with the negro. The latter drew a knife and declared no person could make him stand up. The theatre was in an uproar and several men started toward the offender, but Pittman reached him first and dragged him from the place before the angered crowd could put any of their threats into execution.

Bruce was given a hearing before Magistrate Wright in the Germantown avenue and Lycoming street station this morning and held for the Federal authorities. It was testified at the hearing that he had caused trouble twice before by similar action. The accused man produced a registration card, but it was torn in three places.

Bruce's home is at 1514 St. Lukes street. He is eighteen years old, and recently came to this city from the South.
