

PERSHING CABLE PRAISES SCHWAB

Messages From American Commander and Foch Read at Reception LAUDED BY DANIELS

Emergency Fleet Workers Jam Opera House to Honor Director General

Admiration of Charles M. Schwab as the nation's master shipbuilder, expressed by Marshal Foch and General Pershing by cable, and Secretary Daniels of the Navy Department, and Chairman Hurley, of the shipping board, by word of mouth, received a thunderous endorsement of applause last night from 6000 employees of the Emergency Fleet Corporation crowded into the Metropolitan Opera House at a reception to their director general.

Kept to a high pitch of patriotic enthusiasm by news of the cessation of hostilities, the throng wildly cheered acclamations by Secretary Daniels, that restoration of Alsace-Lorraine, indemnity for Belgium and northern France, and a league of nations upheld by an international police force, will be certain results of the peace negotiations.

Renewed cheers greeted his statement that shipbuilding must go on in order to provide a huge merchant marine for the nation. Mr. Schwab occasioned another outbreak when he asserted the work must be continued until the 15,000,000 tons arranged for shall have been delivered.

Another thrill was afforded when Mr. Schwab presented to Charles F. Daniels, general manager of the fleet corporation, a gold medal awarded by the Government.

Daniels for Merchant Marine Secretary Daniels stirred the large audience to intense patriotic fervor when, in his address, he said:

"The envoys of Germany are now in conference with Marshal Foch to hear the terms which have been laid down by the Allied peoples. These are all based on the fourteen terms laid down by President Wilson on January 8 and in subsequent addresses.

"If they are accepted, from them will spring a League of Nations, which will establish a great international police force for the world, with the armies and navies of the great peoples to perform its office.

"If, however, the Germans should lack the foresight to accept President Wilson's terms at this time, they will do it later on a bended knee. For the President and the governments associated with us in this great war have determined that peace shall come on these fourteen terms of President Wilson, and they will force their acceptance no matter how long the time or how great the cost.

"Whatever else we have to must have merchant marine after the war," he added. "Our trade must go to the uttermost parts of the world, and it must be on American bottoms. We must never again be guilty of the blindness of trading only with ourselves."

Workers Aided Victory "Peace with victory could not have been made possible without the patriotic efforts of the workers at home," said Chairman Hurley.

"Last month the American shipyards completed and delivered 418,908 dead-weight tons of shipping. It was the greatest shipbuilding achievement the world has ever known. It was the climax of your hard work, and I would like to say to the stenographers, clerks and every office boy, who did what was assigned to them as well as it could be done, deserve just as much credit as the men at the top."

Referring to Director General Schwab, Mr. Hurley said:

"He has won your hearts as he won ours in Washington, but while you may all think you know him well, and that you will always remember him, I venture to say that Hindenburg will remember him longer than any of you."

Schwab Thanks Employees Mr. Schwab said:

"With reference to every member of the Emergency Fleet Corporation I can say no higher compliment than to say that I feel as though I had been associated with them for a lifetime.

"Our coming to Philadelphia was a happy enterprise and thought. We have met with the greatest possible enthusiasm, cordiality and support in our great undertaking, not only from the press of Philadelphia, but from all its people.

"It is possible that we are confronting peace, but, whether peace comes or not, this great ship undertaking must be carried through until we have given our chairman and our country the 15,000,000 tons of shipping for which we have arranged, and the quicker those ships are provided, whether for war or peace, the better for our country; if for peace, then because of the military necessities; if for peace, then because we can get our ships into commission and use them at the earliest possible date to help maintain America's position in industry and commercial enterprise."

Charles F. Daniels, in his address, said:

"The work of the Fleet Corporation does not end with the declaration of peace; it carries forward a large program which will keep our shipbuilding facilities active during the whole of the coming year, even if we produce two and a half times the tonnage we expect to produce during the year of 1918.

"There is need for this organization for a long time to come, and there is need for a continuation of that intense and loyal application which has made the corporation successful thus far. There is no justification for any apprehension that those at the head will abandon the task before its completion is assured, and I bespeak on behalf of Mr. Hurley and Mr. Schwab your continued assistance so that we may carry on our work with even greater efficiency and success than we have heretofore."

An Mr. Schwab came forward, three girls, in the navy uniform of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, came upon the stage and presented him with a stand of colors, representing the American flag and the private flag of the United States shipping board and the Emergency Fleet Corporation.

Splendid Entertainment In addition to the noted speakers there was a wonderful entertainment. Miss Mabel Garrison, soprano, of the Metropolitan Opera Company, sang several songs and roused her hearers to wild applause with "Tic-tic," Minnie Emma, violinist, also delighted the crowd.

Charles Dana Gibson introduced a score of noted artists who have drawn popular war posters. James Montgomery Flagg made a charcoal sketch of Mr. Schwab while the fleet workers looked on.

Prior to the arrival of the master shipbuilder the Emergency Fleet Liberty Chorus, led by Miss Beatrice Eaton, sang patriotic airs and the Bethlehem Steel Corporation Band played them.

A colorful pageant, "Fighting Allies," was presented by young women bearing the flags of Serbia, France, Italy, Belgium, Great Britain and the United States. A tableau entitled "Victory" showed fighting men of the Allied nations grouped about the Stars and Stripes.

Pusey & Jones Company to Operate Dining Room at Gloucester

An army of shipworkers moves on its stomach, just as much as an army of soldiers. With that theory in view, the Pusey & Jones Company will follow the lead of other progressive ship concerns and open a big dining room next Monday for its employees at Gloucester.

Officials of the company are convinced that it pays in actual dollars and cents to supply wholesome, nourishing food to shipworkers, and have made preparation to operate a cafeteria-restaurant at cost. The establishment of a large dining room was brought about through the recent report of the industrial relations committee of the Emergency Fleet Corporation that progressive shipbuilding companies should realize the relation of wholesome food to efficiency.

The Pusey & Jones officials adopted plans for the abolition of the huckster and cheap-eating place menace by providing the necessary facilities. W. H. House, who has been a restaurant manager for more than twenty years, will have charge of all food matters under the service department of the yard.

A survey of conditions made by the fleet corporation shows the town has inadequate restaurant facilities and the manner of obtaining food unsatisfactory. But one restaurant, the investigators reported, is available for the accommodation of 1000 men.

Furthermore, the fleet corporation received complaints that prices are high, luncheons in dirty condition and the quality of food questionable.

Flag-Raising at Cramp's To celebrate the completion of the new copper ship, which is to replace the one destroyed by fire a few months ago, the employees of the department at the Cramp yard plan a patriotic celebration and flag-raising tomorrow. The affair is under the direction of Jack Mahoney, J. Smith, H. Levin, J. Reed, J. Harris and Geo. Ryler.

Treat 'em Rough—then's my sentiment, said J. J. Cooper, of the Pusey & Jones's stock record department. He joined the yard corps. All of which goes to show that Private Cooper believes in ship-restauranting.

The Strawbridge & Clothier Profit-Sharing Sale of Clothing

The Season's Most Important Event for Men

Thousands of Men's Winter Overcoats and Suits at Less Than Regular Prices

It was a foregone conclusion that this remarkable Profit-sharing Distribution of Men's Clothing would be a great success, because we knew that our position was unique among Clothing dealers. We knew that our tremendous investments in Clothing from eight to twelve months before our customers had need of it, would result in very substantial savings, and that men would be very quick to find it out. Therefore, our November business thus far has been greater than we have ever had in the same number of days.

It is well worth repeating that our entire stock is marked at considerably lower prices than would have been possible, had we not anticipated the great demand and the consequent increasing costs, and that our prices range from 10 to 25 per cent. less than to-day's real value.

But the EXTRAORDINARY interest attaching to our operations centres around the numerous EXTRA-SPECIAL lots upon which we secured UNUSUAL CONCESSIONS for various reasons, while making our plans months ago for this November event. The SAVINGS ON THESE LOTS average considerably more than on our general stock. CAREFUL MEN ARE BUYING THEIR CLOTHING NOW. For this week-end—TOMORROW—we have a greater variety of Suits, Overcoats and Trousers at specially attractive prices than ever before.

These Lots Average One-third Less Than Present Value
