

61 CITY SOLDIERS, DEAD; IS LARGEST LIST FOR ONE DAY

First Official Record of Toll in Fighting Along
Meuse

136 CASUALTIES IN ALL

Names of Prominent Young Men—State's Total Losses
in War 7928

The War Department casualty lists released for publication today give the first officially to record the heavy toll of the fighting along the Meuse between September 26 and October 4, in which so many Philadelphians were killed and wounded.

The names of sixty-one Philadelphia dead are on the official lists the largest total ever made public in so short a time.

The large majority of these losses already been reported through unofficial sources, cameograms direct from the battlefield bringing the sad news to the families of the heroes.

The German dugout defenders have one of the Meuse and the American troops lost more heavily in that engagement than in any other operation in which they have participated since they were thrown into the actual fighting.

Among the more prominent Philadelphians dead are the victims who are named on the official lists as Lieutenant C. Hetherington, Corporal Louis R. Herkowitz, a nephew of Rubin Berkowitz, and Lieutenant Daniel S. Koller of Germantown. That these men had given their lives for their country was published in many papers, but the fact that it was also the fact of the death of Alfred Alfred Reginald Allen and Lieutenant Benjamin Bullock, 2d. The names of the last two, however, have not yet appeared on the official list.

1992 Names on List

There are 1992 names on today's official casualty list, including 410 Pennsylvanians. The total losses in killed, wounded, missing and prisoners from this State since the United States entered the war is 7928.

There are 136 from Philadelphia and vicinity on today's list, forty-seven having been killed in action, twenty-nine died of wounds and nine of disease.

SKETCHES OF THE HEROES

Private Clarence P. Ferguson, killed in action on September 27, gave his life to save his captain, Captain John T. Meuse, in the battle of the Meuse. He was twenty-four years old.

Private His Captain, 136th Infantry, North Twenty-seventh street. While the American troops were fighting in the Argonne forest, Private Ferguson applied a shot to his commander and was instantly killed by a booby bullet. He would surely have been a general if he had lived.

Private Joseph A. Debin, Company G, Sixteenth Infantry, died from disease. He is twenty-eight years old and lived with his mother at 1125 West Chester street. He was drafted after serving at Camp Meade and was drafted again in October.

Private Gerald L. Lyons, Company I, 136th Infantry, was killed in action on September 28. He was twenty-three years old and lived with his mother at 2446 East Franklin street.

Private Joseph E. Wilkinson, Company E, 131st Infantry, was killed on September 28. He was twenty-four years old and lived with his mother at 1125 West Chester street.

Private Philip J. Nal, 2d Cavalry, was previously reported missing.

Private Albert R. Berkowitz, 136th Infantry, was previously reported missing.

Private James J. Mullin, 2d Cavalry, was previously reported missing.

Private Philip S. Sharpe, 132d North Infantry, was previously reported missing.

Corporal Joseph M. Wilkinson, 131st Infantry, was killed on September 28. He was twenty-four years old and lived with his mother at 1125 West Chester street.

Private Louis Gold, Company I, 136th Infantry, was killed in action on September 28. He was twenty-eight years old and lived with his mother at 505 Washington avenue in New York. He was engaged to be married and was not a citizen of the United States. He lived with friends at 1212 North Patton street.

Sergeant Manuel Rosenthal, Company I, 136th Infantry, was severely wounded on September 28. He is twenty-four years old and lived with his mother at 1125 West Chester street.

Sergeant Nelson M. Herren, killed in action, according to the official casualty list, is actually in a hospital in France from serious wounds of the head and face, according to a letter received from a member of his company. The meantime has relatives have faced the same consideration either the War Department telegram or the letter from her son's friends. She is an invalid and her physical condition is such that she prove fatal. Sergeant Herren is a drafted man, was trained at Camp Meade and a member of the 218th selected for service from Philadelphia's own regiment.

Private Henry F. Singer, Company I, 136th Infantry, was killed in action on September 28. He was twenty-eight years old and his home was at 3309 Lombard street. He was called to the colors on September 17, 1917, and was sent to Camp Meade, where he was trained for four weeks later. After his graduation from the Central High School and the Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania, he was engaged in law practice. He was twenty-eight years old.

Private Rosario Patane, Company B, 136th Infantry, died of wounds received in action. No word of his death has been received by his mother, who lived at 505 Washington avenue in New York. He came to this country eight years ago and was employed by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. He was twenty-four years old.

Corporal Albert S. Fleischman, Company C, 136th Infantry, was killed in action. His official dispatch receives a week ago from his wife, Mrs. Lillian Fleischman of 4925 Locust street. Corporal Fleischman enlisted two months after the United States entered the war. He was trained at Camp Hancock.

Sergeant Raymond J. McCracken, Company C, 136th Infantry, died of wounds received in action. His official dispatch receives a week ago from his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. McCracken, 111 North Harrison street. The letter states that Sergeant McCracken was wounded on September 28. He was twenty-three years old and was drafted in October. He was sent to Camp Meade and his family received the telegram from the War Department announcing his death.

Private Joseph H. Nolan, Company K, 136th Infantry, was killed in action on September 27. He was twenty-seven years old and lived with his wife, Mrs. Jessie Sharp, 111 North Harrison street. He was engaged to be married and was not a citizen of the United States. He was twenty-four years old.

Corporal Albert S. Fleischman, Company C, 136th Infantry, was killed in action. His official dispatch receives a week ago from his wife, Mrs. Lillian Fleischman of 4925 Locust street. Corporal Fleischman enlisted two months after the United States entered the war. He was trained at Camp Hancock.

Sergeant Raymond J. McCracken, Company C, 136th Infantry, died of wounds received in action. His official dispatch receives a week ago from his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. McCracken, 111 North Harrison street. The letter states that Sergeant McCracken was wounded on September 28. He was twenty-three years old and was drafted in October. He was sent to Camp Meade and his family received the telegram from the War Department announcing his death.

Private Joseph H. Nolan, Company K, 136th Infantry, was killed in action on September 27. He was twenty-seven years old and lived with his wife, Mrs. Jessie Sharp, 111 North Harrison street. He was engaged to be married and was not a citizen of the United States. He was twenty-four years old.

Corporal Albert S. Fleischman, Company C, 136th Infantry, was killed in action. His official dispatch receives a week ago from his wife, Mrs. Lillian Fleischman of 4925 Locust street. Corporal Fleischman enlisted two months after the United States entered the war. He was trained at Camp Hancock.

Sergeant Raymond J. McCracken, Company C, 136th Infantry, died of wounds received in action. His official dispatch receives a week ago from his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. McCracken, 111 North Harrison street. The letter states that Sergeant McCracken was wounded on September 28. He was twenty-three years old and was drafted in October. He was sent to Camp Meade and his family received the telegram from the War Department announcing his death.

Private Joseph H. Nolan, Company K, 136th Infantry, was killed in action on September 27. He was twenty-seven years old and lived with his wife, Mrs. Jessie Sharp, 111 North Harrison street. He was engaged to be married and was not a citizen of the United States. He was twenty-four years old.

Corporal Albert S. Fleischman, Company C, 136th Infantry, was killed in action. His official dispatch receives a week ago from his wife, Mrs. Lillian Fleischman of 4925 Locust street. Corporal Fleischman enlisted two months after the United States entered the war. He was trained at Camp Hancock.

Sergeant Raymond J. McCracken, Company C, 136th Infantry, died of wounds received in action. His official dispatch receives a week ago from his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. McCracken, 111 North Harrison street. The letter states that Sergeant McCracken was wounded on September 28. He was twenty-three years old and was drafted in October. He was sent to Camp Meade and his family received the telegram from the War Department announcing his death.

Private Joseph H. Nolan, Company K, 136th Infantry, was killed in action on September 27. He was twenty-seven years old and lived with his wife, Mrs. Jessie Sharp, 111 North Harrison street. He was engaged to be married and was not a citizen of the United States. He was twenty-four years old.

Corporal Albert S. Fleischman, Company C, 136th Infantry, was killed in action. His official dispatch receives a week ago from his wife, Mrs. Lillian Fleischman of 4925 Locust street. Corporal Fleischman enlisted two months after the United States entered the war. He was trained at Camp Hancock.

Sergeant Raymond J. McCracken, Company C, 136th Infantry, died of wounds received in action. His official dispatch receives a week ago from his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. McCracken, 111 North Harrison street. The letter states that Sergeant McCracken was wounded on September 28. He was twenty-three years old and was drafted in October. He was sent to Camp Meade and his family received the telegram from the War Department announcing his death.

Private Joseph H. Nolan, Company K, 136th Infantry, was killed in action on September 27. He was twenty-seven years old and lived with his wife, Mrs. Jessie Sharp, 111 North Harrison street. He was engaged to be married and was not a citizen of the United States. He was twenty-four years old.

Corporal Albert S. Fleischman, Company C, 136th Infantry, was killed in action. His official dispatch receives a week ago from his wife, Mrs. Lillian Fleischman of 4925 Locust street. Corporal Fleischman enlisted two months after the United States entered the war. He was trained at Camp Hancock.

Sergeant Raymond J. McCracken, Company C, 136th Infantry, died of wounds received in action. His official dispatch receives a week ago from his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. McCracken, 111 North Harrison street. The letter states that Sergeant McCracken was wounded on September 28. He was twenty-three years old and was drafted in October. He was sent to Camp Meade and his family received the telegram from the War Department announcing his death.

Private Joseph H. Nolan, Company K, 136th Infantry, was killed in action on September 27. He was twenty-seven years old and lived with his wife, Mrs. Jessie Sharp, 111 North Harrison street. He was engaged to be married and was not a citizen of the United States. He was twenty-four years old.

Corporal Albert S. Fleischman, Company C, 136th Infantry, was killed in action. His official dispatch receives a week ago from his wife, Mrs. Lillian Fleischman of 4925 Locust street. Corporal Fleischman enlisted two months after the United States entered the war. He was trained at Camp Hancock.

Sergeant Raymond J. McCracken, Company C, 136th Infantry, died of wounds received in action. His official dispatch receives a week ago from his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. McCracken, 111 North Harrison street. The letter states that Sergeant McCracken was wounded on September 28. He was twenty-three years old and was drafted in October. He was sent to Camp Meade and his family received the telegram from the War Department announcing his death.

Private Joseph H. Nolan, Company K, 136th Infantry, was killed in action on September 27. He was twenty-seven years old and lived with his wife, Mrs. Jessie Sharp, 111 North Harrison street. He was engaged to be married and was not a citizen of the United States. He was twenty-four years old.

Corporal Albert S. Fleischman, Company C, 136th Infantry, was killed in action. His official dispatch receives a week ago from his wife, Mrs. Lillian Fleischman of 4925 Locust street. Corporal Fleischman enlisted two months after the United States entered the war. He was trained at Camp Hancock.

Sergeant Raymond J. McCracken, Company C, 136th Infantry, died of wounds received in action. His official dispatch receives a week ago from his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. McCracken, 111 North Harrison street. The letter states that Sergeant McCracken was wounded on September 28. He was twenty-three years old and was drafted in October. He was sent to Camp Meade and his family received the telegram from the War Department announcing his death.

Private Joseph H. Nolan, Company K, 136th Infantry, was killed in action on September 27. He was twenty-seven years old and lived with his wife, Mrs. Jessie Sharp, 111 North Harrison street. He was engaged to be married and was not a citizen of the United States. He was twenty-four years old.

Corporal Albert S. Fleischman, Company C, 136th Infantry, was killed in action. His official dispatch receives a week ago from his wife, Mrs. Lillian Fleischman of 4925 Locust street. Corporal Fleischman enlisted two months after the United States entered the war. He was trained at Camp Hancock.

Sergeant Raymond J. McCracken, Company C, 136th Infantry, died of wounds received in action. His official dispatch receives a week ago from his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. McCracken, 111 North Harrison street. The letter states that Sergeant McCracken was wounded on September 28. He was twenty-three years old and was drafted in October. He was sent to Camp Meade and his family received the telegram from the War Department announcing his death.

Private Joseph H. Nolan, Company K, 136th Infantry, was killed in action on September 27. He was twenty-seven years old and lived with his wife, Mrs. Jessie Sharp, 111 North Harrison street. He was engaged to be married and was not a citizen of the United States. He was twenty-four years old.

Corporal Albert S. Fleischman, Company C, 136th Infantry, was killed in action. His official dispatch receives a week ago from his wife, Mrs. Lillian Fleischman of 4925 Locust street. Corporal Fleischman enlisted two months after the United States entered the war. He was trained at Camp Hancock.

Sergeant Raymond J. McCracken, Company C, 136th Infantry, died of wounds received in action. His official dispatch receives a week ago from his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. McCracken, 111 North Harrison street. The letter states that Sergeant McCracken was wounded on September 28. He was twenty-three years old and was drafted in October. He was sent to Camp Meade and his family received the telegram from the War Department announcing his death.

Private Joseph H. Nolan, Company K, 136th Infantry, was killed in action on September 27. He was twenty-seven years old and lived with his wife, Mrs. Jessie Sharp, 111 North Harrison street. He was engaged to be married and was not a citizen of the United States. He was twenty-four years old.

Corporal Albert S. Fleischman, Company C, 136th Infantry, was killed in action. His official dispatch receives a week ago from his wife, Mrs. Lillian Fleischman of 4925 Locust street. Corporal Fleischman enlisted two months after the United States entered the war. He was trained at Camp Hancock.

Sergeant Raymond J. McCracken, Company C, 136th Infantry, died of wounds received in action. His official dispatch receives a week ago from his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. McCracken, 111 North Harrison street. The letter states that Sergeant McCracken was wounded on September 28. He was twenty-three years old and was drafted in October. He was sent to Camp Meade and his family received the telegram from the War Department announcing his death.

Private Joseph H. Nolan, Company K, 136th Infantry, was killed in action on September 27. He was twenty-seven years old and lived with his wife, Mrs. Jessie Sharp, 111 North Harrison street. He was engaged to be married and was not a citizen of the United States. He was twenty-four years old.

Corporal Albert S. Fleischman, Company C, 136th Infantry, was killed in action. His official dispatch receives a week ago from his wife, Mrs. Lillian Fleischman of 4925 Locust street. Corporal Fleischman enlisted two months after the United States entered the war. He was trained at Camp Hancock.

Sergeant Raymond J. McCracken, Company C, 136th Infantry, died of wounds received in action. His official dispatch receives a week ago from his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. McCracken, 111 North Harrison street. The letter states that Sergeant McCracken was wounded on September 28. He was twenty-three years old and was drafted in October. He was sent to Camp Meade and his family received the telegram from the War Department announcing his death.

Private Joseph H. Nolan, Company K, 136th Infantry, was killed in action on September 27. He was twenty-seven years old and lived with his wife, Mrs. Jessie Sharp, 111 North Harrison street. He was engaged to be married and was not a citizen of the United States. He was twenty-four years old.

Corporal Albert S. Fleischman, Company C, 136th Infantry, was killed in action. His official dispatch receives a week ago from his wife, Mrs. Lillian Fleischman of 4925 Locust street. Corporal Fleischman enlisted two months after the United States entered the war. He was trained at Camp Hancock.

Sergeant Raymond J. McCracken, Company C, 136th Infantry, died of wounds received in action. His official dispatch receives a week ago from his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. McCracken, 111 North Harrison street. The letter states that Sergeant McCracken was wounded on September 28. He was twenty-three years old and was drafted in October. He was sent to Camp Meade and his family received the telegram from the War Department announcing his death.

Private Joseph H. Nolan, Company K, 136th Infantry, was killed in action on September 27. He was twenty-seven years old and lived with his wife, Mrs. Jessie Sharp, 111 North Harrison street. He was engaged to be married and was not a citizen of the United States. He was twenty-four years old.

Corporal Albert S. Fleischman, Company C, 136th Infantry, was killed in action. His official dispatch receives a week ago from his wife, Mrs. Lillian Fleischman of 4925 Locust street. Corporal Fleischman enlisted two months after the United States entered the war. He was trained at Camp Hancock.

Sergeant Raymond J. McCracken, Company C, 136th Infantry, died of wounds received in action. His official dispatch receives a week ago from his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. McCracken, 111 North Harrison street. The letter states that Sergeant McCracken was wounded on September 28. He was twenty-three years old and was drafted in October. He was sent to Camp Meade and his family received the telegram from the War Department announcing his death.

Private Joseph H. Nolan, Company K, 136th Infantry, was killed in action on September 27. He was twenty-seven years old and lived with his wife, Mrs. Jessie Sharp, 111 North Harrison street. He was engaged to be married and was not a citizen of the United States. He was twenty-four years old.

Corporal Albert S. Fleischman, Company C, 136th Infantry, was killed in action. His official dispatch receives a week ago from his wife, Mrs. Lillian Fleischman of 4925 Locust street. Corporal Fleischman enlisted two months after the United States entered the war. He was trained at Camp Hancock.

Sergeant Raymond J. McCracken, Company C, 136th Infantry, died of wounds received in action. His official dispatch receives a week ago from his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. McCracken, 111 North Harrison street. The letter states that Sergeant McCracken was wounded on September 28. He was twenty-three years old and was drafted in October. He was sent to Camp Meade and his family received the telegram from the War Department announcing his death.

Private Joseph H. Nolan, Company K, 136