Wilson's Plea for Aid to Germany Meets Strong Approval

INDORSE HELPING HAND

Truce Conditions About as Severe as Unconditional Surrender, Is Opinion

Washington, Nov. 12.—That the signing of the armistice virtually amounts to an unconditional surrender is the opinion of Senators and Representatives.

Members of Congress were jubilant over victory, and the Democratic Senators and Representatives endorsed President Wilson's expressions regarding the German people as extending the helping hand to all down-trodden nationalities.

CENSORSHIP TO RELAX

Creel Will Make Recommendation to the President

Washington, Nov. 12.—Abandonment of all censorship on news, including withdrawal of the voluntary censorship request under which American newspapers have been operating since the United States entered the war, will be recommended to President Wilson soon by George Creel, chairman of the committee on public information.

WAR TAXATION WILL CONTINUE

Decrease in Excess Profits Points to Shrinkage in Revenue

Washington, Nov. 12.—The end of the war will bring no immediate reduction in tax to the American people. The Senate Finance Committee, which is putting the finishing touches to the new war tax bill, decided today that all revenue that can be raised under the measure as it now stands will be needed, in addition to the funds raised from the floating of a new victory liberty loan.

Charles Out, Crown Prince Shot, Rumors

The leading offices are being filled by the comrades. The administration, it adds, is retained, "but its leaders are inspired with the new spirit of liberty."

The foundation of the new German Republic was proclaimed by Philipp Scheidemann from the steps of the Reichstag Building.

Describing the situation in Berlin late Saturday, the correspondent there of the Handelsblat says: "Since morning the aspect of Berlin has changed completely. Carriages, filled with soldiers and civilians moved slowly through streets crowded with sightseers, who are not yet fully to comprehend the new situation."

The sightseers today concentrated in the Unter den Linden and the Schlossplatz, and were remarkably calm. On the Imperial palace, the palace of the Crown Prince and the Government buildings, red flags were waving. There were hundreds of processions throughout the city in which civilians and soldiers joined.

News has been received in Berlin and forwarded here that the garrisons at Döberitz and Potsdam are in the hands of the Soldiers and Workers' Council.

Violent struggles also occurred in the neighborhood of the Friedrichstrasse depot, where officers with machine guns and patrols of revolutionary soldiers, the revolutionaries took refuge in houses, hotels and large business establishments which surround the depot and from the roofs fired down into the street.

FRENCH DEPUTIES CHEER EACH TERM

Chamber Rings With Applause as Premier Reads Conditions Seriatim

Paris, Nov. 12.—The Chamber of Deputies has seldom displayed such unanimity as it did today in cheering each article of the armistice terms as they were read by Premier Clemenceau. As soon as the Premier had read a clause, the entire chamber jumped to its feet and cheered.

After reading the conditions, the Premier excused himself from making a lengthy address, but said: "In the name of the people of France and in the name of the Government of France, let us salute Alsace-Lorraine. There was prolonged cheering, after which the Premier added feebly: "Let us honor the great army which died."

Tears came to the eyes of most of those in the chamber—tears of memory of the dead and tears from the powerful reaction of the moment. Deputies from Alsace-Lorraine, who had been in the front line of the struggle, were enthusiastically cheered as they presented themselves in the gallery.

The diplomatic gallery was filled, and among those present were American Ambassador Sharp, the Earl of Derby, the British ambassador and the ambassadors from Spain and Italy.

The fighting has been particularly severe near the buildings of the Marshall Court, adjoining the Emperor's castle. Others are hiding in the cellars and subterranean passages of the royal library and the cafes.

Combats lasted all night in the Doronstrasse where several soldiers were killed or wounded. It is understood the plan is to put the German merchant marine into service as soon as possible after the problem created by the naval revolt is cleared up, and such vessels necessary will be employed for sending supplies through German ports.

One precaution will be taken, of course, to see that supplies are devoted to the purposes for which they are intended. President Wilson has already instructed Food Administration to proceed to Europe and represent the United States in dealing with the situation, which will include the care of the German population as well as the victims of the war in France and Belgium.

It is suggested in some quarters that Doctor Solff's plea may be designed to lay the foundation for an attempt on the part of Germany to secure general modification of the armistice terms before the peace conference.

President Wilson in his address to Congress yesterday in which he announced the terms of the armistice, showed the young Emperor the baseness of his domain, made up as it was of varied nations, of which he had broken the Hapsburg connection and declared their independence.

Official announcement of the signing of the armistice and the termination of hostilities at 11 o'clock, was given to the Paris press at 11:30 o'clock. Flags speedily began to appear and preparations were begun for a demonstration.

As soon as the official announcement was made of the signing of the armistice all official buildings, embassies and legations in Paris were bedecked with flags.

Girl Killed Was Family Bread Winner

girl had obtained a new situation and had started work at once. When the father, Louis Bookbinder, a plasterer, came home from work last night, he asked at once whether Katherine, his daughter, was at home.

Disappointed at his daughter's absence, the father sat down to wait for her. Supportive came, however, and she did not appear.

"Perhaps her hours are longer in the new place," said the mother. "Mayn't this father be wrong, but I don't feel right. Maybe something happened. There are great crowds in the streets today."

After supper, the mother began a search for the missing girl. First she made the rounds of the homes of her daughter's friends. When she failed to find her, she started for the vine plant.

Mrs. Bookbinder reached the bakery at about midnight. She found the place locked and dark, of course, but she hunted up the watchman. To him she confided her fear that the girl might have been locked in by mistake.

The watchman made a search, which soon showed the girl was not there. Fear clutching her heart, the mother went back to her home in the hope that the girl might have returned in the meantime.

She found her husband in an extremely agitated condition. Together, they went to the station house, where they received the first clue to the fate of the girl. The house sergeant asked them to describe their daughter.

They did so and the policeman realized at once that it was their child who lay in the morgue.

The couple reached the morgue after 3 o'clock this morning. After passing through crowds of thousands of light-hearted revelers laughing, cheering, and singing over the downfall of the Kaiser, one glance at the small body with its head stiffly mutilated by the falling concrete, was enough. Both broke down and wept without restraint.

Bergolo, former Minister Plenipotentiary of Italy, at Copenhagen. The union was contracted without the consent of his father, or of the chief of his family, the King of Denmark.

It was through the intervention of his aunt, Queen Alexandra, of England, that he was pardoned, and that the marriage was recognized by the Court of Copenhagen; not before, however, he had renounced his honors and rank, and accepted for himself and his wife the title of Count and Countess Rosenborg.

Princess Axel, like his brothers, is very rich. For Prince Waldemar's son, and his only daughter, Princess Marguerite, inherited each a share in the very large fortune of their gifted mother, who died in 1909, and who was Princess Marie of Bourbon-Orleans.

Princess Marie possessed an immense fortune over her brother-in-law, Oscar Alexander III, and it is to her agency that was attributed his withdrawal from the so-called Three Emperors Alliance, with Austria and Germany, and his contracting in lieu thereof the alliance with France, which had so great a bearing upon the subsequent course of political events in Europe.

United States on more than one occasion, and is today the only surviving brother of Queen Alexandra of England, of the widowed Empress Marie of Russia and of the murdered King George of Greece.

In 1887 he was elected King of Bulgaria, but declined to accept the offer of the throne in terms as ostentatious as to excite a great deal of indignation at Sofia. It may be of interest to add that Prince Waldemar, who is very rich, has both financially and by the use of his influence with Crown and Government done everything in his way to promote the mercantile-maritime interests of his native land.
