

JUST GOSSIP ABOUT PEOPLE

Nancy Wynne Plans to Go to Historical Society Reception Saturday—Lieutenant Paul Home From Overseas. Mrs. Wurts's Class Opens Tomorrow Night

ARE you going to the Historical Society's reception Saturday? I am. The council of the society has decided to resume the receptions to soldiers, sailors and marines which were held so successfully last May and June, and so the war service committee of the society has announced that the first autumn reception will be held this Saturday evening from 7 to 10:45.

An orchestra will be there to play for the dancing and a Liberty Sing will be led by Mr. Albert Hoxie, and that's enough to let you know that the sing will be good. Did you see him up at the Liberty Statue on Monday? He had the crowd with him in a minute, singing anything from "Old Black Joe" to "When You Come Back."

There's to be a short address by a member of the Sons of the Revolution, who are to be the hosts of the evening, and two soloists will sing. Of course, there will be refreshments—who ever heard of a party for enlisted men that didn't have refreshments, and lots of them? Mr. Albert Cook Myers is chairman of the executive committee of the Historical Society and Mr. Ernest Spofford is secretary.

DID you know that Frank Paul returned from overseas last Tuesday? He's been detailed as an instructor here. He is a lieutenant in a machine-gun company, you know. He's staying with his sister, Mrs. John Kent Kane, out in Radnor, at present on a leave of a few days. I suppose the men still in camp will be trained for a while longer, that is until peace is absolutely settled. Though how in the world Germany could ever get on her feet again after all she has signed away would be a puzzle to any one. We certainly have got them where they belong.

WOULDN'T you just love to be in Paris today the army comes marching home? And they say that King Albert will probably enter Brussels tomorrow. Think of it! I'm afraid many will die of sheer joy.

I wonder how soon her friends here will be able to hear of Marie du Croix? She never visited in this country herself, but her brother, Prince Leopold du Croix, and her uncle, Prince Henri du Croix, often stayed in this city as guests of Mr. Walter George Smith. The Princess Marie was taken a prisoner early in the war; in fact, at the same time as Edith Cavell, and was condemned to life imprisonment and to be kept under constant surveillance, too. That meant that, never at any moment was she free from the watchful eye of a German soldier. Think of that for a delicately reared and so daintily exquisite woman, and I heard she had contracted tuberculosis there. And that is only a sample of what the Belgian and French women had to go through. I suppose a number of our women who have been over there doing war work will come home now and make room for others to go over and help. For there will be much to do. Probably many will stay, too.

WOULDN'T it be funny for the school set to wend its way Bellevue tomorrow night for Mrs. Charles Stewart Wurts's dancing class? For years it has been at Asher's, you know, though I think at one time it met at Horticultural Hall, whither so many of the dancing classes moved from the Natatorium. But Horticultural Hall is no more, you know; the new Spilbert Theatre is there, and so back to Asher's went the classes, until Asher's was taken over by the United Service Club, and now all ways point to the Bellevue.

Mrs. Wurts's class has been the rage for the girls from fourteen up to sixteen for many a day; and the boys of fifteen to eighteen go, too. It's killing to watch the youngsters at that age, don't you think? They are so grown up and so worried about their partners and cotillion engagements. They are so delightfully young, it seems, but they do have such good times, and Mrs. Wurts is an awfully good chaperone to the affair and sees that every one is introduced to every one else.

There will be several dinners before the meeting tomorrow, among others one for "Bunny" Geary, who seems a most popular young person.

WELL, with the war over, I wonder if we'll hear soon of an engagement that the small bird whispered to me some time ago? It was to come out after the war. And it was between an American girl and an English officer, and the girl has been doing a lot of splendidly efficient war work. She is very good-looking and has hosts of friends. Several years ago she had a most miraculous escape from death. That's almost telling you, isn't it? But then I promised not to, so I won't; but watch the news, my dears, watch the news these days. NANCY WYNNE.

Our spirit must now call us to show that it is not the roar of cannon, or the blood of our own alone that directs our action, but that a great people will continue to respond greatly and freely to its obligation and opportunity to serve mankind.

George J. Brown, 2401 South Oak street, was ordered to pay $15 to the Red Cross when he acknowledged he had been giving nine cents a pound for wheat flour despite the price-fixing rule of the administration. He was also warned to reduce prices on all commodities to bring the profit to the margins approved by the food administration.

Louis Green, 4101 Locust street, was ordered to pay $25 to the Red Cross as a penalty for hoarding sugar. It was revealed that he had thirteen 100-pound bags of sugar hidden in the second floor of his store, despite his contention that he had 120 pounds in the store as all he had.

He had also received certificates for the month of August to the amount of 700 pounds of which he had used only one for 100 pounds. He was directed to surrender the remaining certificates and return to his wholesaler 1200 pounds of sugar which he had hoarded. His cotton was also cut to 100 pounds per week or 400 pounds per month.

RED CROSS ACTIVITIES MUST AND WILL GO ON

"Even With Peace, Work Will Not Be Finished," War Council Asserts

There must be no let-up in the activities of the Red Cross. The American Red Cross War Council has issued the following statement: "Even with peace, let no one suppose that the work of the Red Cross is finished. Millions of American boys are still under arms. Thousands of them are sick or wounded. Owing to the shortage of shipping, it may take a year or more to bring our boys home from France. But, when they do, their families will be the normal life of peace again."

"Our soldiers and sailors are enlisted until the commander-in-chief tells them there is no more war for them to do in the war. Let every Red Cross member and worker remember that the conditions which have led to care for their health, welfare and happiness are enlisted with them to the end. The cessation of war will not mean a picture of misery such as the world has never seen before, especially in the military, which cannot help themselves. The American people will expect the Red Cross to continue to act as their agent in repairing broken spirits and broken bodies. Peace means better peace conditions with determine how we may best minister to the war-stricken areas which have been harassed by war, and in this great act of mercy, the Red Cross of the American people must be ready to be mobilized through the American Red Cross."

"On behalf of the Red Cross War Council, we accordingly ask each member of our sister body of workers throughout the land to bear in mind the solemn obligation which rests upon each one to carry on. We cannot abate one instant in our efforts or in our spirit. There will be an abundance of work to do, and specific advice will be given, but even at the moment of peace let no Red Cross worker falter. "Our spirit must now call us to show that it is not the roar of cannon, or the blood of our own alone that directs our action, but that a great people will continue to respond greatly and freely to its obligation and opportunity to serve mankind."

FOOD CHIEFS FINE TWO

One Overcharged for Wheat Flour and Other Hoarded Sugar

Two storekeepers were fined today for violations of food administration regulations. George J. Brown, 2401 South Oak street, was ordered to pay $15 to the Red Cross when he acknowledged he had been giving nine cents a pound for wheat flour despite the price-fixing rule of the administration. He was also warned to reduce prices on all commodities to bring the profit to the margins approved by the food administration.

THE MAN WITH THE CLUB FOOT

By VALENTINE WILLIAMS

IT WAS a Pullman car in which I found myself, with comfortable armchairs and small tables. The other passengers were young couple, I had broken away from my duties to see the city. The young couple, I had broken away from my duties to see the city. The young couple, I had broken away from my duties to see the city.

But by this time I had fully realized that, for some unknown reason, no trains were spared to do me honor, so probably the fare was something out of the common.

My companion was a bright, amusing fellow and delightfully typical of his class. He had seen a year's service with the cavalry on the eastern front, had been seriously wounded, and was now attached to the General Staff in Berlin in what I judged to be a decorative rather than a useful capacity.

It looked as if I might have a free run until Clubfoot could reach Berlin. That unless he also took a special, could not be until the next evening at earliest. But, more colorful than a meeting with the man of power and authority, long and interesting, the interview which I felt awaited me at the end of my present journey.

Evening was falling as we ran through the impenetrable region of sand and water and mud that encircles Berlin. We glided at lightning speed through the town suburbs, skirted the city, on whose tall buildings the electric sky-scraper were already beginning to twinkle, crashed heavily over a vast network of cables and great towers, and then sped again into the gathering darkness.

"Here we are at last," said my companion. I stepped out to meet my fate.

CHAPTER IV In the Snow Factory

QUEEN CRYSTAL, the Peggy to a high bill had not far from the ruins of the palace.

"There is no snow factory," said the Queen pointing to the hill.

"Peggy, transfixed into a whirl of air, is carried to Cloudland, where Captain, Queen of the Snows, asks her to leave her name, Blanche and Blizz."

"How lovely!" Peggy cried. "I never knew before that the Snow Elves were man's friends."

"To be sure they are," exclaimed Queen Crystal. "The Snow Elves were allowed to fall when they saw that they would do good and never cause harm."

"How I like to see the Snow Elves dance," said Peggy. "Let's see them dance."

"There you see what they are up to!" cried Queen Crystal, turning to Peggy. "You'd have to stop them at once."
