

SPROUL TO NAME HOUSE SPEAKER

Republican Faction Leaders Leave Selection With Governor-Elect

"DRYS" ALSO FAVORABLE

Many Prospective Candidates Already in Field for Legislative Honor

Harmony is virtually insured in the Republican ranks over the election of a Speaker of the House of the next Legislature.

Governor-elect William C. Sproul will be permitted by the rival Republican factions to select the Speaker, if he cares to exercise that privilege.

United States Senator Penrose and State Senator Vane, it has been learned, will leave the choice of Sproul up to the Governor-elect.

The "dry" members of the House also will abide by the decision of Governor-elect Sproul and will not look for the choice of Sproul over the election of a Speaker at the opening of the Legislature next January.

Representative John W. Vickerman of Allegheny County, leader of the "dry" forces in the last House, announced that the "dry" would not put up a candidate after conferring with Senator Sproul and W. Harry Baker, secretary of the Republican State committee.

Mr. Vickerman declined to say just what the majority would be in the House.

The large vote given Senator Sproul in the "dry" counties, said Mr. Vickerman in discussing the speaker's election, indicate that the "dry" counties have the utmost confidence in him.

"We want to help make his administration the most progressive in our history. For that reason we don't intend to make any contest over the speakership at the beginning of the Legislature."

Frederick Prohibition's Passage

The "dry" people will support the candidate favored by Senator Sproul because we have the utmost confidence that he will give us a fair deal.

The sentiment for ratification has grown so strong that a canvass of the State shows we will have a majority in the House.

Representative Vickerman predicted that as a result of the recent election thirty-nine States would ratify the amendment.

Only thirty-six are required to put it through and fourteen additional States are expected to ratify.

A number of other candidates for the speakership have been put forward, but few of them possess the necessary qualifications.

Representative Aaron B. Hess, of Lancaster, also has been mentioned prominently for the speakership.

Hess declined to line up with either faction in the last Legislature and Congressman William W. Griest, Republican leader of Lancaster County, has consistently pursued a neutral course between the rival Republican factions.

Representative William T. Ramsey, of Chester, also has been mentioned rather prominently. Ramsey is a "wet" and the fact that speaker Baldwin of the last House came from Delaware County would combine to lessen his chances.

He may be chosen to head the important Appropriations Committee of the House. Representative Woods, chief of the committee in the last House, having been elected Secretary of Internal Affairs.

It is definitely understood that the speakership in no event will come to Philadelphia, but that it will be rendered some member from the State.

Allegheny County is making a strong bid for the honor. Mayor E. V. Rossick of Pittsburgh; Governor Samuel C. Jamison and Senator-elect Max Leode come here to confer with Senator Sproul.

Others who have been mentioned for speakership are Samuel Gans, of Philadelphia; Hugh Dawson, of Lackawanna; W. F. Stetson, of York; Hamilton, of Allegheny; and Duncan Sinclair, of Luzerne.

EVERY CITIZEN IS INVITED TO ATTEND THIS FUNERAL

Public Turnout to Precede Cremation of William Hohenzollern Tonight With South Philadelphia's Foremost Residents as Chief "Mourners" at Final Ceremonies

WHALE of a big funeral downtown tonight.

Public funeral. Yes, sir, the public funeral, and undertaker Bruder guarantees that a large time will be had by all.

Been getting ready for it since Monday down around Sixteenth street and Spruce avenue. The corpse has been in public view there for several days. They've had it lying in state in a Liberty Loan booth.

You can judge the importance of the funeral by the number of the honorary pallbearers. Here they are: William S. Vane, Congressman; Joseph P. Guff, chief of the Pennsylvania State Police; James E. Lennon, president of Select Council; and James M. Haggitt, Recorder of Deeds.

Only trouble is they can't get a nurse to officiate. Not much wonder, though, come to think of it. For they're going to bury one William Hohenzollern.

Which fact might come as a surprise at the distinguished character of the pallbearers. It's not because they loved him so much, but because they're so darned glad to get rid of him.

As is proper, the remains will be cremated. But this interesting ceremony will not take place until the "body" has been paraded from the starting point at Sixteenth street and Spruce avenue to Independence Hall, proceeding over Broad street to Chestnut, then to Fifth.

There will be a monument, of course. It will be thus inscribed:

Kaiser William Hohenzollern Born 1859 Taken sick April, 1917 Died November 10, 1918 Doctor Peacock, Frank Gilbert, Joseph Malone, J. Cox, Dave Parker and M. Fahey will carry the corpse when necessary, but at other times it will be trundled along on a machine gun, with a guard of soldiers to see that it stays dead.

The Police Band will be considerably on the job; likewise the Boy Scouts and sailors from the Fourth Naval District. Just about everybody in the southwest-city section will be among those present.
