

SOUTHWEST AFRICANS KNOW HOW GERMANY ACQUIRES KULTUR

Teutons Convicted by Their Own Records of Almost Unbelievable Atrocities

Treaty-Abiding Natives Massacred and the Few Remaining Are Reduced to Slavery

By LIEUTENANT J. D. NEWSOM

THESE people are not the "natives" of the Southwest. They are the people of the Southwest who were the first to be civilized by the white man.

Home, capital of the Southwest, captured by the German, now in possession of the British.

How many of these people were there in 1882? It is difficult to say, but it is known that the population of the Southwest was at that time about 100,000.

When the first German soldiers landed in the Southwest, they were met by the natives who were friendly and hospitable.

In charge of the campaign. To the last, the Germans were not dealing with unwarlike natives, but with a people who were determined to fight for their freedom.

Establishing an Ally. That the making of terms with the Hereros was impossible, seeing that their chiefs had nearly all fled, or through their misdeeds during the rebellion had rendered themselves so hated that the German Government could not treat with them.

When the natives offered to surrender, Von Trotha refused to entertain the suggestion. They were killed, and their women and children were sent to the desert.

Even Von Trotha's own soldiers were not spared. They were killed, and their women and children were sent to the desert.

At a cost of several millions of marks, and several thousand German soldiers, the German Government has succeeded in exterminating the Hereros.

ENEMY FORCES MAY RENEW HOSTILE ACTS

Military Writer Sees Possibility of Certain Elements Refusing to Accept Terms

London, Nov. 15.—(British Admiralty Wireless.) It is evident that we must remain prepared for possible hostile action on the part of certain elements of the enemy's forces.

Revolutionary councils have been set up in various parts of the enemy's territory, and it is possible that they may refuse to accept the terms of the armistice.

Whatever happens, we must be prepared to meet any emergency. The British Admiralty is keeping a close watch on the situation.

The statement is made that the Allies and United States are ready to lend their whole resources to the task of restoring the economic basis of orderly life in these countries.

task only. They are appealing to their own people and to the Bolshevik elements in the Entente and neutral countries to resist the terms imposed by the Allies.

It is impossible to tell whether a Socialist State may be evolved in Germany which might, if it had the opportunity, refuse to carry out its obligations.

The world will not be safe until Germany is powerless—until she is disarmed and the Allies have occupied a sufficient extent of her country to render it impossible for her to resist our demands.

Our first object must be to enforce the peace for which we wish to wage war, and until this is done we cannot relax our efforts or reduce our objectives to any material extent.

You are putting your shoes to the test every step you take. Are they giving SERVICE? It is not a question solely of their wearing well—of their looking as well for a reasonable time—but do they really PROTECT your feet from the jars and shocks of city life? There is no question about it.
