

PENN LED THE MARCH AGAINST THE PITT ELEVEN, BUT IT WAS TOWARD THEIR OWN GOAL

PENN TEAM, THOUGH OUTCLASSED, FOUGHT GAMELY TO THE END

Quakers' Green Eleven Played Well Individually, but Lack of Teamwork Made It Easy for Panthers' Smashing Backfield to Drive Through

THE only things which interfered with Penn's week-end visit to Pittsburgh were the University of Pittsburgh football team, five touchdowns, four goals and a goal from the field, all of which totaled 37 points. This constituted the margin of victory, or something like that, and sent the Red and Blue off the field with the fourth defeat in as many years. Outside of that, however, a pleasant time was had by all.

Every time somebody scores a victory over somebody else it is customary to dig into the canary, grab some time-honored expression, dust it off and apply it as a salve to the wounded feelings of the victim. There are many such expressions which can be used in this case, the most prominent being:

"Went down with the colors flying."

"They died game, boys!"

"Fought gallantly to the end."

"Took a beating like men."

"Outfought, outgeneraled, but not outgamed."

"Defeated, but not disgraced."

Any one of these is permissible in describing the wreck of the Red and Blue machine on Forbes Field, but the "defeated but not disgraced" stuff fits in better than anything else. Every one who saw the game, even those who couldn't tell the difference between the goal posts and a kick-off, will admit that Penn was defeated, and those same spectators will tell the world that the vanquished eleven never stopped fighting from the initial kick-off until the final whistle. Battling against tremendous odds, outclassed from the start, the Red and Blue disputed every inch of the way like a fox terrier challenging a St. Bernard or a game bantamweight taking a shanty at Jack Dempsey.

The result never was in doubt. Penn was a 100-to-1 shot, but little things like that did not dampen the spirit of Captain Jim Nelson and his fighting men. As the score grew larger the players fought harder and showed by their every move that there is no disgrace in getting beaten.

DESPITE the 37 to 0 score, Penn showed a marked improvement both on the attack and defense. Three weeks ago the team seemed hopeless. The material was green, few knew anything about the game and the players looked like a gang of prep school kids. It's a mystery how Bill Hollingshead whipped that squad into shape, but he did it, and deserves all of the glory and the credit, to say nothing of the plaudits of the multitude.

Pitt, Minus McLaren, Showed Improvement

PENN put up a better game than Washington and Jefferson, which means that Pitt also improved in the last week. The Warner machine was running smoothly on Saturday and the plays went off without a hitch. Knowing that John W. Heisman, of Georgia Tech, was in the grand stand, his eagle eye taking in everything that happened on the field, the Pitt coach stuck to his old style of play. He even failed to use McLaren, the great fullback, for fear of having him injured. Without McLaren, however, the Panthers worked without a hitch and showed some wonderful team play.

It must be remembered that Saturday's game was the second of the season for Pittsburgh. A team can get out and practice every day perfecting its plays, but it takes actual competition to get those plays off properly. In practice the men grow careless in regard to the use of hands and outside, and as a result are penalized severely in the games. Against W. and J. Pitt was sacked many times for this illegal stuff, and Saturday there was more of the same in the first period. After that the players settled down to their work and behaved beautifully. Another reason for the penalties is that Pitt had the ball most of the time, and it is the offensive eleven which commits most of the fouls.

Pitt showed a big improvement in blocking, interfering, tackling and running with the ball. The famous reverse play was as bewildering as ever, the thrusts off tackle were swift and deadly and the end runs swept everything before them. No one can beat Warner's interference. It seems as if every man on the team is ahead of the runner, and when a tackler appears he is swept off his feet by a flying body. One by one the opposition is taken out of the play until the runner is clear.

WARNER'S teams always have been well coached in the rudiments of the game, and this system has proved its value for the last twenty-three years. The men know what to do and how to do it. That's all there is to football, anyway.

Davies Football Find of the Season

THERE is a young person on the Pitt team named Tom Davies, who looks like the best player that has broken into the game in years. Davies is a shifty, speedy, clever player, solidly built, and when it comes to traveling fast, has the other athletes looking like cab horses in a race with Eternal. This young man is playing his first year with Pitt, but already has carved his name on the honor roll. As a field general he is the best the Panthers have had since the days of Jimmy De Hart, and he also plays an excellent game on the defense.

McKinley sent in a high shot, which McKeever tipped over the bar, and from the resultant corner Forrest headed the second goal. Half time arrived with the steel workers leading by 2 to 0.
