

WHY DO YOU CARE MORE WOMEN KEEP DIARIES?—A BRAND-NEW MILITARY BLOUSE—IN THE SHOW

NOW THAT WAR IS ENDED WE WISH WE'D KEPT A DIARY

But It Isn't Too Late to Begin Now, for the Days of Reconstruction Will Be Big Ones for Women—The Value of Fresh Impressions Set Down

WITH the war drawn to a close I suddenly wake up to the fact that the story of the greatest national experience the world has ever known has slipped our fingers without our ever tightening a finger to grasp it. I know a woman who, for instance, was making up her mind to keep a diary ever since April 6, 1917, which was the day war was declared. Last week there were three entries in her diary. One had to do with the declining of war itself, another with a burning desire to go to France and the last one to know whether you could call it an entry or not—was a shopping list.

Of course, there has not been much time for diary keeping these days, but the woman who is so anxious to do it sits up a few minutes longer each night and jot down her wartime experiences would have a powerful document to hand down to her grandchildren. It is not too late to begin now.

Please Tell Me What to Do

Have Lots of Girls for Friends Dear Cynthia—I have known a girl for the last six months and have taken her for a steady company. I am sure I can do it, but I am sure I am young enough to have plenty of other boys in the crowd who devote themselves to other things than she is going out with when she does not go with you.

Forget About Him Dear Cynthia—I am a young girl seventeen years of age and in love with a young man of twenty-eight. He is a very nice fellow and I am sure he will be good-looking by the opposite sex.

And So They Were Married Episode One—(Intolerance)

CHAPTER VII THE days that followed Ruth learned gradually what it meant to live intimately with another person. Living at home had been entirely different. If she had cared to differ with her mother it was possible, but now if she differed from Scott in any way it vaguely disturbed her.
