Scholars Collecting Material Likely to Quit if Work Is Taken From Them

It is up to Governor-elect Sprou whether the history of Pennsylvania's part in the war will be written by Governor Brumbaugh or by the trained historians of the Pennsylvania War History Commission.

Mr. Sproul, interviewed in New York this afternoon, refused to make any comment on former Brumbaugh's appoint

Until the commission formally meets and discusses the situation created by the advent of Governor Brumbaugh as "war historian" at $10,000 a year, the scholars who are thus swept into the discard prefer to remain silent.

It can be said with certainty, however, that unless Governor-elect Sproul backs the war history commission, of which he is the chairman, the historians serv-ing in that body with withdraw and leave the honors and the work to Govremor Brumbaugh.

Meanwhile the commission will go ahead collecting materials for the war history. A great deal of work already has been done.

Plans Partly Worked Out

The preliminary plans have been worked out wit ha comprehensiveness that gives a foretaste of what the comon's history would have been had it not ben necessary to find a soft and dignified job for the retiring Gov-

Dr. Albert E. McKinley, secretary of the commission and professor of history at the University of Pennsylvania, said this afternoon that the commission had made definite plans to secure the record of every man from Pennsylvania who has been in the service.

The military phase of Pennsylvania's war-history was only the smaller part of the great work that had been planned t by the members of the commission. "If anything," said Doctor McKinley. "the industrial work done in Penusylvania during the war period was of more far-reaching importance than the military service of Pennsylvanians. "As a preliminary step to covering the military side of the work, we had ordered the printing of blanks which were to be sent to every draft board in Penasylvania. These blanks were to be filled in with complete information about the service of every individual in the Pennsylvania regiments, at the time the men were mustered out, and forwarded by the draft boards to the commission.

Job to be Attacked Governor Brumbaugh will hold his job as State historian only a short time, if at all, if present plans of those opposed to his appointment are carried to maturity.

If all other methods fail, a fight will be made in the Legislature to rip him out of his lucrative berth.*

The first step to be taken, it is said.
will be a petition to the courts to intervene. Should this appeal prove ineffective, it is declared, a motion will be presented in the General Assembly to repeal the law under which the new posi-tion was created.

The Legislature will convene January

7. The Governor whose term expires January 21, is to assume his duties as historian Februa y 1.

Schools Close Thanksgiving Day Thanksgiving proclamations by President Wilson and Governor Brumbaugh will be read in the public schools here today. The schools will be closed to-morrow and Friday. Residents of Lansdowne last night, at Borough Hall, started a movement for the building of a memorial to the 200 odd men and boys who left Lansdowne for the front. The meeting was called men and boys who left Lansdowne for the front. The meeting was called and presided over by the Chief Burgess William A. McEwen. Three forms of memorial were suggested by the speakers, a granite monument with a bronze tablet with the names of every one from the district in the country's service, a community center or club and a swimming pool.

A man was killed and a woman and a child were injured last night and a man was hurt by a trolley car.
