

GUARD INTEGRITY OF MURMAN SOIL

Basis Arranged for Larger Intervention in Northern Russia

REGIONAL COUNCIL RULE

Food and Other Necessary Articles to Be Furnished by Entente

Washington, Nov. 29. The agreement between the Murman regional council on the one side and the Allies and the United States on the other, respecting the armed intervention of the latter Powers on the Archangel front is the basis on which the future and larger intervention of the Entente Powers and America will be arranged, according to an Allied diplomat here.

Although it has been made to appear that the sole object of the occupation by American forces of the Archangel region was for the purpose of preventing the stores of war materials at Murmansk from falling into the hands of the Germans, the text of the agreement signed by representatives of the Allies and the United States with the Murman Regional Council discloses that there were more important objectives.

The associated Powers and the Council support each other mutually for the defense of the Murman region against the German coalition, which is defined as the Alexandrovsk district of the province of Archangel through the district of the Central Empire removes that danger, there is no intention of withdrawing the military expeditions of France, England and the United States, which will continue to co-operate with the Murman Regional Council in the protection and provisioning of the population in operations against the Bolsheviks.

The Allies and America, in the agreement, recognized "as very desirable that an independent Russian army should be created, but with the object of obtaining more speedily the principal portion of this agreement the admission of Russian volunteers into the Allied forces is permitted."

The agreement contains, among others, the following provisions: "The representatives of Great Britain, the United States of North America and France will give to the Russian command necessary help in equipments, supplies and transports and for the maintenance of the Russian armed forces which are formed."

"The whole authority in the internal administration of the region belongs without qualification to the Murman regional council."

"In all matters in which it may be found necessary to have the support of the local population, representatives of Great Britain, the United States of North America and France and the principal agents will address themselves to the respective authorities and not directly to the population, excepting in the belt along the front, in which the orders of the military command, justified by the conditions of field service, must be obeyed unconditionally by all."

"In view of the impossibility of importing the necessary food from Russia, the representatives of Great Britain, the United States of North America and France promise, as far as it may be possible, to secure food for the Murman regional council for the whole population of the region, including all immigrant workmen, with their families, in quantities equal in food value the rations which the privates of the Allied armed forces in Murman are receiving."

"The distribution of food among the population is to be carried out by trustworthy Russian troops."

"To Provide Materials "The representatives of Great Britain, the United States of North America and France promise, as far as it may be possible, to secure to the Murman regional council all necessary materials and implements for the construction and supply, so that it may carry out its program of construction, which has been elaborated by mutual agreement. In this agreement, first, the requirements of warlike are taken into consideration; secondly, the development of international trade intercourse; and, thirdly, the local fisheries. "The representatives of Great Britain, the United States of North America and France recognize that their Governments must give the necessary financial assistance to the Murman regional council. . . . The columns of "Seen in the Chestnut Street Shops," started a couple of months ago, have two aims in view: the first, to be useful to the shopping public; the second, to be interesting. It would help greatly to know how far they have been successful in one, the other, or in both. And if not, why not? Having unusual opportunities of seeing and examining the exceptionally fine stock of goods carried by the Chestnut Street Shops, I want every one to benefit by my experience, and would be glad of suggestions as to the best means of being of service to you as quickly, complimentary or otherwise, and address them to Deborah Logan, Room 708, Bailey Building, 1218 Chestnut Street.

Deborah Logan RAGGEDY ANN! Isn't that a perfect name for a rag doll? She has shoe-button eyes, yarn hair, painted nose and mouth, and such funny, old-fashioned clothes. Just the kind of dollie that little maids fall in love with, particularly when they have the "Raggedy Ann Stories," telling all about her pranks and adventures with other dolls, many of which are in the Toy Department of B. F. Dewees, 1122 Chestnut Street. The indestructible character dolls—sailors, soldiers, Red Cross nurses, etc., come in all sizes, and Art dolls with unbreakable heads that have really intelligent faces, these you will find in the Toy Department of B. F. Dewees, 1122 Chestnut Street. THE necessity for wool conservation has by no means increased since war ceased. Besides clothing in its many uses, Uncle Sam has undertaken to clothe the impoverished peoples of Europe, and this extra call upon the country's resources greatly depletes the supply of wool to be used in the manufacture of rugs. Not only domestic but imported rugs are bound to be higher priced in the future, and those contemplating a purchase for a Christmas gift, wedding present or for themselves had best make their selection now, before present stocks are exhausted. Fritz & La Rue, 1124 Chestnut street, the well-known rug dealers, had the foresight to assemble a large and attractive collection of rugs prior to present critical conditions, and have not raised their prices since the demand for them has so greatly increased.

HAVE you ever considered what the world would be without music? If every melodious sound produced by nature was suddenly hushed and silenced, if every musical instrument made by man was destroyed, think of the endlessly dreary days and nights, of the pall of gloom that would settle on us if we had no more Steinyan pianos! Yet there are homes still without these exquisitely toned pianos; homes that lack the inspiring atmosphere of music; homes that only need the cheering and joyous influence of a Steinyan to be in fact what they are in name—a home. And no time is better than the present for securing an Upright or Grand at N. Stetson & Co., 1111 Chestnut street. What greater and more enchanting Christmas surprise could be given any mortal?

ONE holiday has no sooner passed than another comes along, and with Christmas less than a month off, preparations must be made in earnest, particularly for sending off "rats" to the hundreds of men who will spend the Holiday of Holidays in camp. At E. Bradford Clarke Co., 1520 Chestnut street, they have wooden boxes with screw tops prepared for this purpose, and ready for expressage or parcel post. The person who filled them must have been both expert in packing and diagnosing the wants of hungry men, for, though the boxes are comparatively small, each contains four kinds of the choicest crackers; pot-meats, so good on bread or crackers; two kinds of chocolate, solid and drinking; chewing gum, peanut brittle, crystallized ginger, six varieties of cigarettes, tobacco and the makins.

EVERY one has been urged to make useful presents this Yuletide. Had stress been laid on suitable, as well as useful, the results might be happier, for gifts can be both, as is proven at William Curry's, 1112 Chestnut street, where multitudes of Oriental rug articles are to be had, from the cheapest to the most expensive grades. Among the practical things for men or women are good-looking traveling bags and suitcases, in all sizes, and of serviceable tan, black and brown leathers or enamel. The roomy English Kit Bags, and Bellows cases of sole leather, are two favorites with travelers who like hand luggage with the capacity of small trunks. Toilet cases to put into these large bags come in fitting feminine or masculine, one of the latter containing twelve pieces, being specially priced.

WHEN there are many fashions to choose from, to say that this or that is the best is setting up personal taste as a criterion, and it is only when this opinion is backed by popular acclaim that it assumes weight. So for me to say which of the numerous overcoats of Jacob Reed's Sons, 1424-26 Chestnut street, is the best, would be futile, but the popular one of the season is the Ulster. The style features worked into the practical lines of this coat make it unusually attractive to all ages and types of men. There are conservative, semi-conservative and ultra-moderns, in fabrics of every color and kind, from the soft, fleecy "wauwau without weight" to the durable "wear like iron," all excellent health insurances against the winter's cold.

America and France, in the name of their Governments, again affirm the absence of any purpose of conquest in respect to the Murman region as a whole or in regard to any of its ports. The president of the Murman regional council before the Russian people and the Governments of Great Britain, the United States of North America and France declares that the only object of this agreement is to guard the integrity of the Murman region for a great united Russia."
