

BRITISH APPROVE WILSON ADDRESS

London Press Says President Will Find Entente Friendly to Views

DAZED AS TO POINTS

Anxiety Is Manifested on Interpretation of the Peace Principles

By the Associated Press

President Wilson's address to the American Congress is cordially commended upon by the morning newspapers, which couple their commendation with the reiteration of sentiments of hearty satisfaction that he is to attend the peace conference.

There is manifest a strain of anxiety in the editorial, although from different angles, in various utterances with regard to reconciling the President's principles as embodied in his fourteen points with the aspirations of the Allies.

The Morning Post (conservative) while paying tribute to the President's terms of the President and to American cooperation in the war, notes upon the importance of the exact relation of the fourteen points to the peace settlement being understood.

The Daily News (radical) asks anxiously for evidence of the acceptance of the spirit of the President's terms, which was accepted, with one exception, by the Allies, and deplores the "ominous absence of any considered or worthy reference to the peace settlement in the coalition government's appeal to the electorate of Great Britain."

The liberal movement of the world must organize against the forces which everywhere are consolidating to rob humanity of the fruits of its sacrifices and restore the old war-torn world on a basis hitherto unimagined.

PARIS PRESS FRIENDLY TO WILSON'S ADDRESS

Paris, Dec. 4.—(By A. P.)—The Paris newspapers print the principal passages of President Wilson's message to Congress, and special writers comment favorably.

The length of the document makes publication of the text impossible. Besides, it is an address, as nature, not a treaty, and it is not without some particularly to the American people.

Julien Sorel, writing in the Oul sace, if President Wilson's speech brings us no new information on international policy, it gives us suggestions which should serve the Allied Governments in approaching the difficult questions of demobilization which have had foreseen.

One passage of the message interests us especially. It is that in which President Wilson announces his intention of asking Congress to make a special effort to help the economic restoration of France and Belgium.

The eminent statesman will not be found in realizing that in the negotiations of tomorrow the role of arbitrator between the belligerents, if by chance he thinks of assuming it, could only forestall the hopes of intrigue by the vanquished.

KING GEORGE REGARDS HIS COUSIN AS ARCH CRIMINAL

British Monarch Believes No Penalty Is Too Severe for Crimes of William Hohenzollern—Considers Him Personal Director of Atrocities Committed by Germans

Correspondence of The Associated Press

What does King George really think of his cousin William Hohenzollern, former German Emperor? This is a question that has been often asked, but has never received anything approaching an authoritative answer.

The writer says that he was talking a few days ago with a well-known statesman, who has had many opportunities of hearing the King express his views of the Kaiser.

KAISER WRITES CONTINUALLY

Exile Labors Incessantly at Memoirs or Possibly Confession

London, Dec. 4.—(By A. P.)—William Hohenzollern wears a dejected appearance, according to the Telegraph's correspondent at Amsterdam.

Here, Hohenzollern keeps up and more to himself. He is not inclined to go abroad. The correspondent says that his informant took him to an unfrequented place from which an unshaded window in the castle was visible.

The former Emperor sits at that window writing as if against time, hour after hour, after "short" rests, all the forenoon and all the afternoon.

BRITISH CAVALRY FIRST IN GERMANY

Young Officer Leads Advance of Dragoons With Drawn Swords

By PHILIP GIBBS

Special Cable to Evening Public Ledger

At 9 o'clock yesterday morning our troops crossed the Belgian frontier and entered Germany. I went with our leading patrol of cavalry over the little stone bridge across the Rote water brook and through the town of Matigny, a few miles within German territory.

Our cavalry and horse artillery, with their transport drawn up on the Belgian side of the frontier before the bridge, followed the lead of our dragoons, who were standing by their horses, clanging their helmets and beating their swords and standing their feet to get their physical bent.

The young cavalry officer commanding the troop of the Dragoon Guards seemed a little nervous of his responsibility of being the first to ride into Germany and across he didn't know a word of that dialect language and could not pronounce a single blessed name, so that it would be no fault of his if he took the wrong turning.

But the road was fairly simple to Matigny except for a lanipin turn some way outside the town, and the patrol went forward at a trot through the pine woods and fir forests along the edge of the ravine, where the German Santa Claus seems to grow all his "christmas trees." There was the heart of the horses' hoofs on the frozen roads and the cavalry swords gleamed ahead of us.

We followed the leading troop. There were no longer double sentries on the bridge across the Rote water brook and the gate of Germany was wide open and we went into the silent countryside which we had seen from the Belgian end of the bridge.

It was very silent and the first farm houses we passed and the cottages under the shelter of the woods seemed quite abandoned. There were no flags hung out from them like those millions of flags which have fluttered along all the miles of our way through Belgium.

over a term of years, the question is whether there is capacity in the German capital to meet this, save by production of goods which would compete with the products of the Allied countries.

As regards the question of a shipping indemnity, Nicholson says: "The ten-for-ten policy is destined to fail, because there are not enough German ships to take our losses."

AUSTRIANS FACE GREAT PROBLEMS

Conditions in New Republics Grow More Menacing Daily

By the Associated Press

Vienna, Nov. 28 (delayed)—Two big problems confront the republics which have arisen from the ruins of the Hapsburg empire.

The first problem involves internal conditions in each republic and also between the republics. Relations between the governments and the nations within each republic depend on food, coal and living conditions.

Second—That ruined towns in these countries should be rebuilt by German labor, that roads should be rebuilt and battlefields dug over and restored, and scattered metals collected also by German labor.

Swiss Resolution Proposes Claims at Peace Table

By A. P.

Berne, Dec. 4.—(By A. P.)—Dr. Widmer of Wolfingen, has introduced a resolution in Parliament inviting the Swiss government to immediately approach other neutrals for the purpose of jointly establishing the claims and rights of neutral nations at the peace conference.

When it enters their political consciousness the residents of the former empire readily declare that they are acting according to the spirit of President Wilson's messages, so much so that they are ready to accept the ten-for-ten policy.

London Express Says Marshal Has Only Warned Germany

London, Dec. 4.—(By A. P.)—The Express claims to be able to deny the report from Berlin yesterday that a new ultimatum had been sent to the German Government because all the terms of the armistice cannot be delivered at once.

The newspaper says that it is true that Germany is not keeping up to the stipulated schedule and that Marshal Foch has given warning that Germany will be responsible for further delays, but he has not fixed a time limit for the carrying out of the clause relative to railroad equipment.
