

BISHOP ASSAILED BY IRISH LEADER

Patrick McCartan Denounces Dr. Rhinelander for Attacking Meeting

CALLS HIM PRO-ENGLISH

More Interested in England Than United States, Sinn Fein Leader Declares

There is more English propaganda here than there is German propaganda and Bishop Rhinelander appears to be even more interested in England than in the United States.

Dr. Patrick McCartan, Sinn Fein member of the British Parliament and author of the "provisional Irish Government," made that reply today to a statement issued by Bishop Rhinelander of the Pennsylvania Diocese of the Episcopal Church, concerning a mass-meeting to be held tonight in the Academy of Music.

Bishop Rhinelander, in declining to serve as vice president of the meeting, said "it would undoubtedly play into the hands of German propaganda."

The mass-meeting of Irish societies was called to demand official recognition of Ireland's claims for absolute freedom, under the principle of self-determination championed by President Wilson.

Bishop's Statement

The head of the Episcopal diocese of Pennsylvania, in his statement said: "Quite apart from the question of whether Ireland has so acquitted herself during this war as to deserve consideration in this or any other form by us or by any of the Allied nations, this proposed action by American citizens would most certainly be taken by Great Britain as an unfriendly act. It would necessarily imply our belief that Great Britain of herself is either unwilling or unable to solve this most difficult of all her imperial problems righteously and wisely."

Commenting on that part of the Bishop's statement, Doctor McCartan said: "We consider that Ireland is in the same position toward Ireland as Belgium was toward Germany when the Kaiser's armies seized Albert's kingdom. We could never see why we should fight for our oppressors."

"But despite that, Irishmen did fight in the British army, thinking they were fighting for the freedom of their own country. The sacrifices made by the Irish people will bear favorable comparison even with those made by the United States."

"According to the British Government's own figures, 179,000 Irishmen fought in the British army. In England itself and in the colonies, 35,000 Irishmen joined the colors."

"Ireland did its full share and more in the payment of taxes, too. Before the war the Irish paid $12,000,000 in taxes annually. Last year their taxes amounted to $20,000,000, or roughly $150,000,000."

"The bishop speaks of German propaganda. There is more English propaganda here than German propaganda, and Bishop Rhinelander appears to be even more interested in England than in the United States."

At the mass-meeting tonight, at which Governor-elect Sproul is expected to preside, the speakers will include Senator Phelan, of California; Mayor Connors, of New York; United States draft director; former Congressman Donohoe, the Rev. Thomas J. Hurton, rector of the Catholic Church of the Annunciation; Judge Eugene C. Bonnett and Doctor McCartan.

Archbishop Dougherty will be represented by Bishop John J. McCort. The Archbishop is in New Orleans.

Signed the Invitations

Monsignor Gerald P. Coghlan, rector of the Roman Catholic Church of Our Lady of Mercy, and the Rev. Thomas J. Hurton, rector of the Church of the Annunciation, signed the invitations to act as vice presidents of the meeting sent to more than 150 men of prominence.

Father Hurton said the meeting tonight is not an Irish meeting but an American meeting, called to demand justice for an oppressed nation. He said the government of Ireland is the least democratic in Europe and that the desire of its 10,000,000 representatives on purely Irish questions can be satisfied five to one. Those sponsoring the meeting, he said, had "absolutely no hard feelings against the British empire, but simply desired to uphold representative government."

Official English figures placing at 179,000 the number of Irishmen in the war were deliberately misleading, he said. More than a half million men born in Ireland, "but exiled because of bad economic conditions," he continued, "fought in the Allied ranks."

DR. J. A. BEEK REINSTATED

Gloucester Physician, Honorably Discharged From Service, Resumes Duties

Dr. J. A. Beek, who resigned as city physician and inspector of the Gloucester City Board of Health soon after the war was declared to enter the service, was honorably discharged today. He will take up his duties as medical inspector next week. The board did not fill the position after Dr. J. K. Bennett died during the recent epidemic.

Doctor Beek served at Tampa, Fla., Fort McPherson, Ga., Camp Meade, Md., and was ready to leave for France when the armistice was signed.

HANS KINDLER PLAYS CONCERTO FIRST TIME

Music Dedicated to Cellist, Accompanied by Composer.

Marcia Van Dresser Sang

The first Philadelphia presentation of a concerto by George F. Boyle, dedicated to Hans Kindler, was given yesterday by Mr. Kindler himself at the Monday Musicales in the ballroom of the Bellevue-Stratford. The concerto was well arranged to bring out Mr. Kindler's varied skill in strong richness of tone, steady sustaining notes and ringing chords. De Bussey's dainty "Les Cloches" was played with a soft deep tone that sounded almost like the ringing voice. Other numbers were three of Chopin's waltzes arranged for the cello by Mr. Kindler; the serenade by Saint-Saens, and "Pavilions" by Popper.

Miss Marcia Van Dresser, who sang Italian, French and English songs, charmed her audience first by her personality and attractive costume, and then by her clear, full mezzo-soprano voice. Her range is quite extensive, and her low notes were sustained with such power as to suggest a pure contralto voice. Her high notes came out clear and strong, and she interpreted all the songs with a great deal of expression. The songs in English, "May Night" and "Do not Go, My Love," by Richard Hageman; "The Bird," by Dwight Fiske, and "We Two Together," by Marshall Kernochan, were written with an interesting running accompaniment, which was delightfully played by Mr. Boyle. The large audience was most appreciative. Gen. W. T. Waller, U. S. M. C., and Mrs. Waller were in a box. Miss Ellen Cassatt was in the audience, and also Mrs. Yarnall, who was with Captain Poissin. Mrs. Edith Mahon was in one of the boxes.

ARTISTS FAVOR PLAN OF MEMORIAL ARCHES

Joseph Pennell's Suggestion for Commemorating America's Part in War Discussed

The proposition that America's part in the war be commemorated by the construction of national memorials along the Lincoln Highway, advanced by Joseph Pennell, is being made the subject of interested discussion among local artists today.

Mr. Pennell made his suggestion at a meeting of the Fellowship of the Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts. The members of the country could unite and make each bridge along the highway a permanent tribute to the valor of the Americans who offered their lives in France.

J. McClure Hamilton, president of the Fellowship, is enthusiastic in his endorsement of the plan. The artists of the country have already proved their ability and the work they accomplished during the war entitles them to the privilege of planning the memorial, he said. Such a memorial, he explained, would be both useful and artistic, and would have the additional advantage of being national in scope.

Miss Violet Oakley, one of the leading artists of the country, said that she had heard the recommendation and that she was giving the matter her earnest consideration. She preferred to do it until she had studied the problem before giving her opinion as to its merits.

Others were not so reticent. The suggested memorial met with their approval and they promised to give any plan launched to further it their hearty support.

In explaining his plan, Mr. Pennell

It was time to leave "provincialism" behind and to think in terms of a national memorial. He said: "I have heard of a lot of things that should be done for the good of the town. But we must think of larger things."

"What we want to extol and commemorate is the glory of the United States. Therefore, memorials in honor of the war heroes should be erected where all Americans will have a chance to see them. I propose that the Government get together the artists of the country and commission them to design memorials to be placed at all the bridge-heads along the line of the Lincoln Highway. In that manner millions of persons could see them and reflect on the things they stand for. If you want to do honor to a big thing, you want to do it in a big way."

"The work of American artists during the fourth Liberty Loan campaign proved that they are capable of doing any task the Government asks."

INSTALL GLENSIDE PASTOR

The Rev. W. H. Berry at St. Paul's Church

Services at St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Glenside, were devoted to the installation of the Rev. W. H. Berry as pastor. Prominent participants were the Rev. Dr. S. D. Dougherty, an old friend and former classmate of the new minister and missionary superintendent of the East Pennsylvania Synod, and the Rev. W. H. Harding, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church at Camden, also a former classmate of the Rev. Mr. Berry. A special musical program was given by the choir.

Mr. Berry was formerly pastor at Morgantown, W. Va., which charge he resigned in July to serve as camp pastor under the National Lutheran Commission for Soldiers' and Sailors' Welfare and later as assistant chaplain at the Philadelphia Navy Yard.

EMERGENCY AID WORK GROWS

Rummage Sale to Meet Increased Demands for Assistance

Signing of the armistice has not lessened the activities of the Emergency Aid of Pennsylvania, according to a statement made at the headquarters, 1724 Chestnut street. Instead, the committee of supplies is having a constant increase in emergency calls. The ravages caused by the influenza epidemic are given as the principal reason, and it is pointed out that responsibility to the soldiers who are returning and to their families has not been reduced.

To meet the situation the ladies of the Emergency Aid have arranged for a rummage sale on December 18 and 14, and request that use articles of every description be sent to 1724 Chestnut street from now until the date of the sale.
