Trace Berlin Riot to Foreign Office

Continued from Page One residence after his arrest yesterday. The principal data among it are thousands of handbills, which evidently were intended for distribution after the plan of an resting the executive committee succeeded. The handbills read: 'Comrades, citizens, women! Read this aloud. Paris of the Berlin garrison and front formations were compelled to arrest today the traitorous, incompetent, treacherous executive committee, as it endangers to the utmost the people's welfare.'

The last sentence sounds strangely reminiscent of Wilhelm II, who once, to the great chagrin of all liberal-minded people, proclaimed publicly: 'The King's will is the supreme law.' If it were not for this last line, one might mistake the handbill for a genuine democratic product; but Marten's assertions do not warrant the belief that he was serious in his democratic intentions.

'Red Heart' the Watchword At the homes of all three a number of black arm-loops with a red heart embroidered thereon were discovered. Some minor culprits had a number of these arm-loops, which evidently were to distinguish the leaders of the new movement if the coup succeeded.

The only red flag displayed in all Potsdam is flying from the roof of Prince Friederich Leopold's castle. Near-by, in Neubabelberg the Guard Cuirassiers have been quartered, awaiting with other guard regiments the festive entrance into Berlin on Tuesday, which circumstance gave rise to an alarming rumor that Berlin was on the eve of a Royalist invasion.

No matter what was the ultimate intentions of Marten, Matuscha, and Rheinbaden, the reactionary press contented that they meant to aid Ebert's Government may be regarded as ridiculous. It has not yet been discovered who, in the guise of a 'Captain Kessler,' ordered the Franzer regiment to participate in the coup, but Matuscha is suspected of having played the part.

Find Homes as They Left Them Some houses had disappeared altogether; some had been decapitated, the piled bricks in adjoining gardens revealing what had become of the top floors. These extraordinary changes were due to the requirements of modern art. In most cases, however, the Helgolanders found their homes exactly as they left them in that hurried half hour they were given to pack up on August 14, 1918.

Representatives of the troops which are to guard Berlin took an oath in the town hall at Stogitz, swearing absolute loyalty to the German people's republic. Independent Socialists, according to advice reaching here, exhorted the soldiers to disarm, but they refused.

At a demonstration before the Bismarck monument in Berlin Sunday, Minister Heinrich Strobel said: 'It is incredible that the military is still in the hands of Von Hindenburg, who is a great reactionary. I am in possession of a letter from Von Hindenburg which makes it apparent that he overthrew Von Bethmann-Hollweg because the latter was inclined to reform and not strong enough to stick up for a peace of victory.'

Cadillac permanence of value recognized by War Department In officially designating the Cadillac the standard seven-passenger car of the United States Army, the War Department recorded the crowning testimonial to the permanent value of the Cadillac. The Cadillac was chosen because it most adequately met the Government's need for a magnificently smooth and steady piece of motive-power, possessing that freedom from adjustment, overhauling and repair which alone spells true economy in a motor car. The average Cadillac owner derives his greatest satisfaction from the very quality of permanent value which determined the choice of the Cadillac by the Government. Open evenings until 10 o'clock during Jubilee Week, Dec. 7th-14th. Cadillac is the standard of the world.
