

GERMANY WILLING KAISER BE TRIED

New Government Will Not Oppose if Demanded by Allies

WANT LUDWIG INCLUDED

Bavarian Ex-King Said to Have Plotted Separation Before Armistice Was Signed

By GEORGE RENWICK
Wireless to the Evening Public Ledger

Amsterdam, Dec. 12. I am informed from an excellent source at The Hague that the German Government on December 10 considered the Kaiser question. After a long discussion it was decided that the Government, as representing the majority and Independent Socialist parties and the Soldiers' and Workmen's Council of greater Berlin, could not and would not oppose any demand by the Entente that William III, be handed over to the Allies for trial.

As regards the ex-Crown Prince, the opinion expressed during the discussion was even more hostile than that directed against the ex-Kaiser. It is declared from another quarter that this decision has already been communicated to the Dutch Government. If no demand be made by the Entente before the meeting of the peace conference, the Socialist parties will, if they still retain power, announce this decision at that gathering, and it is declared that they will also suggest that ex-King Ludwig of Bavaria be dealt with in the same manner.

Ludwig appears to have drawn upon himself the special hatred of the Socialist parties. It is maintained that he had a great deal to do with the outbreak of the war, and Socialist opinion in North Germany seems to have especially turned against him on account of documents which are said to have been discovered showing that long before the armistice he was endeavoring to set up a South German-Rhineland confederation, with himself as its royal head, and that it was his intention to open conversations with the Entente, through the whole blame for the outbreak of the war on the Berlin Government, and so conclude peace at the expense of Prussia.

Yorwerts publishes the text of a telegram sent by the Crown Prince in January to the Kaiser, who handed it on to Hindenburg, requesting that the Frankfurter Zeitung, the Berliner Tageblatt and Yorwerts should be forbidden at the front, as the bad influence which the journals had on the troops was pitiful.

Asquith Agrees With Lloyd George
Pittsburgh, Scotland, Dec. 12.—(By A. P.)—Former Premier Herbert H. Asquith, in a speech here last night, said that Great Britain must keep the supremacy of the sea. He agreed, he declared, with what Premier Lloyd George said yesterday with regard to making the Germans pay for the war.

LLOYD GEORGE VICTORY TOMORROW ADMITTED

British Election Issues Now Turn on Indemnities and Conscription—Labor Expects to Increase Representation

London, Dec. 12. SOME guesses are being made as to the results of the general election Saturday; but so many unknown factors enter into the calculations that the best judges hesitate to put their estimates into figures. It is generally agreed that the coalition will obtain a majority over the Liberal and Labor parties combined. How strong Lloyd George's personal following remains the subject of keenest discussion, but at present the predominant opinion is that it will be small by comparison with the Conservatives returned.

One prediction which is largely accepted as correct is that a considerable proportion of the successful candidates will represent the minority vote of their respective constituencies.

Labor professes exultation at the prospect of greatly increased representation, and if the Asquithian Liberals could poll a full vote these two parties combined would make a strong opposition. It is expected, however, that many sincere Liberals will vote for coalition, owing to the immediate necessities of the international situation, and that others will abstain from voting rather than weaken the Government which will have to represent Great Britain at the Peace Conference. Much dissatisfaction is felt at the turn which the electoral campaign has taken. It is now being fought on points which the Daily Mail has advanced as its special platform and which, as Lord Northcliffe's paper remarks, were conspicuous by their absence from the original election addresses of the Government leaders.

Chief among these points is the question of the indemnities to be paid by Germany. Sober Liberal organs express regret that the electorate should be beguiled into the belief that fabulous sums can be exacted from Germany. The Manchester Guardian says: "Apparently Lloyd George thinks this is popular. We do not think it is. Often people will cheer a thing to the echo, and when they come to think it over, recognize they were misled and fooled. People do at bottom love a statesman, not a cheap jack. Sometimes Mr. Lloyd George shows the limitations of one, sometimes of the other. We could wish that the temptations of electioneering were not so strong upon him. Luckily, they will soon be over, or there is no saying what we might not come to."

Conscription has also come into the foreground. Mr. Lloyd George says he is opposed to conscription, but intimates that future decisions upon the subject are, dependent on the Peace Conference. In the popular mind the continuation of conscription is linked with the idea that big armies must be maintained for the purpose of settling Russian difficulties. It was the voters themselves who forced the conscription question to the front. The politicians had not thought of it at all till they began to get heckled on the point.

Of interest in this connection is the fact that Lord Milner will soon leave the War Office. Lord Northcliffe's Evening News asserts that his recent utterance in regard to Germany made his departure from office inevitable. Before publication of his views it was expected that he would be one of the British delegates to make peace, but according to the Northcliffe organ, the nation is determined to make Germany pay for the war to the tune of £4,000,000,000, and its representatives in Paris are going to get that mandate at Saturday's elections.

LIPTON CHALLENGES ANEW

Still Believes Shamrock IV Can Take America's Cup

By the Associated Press
Belfast, Dec. 12.—The Royal Ulster Yacht Club has sent a cablegram to the New York Yacht Club containing a challenge for the America's Cup.

Sir Thomas Lipton is relying on Shamrock IV for the challenge, which is made on behalf of Sir Thomas. Sir Thomas Lipton thrice has attempted to "lift" the America's Cup, historically known as the trophy for the "blue ribbon" event in yachting between the United States and England. Three Shamrock hulls have fought unsuccessfully with American-built craft over the courses of Sandy Hook. Shamrock IV was being sent across in the summer of 1914 when the war broke out. This race, for which American syndicates had built a trio of yachts, was never sailed, and the Shamrock IV since has been lying in a Brooklyn shipyard. The three American yachts were the Resolute, Vanitie and Delancey.
