

LIQUOR DEALERS BAN SALES TO SOLDIERS

Association Directs Members to Refuse All Men in Uniforms

The executive committee of the Retail Liquor Dealers' Association has issued instructions to all moonshiners who are members of the organization to refuse liquor to any man in the uniform of the United States army, navy, whether regularly discharged from the service or not.

This action followed a conference with Charles V. Mallett, special agent of the Department of Justice, and was the result of a memorandum issued to the association by General March, Chief of Staff at Washington, that it was legal to sell liquor to enlisted men who could show proper discharge from the service.

Mr. Mallett told the dealers that 100 bootleggers had been apprehended last week, and that conditions were becoming such that a quick and sharp stop must be put to the practice.

The Inter-Church Federation has filed a petition in Quarter Sessions Court for revocation of the liquor license of Joseph C. Beirn, northeast corner Thirtieth and Filbert streets, on the ground the proprietor consents to selling liquor to soldiers. It is also alleged he sold liquor to intoxicated persons and conducted his saloon in a disorderly manner.

Plans for welfare work among enlisted men during the winter will be formulated by a committee of fifteen leaders in the movement, according to an announcement by Calvin L. Lewis, director of the war camp community service.

Slaying of Brother Avenged by Soldier

Continued from Page One says that he is rapidly recovering. Touching on general topics he praises the care taken of the wounded soldiers in the American hospitals, speaks highly of the army cooking and is emphatic in asserting that military training is one of the best things any young man can undergo.
