Secondo un di spaccio giunto da Zara "Giornale d'Italia." le relazioni fra gli italiani ed i Jugo-Slavi, lungo la costa austriaca, di vengono sempre piu' tesc. La presenza di navi da guerra francesi lasciano apertamente com-prendere che con gli Jugo-Slavi e' aumentato il pericolo di un conflitto.

Si crede che la flotta americana si prestera' con imparziale attegiamento. La condotta di Monsignor Endrici, scovo di Trento, durante la guerra e stata elogiata da Papa Benedetto. Il Papa espressa personalmente le suc con-gratulazioni, durante una recente udienza concessa all'eminente prelato. Second il giornale "Il Popolo Romano," Papa Benedetto chiedera' al Presidente Wilson di consentire ad agire come mediatore negli sforzi per raggiungere un reciproco patto con il quale possano essere risolti i dissensi che esistono tra il Quarinale ed il Vaticano.

Questa questionel dice il giornale—non dovita' in nessun caso essere portata innanzi alla conferenza della pace.

La stampa italiana a grandi caratteri da' il benyenuto al Presidente Wilson giunto in Europa e negli editoriali esalta l'atteggiamento del Presidente durante la guerra. Il giornale "L'Epoca" dice:

"Nessun uomo in Europa e' stato cost' polare, dopo Napoleone quanto i residente Wilson e nessuno e' stato più-nato. Egli e' oggi amato anche da coloro che lo avevano in odio e che lo derisero. Questi in lui sperano per un mondo migliore." In tutta Italia si attende ansiosamente

The Temps led off in terms heretofore unknown to its columns regarding the league of nations. Why search history, it says, for easons and precedents against it? Parallels do not exist. This great war has changed everything. The burden of its contention is for giving President Wilson a clear field.

The bulk of the Paris press speaks in a similar strain, which could not happen under the system prevailing here except on initiation from higher of course, such changes don't hap-pen in a day, however potent the cause. It is not that the arrival of the Lead of the American republic produced an instant and profound metamorphosis. The situation was there already. The President's magcontact only developed and re-it. The relation between Wilrealed it. The relation between Wilson and the European peoples is long established. Understanding and condense have been growing all the time. With that insight of his which time. forth, there is a new optimism in the air today. Before Saturday despair of disarmament and of the establishment of a deague of nations and cynicism about all fine theories had been perceptible, while today not a few are optimistic enough to hope that President Wilson will not only bring the European nations together in a peace concert, but will also by his presence there and his influence with the common men beat back the tide of Bolimont Plateau or North Broadstreet, in Philadelphia, on a Sunday afternoon, while the wide spaces and the parks gave just a touch of Washington. Visited Lafayette's Tomb

The President visited the tomb of Lafayette in the Picpus Cemetery, in the southeastern section of Paris while returning home after the morning church service. No ceremony had been arranged at the cemetery, and President Wilson went accompanied only by Brigadier General Harts, a Secret Service operative, and a French officer assigned to him as a personal aide. Entirely unannounced the President drove to the old Picpus Cemetery, where the amazed aged gatekeeper was almost too flustered to unlock the gates when he learned who his caller

The President, removing his hat, entered the tomb carrying a large floral wreath. As the President placed the wreath on the tomb he bowed his head and stood silent before the resting place of the famous Frenchman who helped America in her fight for libpublic erty. He made no speech whatsoever, found but on his personal card President was Wilson wrote this inscription:

In memory of the great Lafayette from a fellow servant of liberty.

The news of the President's visit spread rapidly to the convent nearby, and as he left he passed through lines
