

MILADY VOGUE IN THE EXQUISITE ARRAY OF FUR—TRYING OUT SANTA CLAUS'S PRESENTS IN THE SQUARE

SQUIRREL FUR HAS A WAY of lending itself most especially to the charm of youth, and here is Youth herself faring forth in it all on a winter's day.

FOX AND MOLESKIN COMBINE to make this fur wrap as exceedingly attractive as it is

"BLOW, BLOW THOU WINTER WIND"—with all apologies to the Immortal Bard, you can not be unkind to a charming young lady enveloped in a raccoon coat such as this.

RITTENHOUSE SQUARE pavements are just the thing for young ladies who found roller skates among their Christmas gifts, as Polly R. Shober, daughter of Mrs. R. K. Shober, 252 South Twenty-third street, discovered

WITHOUT FEAR OR FAVOR—SAMUEL P. ROTAN, District Attorney of Philadelphia, "snapped" at his desk

THIS YOUNG HORSEMAN, Master Walter Stikman, displays equestrianism of the highest skill in guiding his fiery Christmas steed

THIS YOUNG MOTHER, little Louise Brooks, has her tiny hands doubly full since Christmas morning, when two charming children demanded her attention

CHRISTMAS MAIL was much too tardy for young Walter Brooks, a grandson of Mrs. E. T. Stotesbury, so he is operating a mail route of his own in the parlous of Rittenhouse
