

MAJOR PUGH EXPECTS EARLY TROOP RETURN

Engineers' Officer, at Home in Wayne, Tells War Experiences

Many Philadelphia soldiers who have seen service in France will soon be back on their jobs in civil life, in the opinion of Major Marshall B. Pugh, of Wayne, Pa., who returned from overseas...

Major Pugh served abroad for a year with the Twenty-first Engineers. His company was employed in building railroads in France. They were constructed along the narrow-gauge tracks leading from the main lines to the trenches...

About twenty-five officers of Major Pugh's company have returned to the United States on furlough and expect soon to be discharged.

Troops are being concentrated as rapidly as possible at the three large embarkation camps in France. Brigadier General and Staff Captain, explained Major Pugh...

GAY THROUGS DEFIED RAIN TO GIVE WELCOME TO 1919

Confetti-Plastered Umbrellas, Brilliant-Colored Gowns, Uniforms and Racket in Downpour Made Coming of New Year Memorable—Sing at Liberty Statue

"We'll have to hand it to you; you surely do know how to under in the New Year!"

It was the voice of Boston that rang out in the crowds which thronged the streets of Philadelphia...

On beautiful women with a generous sprinkling of uniforms are gauged for pleasure, then the society folk of Philadelphia certainly had plenty of New Year's Eve fun.

Even the more humble "operated" functions had their share of the festivity, and many a soldier and his sweetheart were seen eating their pie from a common "urn."

Occasionally one had to look twice to see if the apparent maid really belonged to the city, for many were decked themselves out in satin gowns and filmy veils...

At Midnight's Approach As midnight approached the crowd gathered about the Liberty statue...

As the big band at last touched the spot which meant the death of the old year and the birth of the new, all lights were turned on according to the old custom...
