FRANK W

This country's entry into the world war found him at Fort Williams, Me., and he at once entered the officers' training camp at Flattsburg, but dropped out a month later in order to be among the first to sail for France. He was at-tached to Battery H, of the Fifty-first Coast Artillery and was at the front from September, 1917, until August 28, when a piece of boche shrappel smashed his right ankle and another took a chunk out of his left shoulder. He was born out of his left shoulder. He was born in this city and áttended the German-town public schools. Besides the Croix de Guerre he wears a medal for bravery in action during the Philippine insurrec-tion.

Private Howard Knapp, wounded, is a member of Company K. 111th In-fantry, and before enlisting in the army made his home with his sister, Mrs. J. Malone, at 2411 North Clarion street. She has received an official notice that he was seriously wounded in the big drive early in October and later learned from the Red Cross that he is confined to a base hospital. No letters have been i received from him since he is said to i have been wounded. He enlisted in July, 1917, and went to Camp Hancock for intensive training, sailing for o erseas last June.
