MILES OF STREETS LACK SEWER

Housing Association Points Out Needs of Populous Districts

Need of thickly settled districts for a definite program of sewer extension is pointed out to Director Datesman, of the Department of Public Works, in a letter sent out by the Philadelphia Housing Association. The 1919 public improvement program calls for the expenditure of $10,000,000, but only a small amount of this money will be spent for sewers.

The association, after referring to the fact that Councils have authorized many main and branch sewers that have not been built, asks that some definite plan of relief be formulated by which crimes "unbearable conditions" can be improved.

According to the Bureau of Health, there are nine miles of built-up streets in South Philadelphia without sewers, thirty-eight in North Philadelphia, sixty in West Philadelphia, and ten in Germantown and Frankford—a total of 165 miles of built-up city streets without sewers. The figures were compiled in 1916 and only a comparatively small amount of work was done during the years of the war.

READING TO END SKIP-STOPS

Transit Company Authorized by Fuel Administrator to Eliminate Them

Reading, Pa., Jan. 7.—The skip-stop system which was put into effect on the trolley lines as a fuel saver, can now be eliminated. H. Howard Bright, local fuel administrator, sent letters to the Reading Transit and Light Company and the Allentown and Reading Traction Company today, calling attention to this fact.

A letter was sent also to the Metropolitan Edison Company with reference to the lifting of the curtailment on extension of mains for supplying electricity to others than those who were patrons on August 12, the date of the order.

SHIP NEWS

OFFICER AT SHIPYARD KNOWS MANY TRADES

C. P. Longwell Has Tried Hand at Music, Mining and Tailoring

C. P. Longwell, housing adjuster at the Pusey & Jones shipyards, has had a varied career.

In addition to being active in securing "square deals" in rental and other housing problems of the shipworkers, he has engaged in the fruit industry, was a soldier, a merchant tailor, organizer of a chorus and has been associated with a mining concern.

Mr. Longwell was born on a farm in Delaware County, Ohio. In 1897 he went to Ontario, California, attending a high school and working in different branches of the fruit business.

When the Spanish-American War broke out he joined the Seventh California Infantry and served throughout the conflict. At the close of the war he became associated with a mining concern in the mountains of the Mojave desert.

Later he settled in Los Angeles and was connected with a merchant tailoring establishment. Mr. Longwell took a great interest in music and was active in the organization and development of the Orpheus Club of Los Angeles, a male chorus of sixty voices, which won the first prize in the International Eisteddfod in San Francisco in 1915.

He came to the Pusey & Jones Company in early June of this year as housing adjuster of the Emergency Fleet Corporation.

His activities during the influenza epidemic in securing coal for the shipworkers' homes and performing other needed services won for him the esteem of the shipyard men from the bottom to the top of the ladder.

Personnel of the U. S. S. Standstill (enlisted at the Chester yard):

MAHER, D., RAIDER — Yeowoman, chief stenographer.

Stabler — Mabel C. Have you ever seen a great, big, fat, jolly Santa Claus? Well, that's how Mabel sounds the keys, and the resemblance ends. If it is she seldom makes a mistake. On the street she would pass for an attractive, everyday girl, but that's her alibi—the black hair of hers—to hide traces of a business woman, and she knows how to keep them. It's hard to put anything over on Raider.

Spasm Tee — "Idiosyncrasies of the Chesapeake naval marine engineer, by Lieut. H. Fredrickson, clerk, is our famed athlete.

Who could, if he would, perform any feat.

But we wish he would try all his wiles on Keller to mop up the floors.

The fact that David Jones, of the Chester yard, borrows from three to "nuffin" "nuffin, sain him," according to his "Pals' Bible," Jones has a record for "losing them" and has done some real work in the joiner shop.

"Painter" Clark, of the Harding yard, was the winner of a 200-mile motor boat race, the benefit of the Red Cross. The money his crew won "from men" and netted $300 to the cause.

Bill Donahue, brother of Mat Donahue, the Harding yard foreman, assistant and member of "the ironing" in the "Mat" department made one, has an eight-hand poker game. He was not sure whether he would urge the management to negotiate with one of a football star like "Uncle Mat."

What an awful bunch of brass circulars developed according to Ross Claussen, of the Harding yard, when he tried to assemble the "Mat" department mail. Some resembling the lace used to "work" wearing the latest in "Frenchy" underwear, he surmised, the remaining stuff from mothers' sewing circles. Claussen, on the front line has nothing on carrying the new raiments, according to Claussen.

Mahoney and Hummell, two passengers of the "Mat" gang that left and left for Camden since are now in line for a Carnegie medal. A search from "coals" belonging to one of the "Mat" gang, Mahoney and Hummell secured the Allentown fire after reaching the prompt action of the two benefactors, not only saved damage to the yard, but enough room to stay the hold of the vessel, and then arriving on the scene.

The men in the Pusey & Jones fuel yard and boiler shops are interested in watching Charles Ved make three circles in the air in a chain and whistle home on South Second street. He's on A and C coal, and he passes.

FRENCH ORPHAN WRITES

Little Girl Describes Joy at Signing of Armistice

One of the Philadelphia "godmothers" of the "fatherless children of France" has received from her "goddaughter" a letter describing the armistice celebration in her own town on the eve of the signing of the Peace Treaty.

Marie Catelle lives in Montreuil-Tarrasconaise and she encloses with the letter a picture of the quiet street of the quaint little French village. She writes, in part:

"On November 11 at 2 o'clock in the afternoon suddenly the bells of the church sound the chimes of festival days. We all go out into the courtyard and the Mayor tells us the armistice is signed. We do not know whether we should laugh or cry, so excited are we.

"The public crier passes, he beats the drum, we run to him. Vive la France and the allies! He tells it again so that we may be sure. Grandmother has a basket of fine cakes, which makes it all jaunty.

"We form a circle, we commence several songs without success, for our throats are nearly full of emotion.

"We start for the little walls to calm our nerves. On our return the houses are hung with flags, the trees are in rows. That night we illuminate everything and dance all night.

"I shall not forget yesterday for a long time, that beautiful day."

NEGRO TROOPS RETURN

Transport Louisville With 964 Soldiers Aboard at New York

New York, Jan. 7.—The United States transport Louisville arrived in port today, transporting 964 troops and 572 civilians. Of the troops, 278 are negroes comprising casual companies Nos. 1668, 1669, 1668, 1669, 1670, 1671 and 6 headquarters consisting of four officers. The negroes were sent to Camp Mills. Thirteen casual officers and seventy-three sick and wounded also were aboard.

25 OUT OF 28 MEN ARE WOUNDED OR BLINDED

Lieutenant Spillan, Former Advertising Man Here, Describes Argonne Attack

How a Philadelphia soldier escaped death when twenty-five of his platoon of twenty-eight men were wounded and blinded and eleven killed instantly, is told in a letter from Lieutenant James J. D. Spillan, formerly of the advertising department of the Philadelphia Electric Company, to friends here.

"My first realization of just how horrible this war was, for instance, is a tale I could not color," wrote Lieutenant Spillan, who is attached to the 103d Trench Mortar Battery. "I had been on the front above Chateau-Thierry for a month. We had grown accustomed to shell fire, air raids crowded ambulances, etc. But my battery had come through without a scratch, so the whole business seemed rather impersonal.

"Our awakening to the horrors was, for those reasons, all the more shocking. It was in the opening of the Argone drive that the real meaning of the war was revealed. Our preparations had gone on without a hitch, our guns and bombs were in position, our fire direction calculated—we were set. Even the Boche's harassing fire and a respectable gas attack, with the wind away from us, was to our rear.

"The attack started with terrific artillery preparation. Soon after the zero hour, when all hell seemed let loose, gas poured down into our position. With masks adjusted we continued fighting—thirty minutes passed without incident—then came a blinding shock for me.

"When I could again stand, my platoon lay about me. I could hardly grasp at first that all these wonderful boys who had been with me since Hancock were helpless, bleeding—spoiled forever. Out of twenty-eight in action only three escaped without injury. Eleven were killed instantly—some blinded—God, it was horrible!

"How I escaped was a miracle. With one of my sergeants I was in the center of my platoon. Needless to say, from then on war was to me the hell that it is. We all saw red and a true hate came which in the next shoot was somewhat satisfied."

SOLDIERS SEARCH FOR CLERICAL JOBS

Not Enough Office Positions Available at Present to Meet Demand

More clerical jobs are needed to give work to returning soldiers, sailors and marines. The pavilion in City Hall courtyard and the United States Employment Service office at 1519 Arch street have been crowded with uniformed men during the last few days. The demand has become so great that the office in the City Hall courtyard will be kept open till 9 o'clock each evening hereafter.

Employers have been turning in requisitions for men at the Liberty Statue booth, and so far the demand and supply have about balanced. Only in clerical lines is there a shortage of jobs, and employment experts are asking all employers to register jobs immediately.

C. K. Stokes, chairman of the peacetime employment committee for Philadelphia, will meet with representatives of advertising agencies in the city this afternoon to plan a comprehensive campaign of education and advertising.

"I want every employer to realize his duty toward the returning soldier and sailor, and every returned war worker to know that he will have the co-operation of the United States employment service in finding employment," declared Mr. Stokes.

Coal operators of Philadelphia will confer with the board of managers of the new peace-time employment drive committee late this afternoon concerning jobs for returned soldiers. This is the second of group meetings with large employers in an effort to gain opportunities for returning war workers. The employment service experts will meet textile and carpet manufacturers at the Finance Building at 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon. Other group meetings and rallies will be arranged for the last of the week.

TO AID Y. M. C. A. IN FRANCE

Two Young Women From Here Sail for Europe

Mrs. Esther Lloyd, 329 South Seventeenth street, and Miss Helen G. Haydock, of Ridley Park, have sailed for France to go into service with the Y. M. C. A.

Miss Lloyd is to do canteen work in the overseas division of the Y. M. C. A. She was previously enrolled by the American Red Cross for aviation hut work and was transferred to the Y. M. C. A. for foreign service when the Red Cross enrollments were canceled. During the period of the war she had been active in the cause of the Red Cross and the Liberty Loans. She worked with girls in the Berwyn Farm Unit and was head of a day nursery.

Miss Haydock will serve as secretary among the soldiers who are eager to get home and much in need of entertainment in the meantime. She is a graduate from the Philadelphia Normal School and has been a teacher for six years.
