Private William Owens, severely wounded in action just a few days before the armistice was signed, was cited for bravery and promoted to sergeant while he lay in a hospital with a badly mangled leg. He has now returned to this country.

The details of his wounding came from him at the Camp Meade convalescent hospital to his sister, Mrs. Fred J. Hartman, 5640 Carpenter street.

Owens is a member of Company B, 148th Infantry. On November 1, while his unit was advancing rapidly in the drive that finally resulted in the capture of Sedan, he was struck in the leg and so badly injured that it was at first thought that he would die.

For courage displayed under fire, officers of his company recommended him to General Pershing for a Distinguished Service Cross and promoted him to sergeant.

Owens is thirty-one years old. He served four years in the navy before enlisting in the army at the beginning of hostilities with Germany. Between his enlistments in the army and navy he was employed at the du Pont Powder Works at Carney's Point, N. J.

The War Department has made public the names of five more Philadelphians who have been freed from German prison camps. They are Privates Cancellieri Agostino, 4018 Wyalusing avenue; Clayton H. Hussler, 2428 North Clarion street; Angelo D'Alleanandro, 824 South Eighth street; Antoni Paszewski, 2561 Margaret street, and Paul J. Dwyer, 949 Dakota street.

Only eleven additional names appear on the casualty list for this city and vicinity today. There are 373 for the country as a whole, while the total for Pennsylvania is forty-nine. Aside from the men released from prison camps, the greatest number of names under any head for this section is three. These are listed as killed in action—one a man who was previously reported missing. The others are classified, one each, under the following heads: Died of wounds, died of disease.

DONATO DE PRINZIO, Died.
DANIEL S. STENGEL, Died.

SKETCHES OF THE HEROES

Private James Hepworth, Company F, 116th Infantry, died from wounds received in action October 7. His father, Joseph Hepworth, has since his son's death written to the recruiting officers at enlistment, and failed to receive the official notice of the death of his son that the War Department sent out sometime ago. The parents thought it strange that their son did not write and on inquiry mailed to Washington revealed the fact that he was dead. His parents now live at 2417 East Sergeant street. Hepworth was twenty-four years old and was born in 1894 in South Philadelphia. He enlisted in 1917 and trained at Camp Hancock a year before sailing overseas last May. One letter to his parents a few weeks after he arrived in France told him that he had escaped from the front and had returned to the United States. He was a teamster and made his home with his parents before leaving this city.

Private Abraham Fleischer, Eighth company, Fifth Regiment, Marine Corps, reported missing since September 23, has returned to duty, according to today's casualty list. He is just nineteen years old and has served with the unit for two years. He was slightly wounded and had been in a hospital, said the official report.

Private Augustus F. Heyne, 5835 Pentridge street, listed as severely wounded in the official casualty list of last Thursday, arrived in New York Saturday, on the Trenton. He was wounded in the right leg by machine-gun bullets, September 5. He is a member of Company H, 109th Infantry. Of his experience in the war he said: "Our division was constantly fighting from July 4 until armistice day. Every day it was a case of go over the top. Sometimes we had no officers to lead us and a sergeant took charge, but we went on."

Before entering the service, Private Heyne was employed by the International Mercantile Marine Company. He made his home with his parents at the Pentridge street address.

Private Leon W. Spiro, Machine Gun Company, 215th Infantry, is reported dead. He died of drinking poisoned water, the official notice to relatives living at 2642 North Thirty-first street, said. Parents disbelieve the report, declaring a claim of their son's wrote to them recently and failed to mention the death. He was twenty years old.

Private William H. Cunningham, 2339 North Sartin street, was killed in action October 30, according to official reports. He was a member of Company A, 215th Infantry, and had served with the colors since October, 1917. Previous to that time he was employed in a hosiery mill. He was twenty-four years old.

Nurses at Holy Trinity Service
 Nurses from many parts of the city took part in a special service for nurses yesterday afternoon in the Church of the Holy Trinity, Fitzrout Square. The Rev. Thomas J. Crosby, of St. Paul's Church, New York, who has been appointed by the war commission of the Episcopal Church to look after the interests of nurses in the foreign service, spoke of the splendid work of the American nurse in the great war.

St. Edward's Priest Has Pneumonia
 The Rev. Francis Quinn, of St. Edward's Catholic Church, Eighth and York streets, is ill of pneumonia in St. Mary's Hospital. He was removed to the hospital on Friday and today his condition was announced as improved.

13 PENNSYLVANIA MEN RECEIVE WAR HONORS

Generals Muir, Menoher, McCoy and Andrews Among Those Decorated for Bravery—Five Philadelphians Praised

Citations for bravery in action and distinguished service medals and crosses of war have been given to thirteen Pennsylvanians officers and men. Of this number five are from Philadelphia. One New Jersey Lieutenant is mentioned in dispatches as having displayed extraordinary heroism in the action that cost him his life.

Of the Pennsylvanians in service two of the four picked by the War Department for citation are major generals and two are brigadier generals. The list of awardees and the men receiving them follows:

Major General Charles H. Muir, Distinguished Service Medal for "exceptionally meritorious and distinguished services in fields of great responsibility." Recommendation made personally by General Pershing.

Major General Charles F. Menoher, Johnstown, Pa., Distinguished Service Cross.

Brigadier General Frank R. McCoy, Distinguished Service Medal.

Brigadier General Avery D. Andrews, Ardmore, Pa., Distinguished Service Medal.

Private Walter C. Mack, Company B, 121st Machine Gun Battalion, 2111 North Twenty-second street, Distinguished Service Cross.

Private Giuseppe Spadafora, member of Philadelphia's own 21st Infantry, Distinguished Service Cross.

First Lieutenant William H. Clark, 1719 North Eighteenth street, member of Company B, Fourth United States Infantry, Croix de Guerre.

Sergeant Horace Mulvaney, 1715 North Fifty-third street, Croix de Guerre.

Corporal Edward D. Quinn, 226 North Paxson street, Croix de Guerre.

Private John E. Dempsey, 629 North Franzer street, Croix de Guerre.

John J. McFall, 1824 South Cecil street, Croix de Guerre.

The last four named are members of the Fifth and Sixth Regiments of marines.

Sergeant Walter I. Barnhardt, Lancaster, Pa., Company I, 220th Infantry, Distinguished Service Medal.

Second Lieutenant Kenneth Gow (deceased), Summit, N. J., Machine-Gun Company, 107th Infantry, Distinguished Service Medal.

Private John Warriman, Schuylkill, Pa., Company B, 138th Machine-Gun Battalion, Distinguished Service Cross.

Major General Muir took the Twenty-

Clark was formerly connected with the advertising department of a Philadelphia newspaper.

Private Giuseppe Spadafora went from Philadelphia to Camp Meade. He has no kin on this side of the Atlantic, and gave as his nearest relative the name of his mother in Molette, Province of Catania, Italy. He was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross for gallantry displayed at Montfaucon, in the Seventy-ninth Division as a real fighting machine. He aided in removing wounded men from a dressing station that was in the line of a heavy bombardment from German guns.

Sergeant Walter I. Barnhardt, of Lancaster, Pa., received his Cross of War upon recommendation after he had rescued from death a wounded officer, running with him in his arms through a hail of machine-gun fire.

Private John Warriman, of Schuylkill, Pa., swam the Scheidt River in the face of machine-gun fire and obtained information of great value to his unit, the 126th Machine Gun Battalion.

Red Tape Doesn't Make Method—in Filing
 The function of files is to place records from the last user where they will be instantly available for the next user.

Overelaborated methods of indexing which keep records out of action between filings don't do this. Amberg Indexes being based on the proven percentages with which names occur in the correspondence of any business require no complex schemes to prevent error.

The Amberg Way—is to simplify files by bringing them back to filing principles, those fundamental laws that are lost sight of in most businesses.

An Amberg Analysis will tell you if your files are too arbitrarily organized for prompt action, what filing laws should be applied to make your file-plan a center of impulse for your records and not merely a resting place for dead records.

Amberg Cabinets, wood and steel, are standard—and the Indexes fit any make of cabinet. Send for "Applied Indexing," a book for business executives.
